Traffic Jams Ferries For the Second Day

The B.C. Ferry service has thrown every available vessel into service this weekend in an attempt to handle the traditional July 1 rush of travellers.

Despite the move, however, vehicles were lined two deep for about a kilometre from the Swartz Bay terminal Thursday evening and traffic was jammed again early this morning.

Traffic snarls were unknotted by mid-morning, but ferry officials were expecting to be under pressure again this evening.

Assistant ferry service traffic manager William Bouchard said that nobody was left behind at any of the terminals Thursday — contrary to some newspaper reports — and he doubted any travellers will be stranded tonight.

Bouchard said waits were longer than normal Thursday because the Queen of Vancouver couldn't be put into service until this morning.

He said the Vancouver was to have started Thursday but the crew wasn't familiarized with the newly-engined vessel in time to meet the first heavy rush of traffic.

Engine trouble on the Queen of Victoria also added to traffic problems. The Victoria was out of service for much of the day.

Beef Pushes Food Costs Up by 4½% In Month

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Soaring beef prices and dwindling year-end stocks of potatoes and apples boosted the cost of food 4.5 per cent over the past month, the Anti-Inflation Board said today.

The AIB's food index, constructed from a survey of prices in 12 major Canadian cities, currently stands at 148 (100 in 1974), an increase of 16.6 per cent in the last year.

Beef went up 10.7 per cent May, but the board said the prices "appeared to have peaked for the moment."

The AIB's fresh fruit index rose 11.4 per cent since mid-May mainly due to a seasonal scarcity of apples which rose in price by 33 per cent over the past four weeks.

In general the price of fresh vegetables increased 20.1 per cent in the last four weeks, attributed by the board to seasonal market conditions. The price of potatoes alone rose 72 per cent over the same period.

But as the summer season progresses prices for fresh vegetables and fruit should decline, the board said.

Among other increases over the past month, fats and oils were up 3.4 per cent, poultry 1.8 per cent and pork 2 per cent.

Meanwhile, the president of Canada Packers Ltd. isn't betting too strongly on it, but he thinks the price of beef will come down to more reasonable levels.

"We hesitate to make predictions because we've been awfully wrong lately, but we expect the price to somewhat decline and next stabilize to some extent," W. F. McLean told the company's annual meeting of shareholders.

"If it stabilizes, and there is some balance between demand and supply, then we will have a period of stability — what the industry needs more than anything else right now."

However, Evans Thorterson of Elfros, Sask., president of a major cattle raisers' association said Thursday price increases were not a response to a short supply of beef.

It is actually an adjustment of the market to where it should have been, he said.

HEATING OIL, GAS HIKE DUE

The price of gasoline and home heating oil in Victoria will reach a new high this fall.

Motorists and homeowners can expect to pay about 3½ cents more a gallon for both items around Sept. 1.

July 1 is the effective date for a $1-a-barrel increase in oil prices as the government steadily pushes domestic prices toward world levels.

Oil companies said it will take about 60 days for these increases paid to producers to reflect in high prices at the pumps because it takes that long for existing inventories to be used up.

"We are also required by the government to wait for 60 days," said one oil company spokesman. "This means prices will go up in Victoria and elsewhere in the province on Sept. 1."

Still to come later in the summer is a round of expected price rises for natural gas, possibly up to 17 cents a thousand cubic feet.

Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie has turned down opposition MPs requests to forego the summer increases, even though federal studies show they will drive up the inflation rate by one full percentage point.

Gillespie told the Commons recently that Canadian industry already has a price advantage for oil and the government will not stop its policy of forcing prices higher.

Currently, domestic oil sells for $11.75 a barrel compared with $15 a barrel it costs for world oil imported to the eastern provinces.

MONEY BILL OVERLOOKED

Lieut.-Governor Henry Bell-Irving did double duty as the legislature wound down Thursday evening.

At the end of each session, the lieutenant-governor enters the legislative chambers to give royal assent to bills passed by the assembly.

Bell-Irving was escorted in and gave royal assent to what everyone thought were all the bills.

But as Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy began the motion to end the current session, she was interrupted by Speaker Harvey Schroeder who said the lieutenant-governor would have to come back.

One bill had been forgotten.

So the ceremony was repeated for the one bill — the Supply Act — without which the government wouldn't be able to spend the bulk of its $4.28 billion budget.

For a look at the session and what the politicians think about it, see Page 24.

Green Light Given 2,4-D

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government's program to combat Eurasian milfoil in the Okanagan lakes system with 2,4-D was given the green light again Thursday in a B.C. Supreme Court decision.

The decision by Mr. Justice A. B. MacFarlane alos lifted an injunction that was issued last Thursday to stop the application of the herbicide in the lake system.

It upheld six permits to apply the herbicide, while rejecting four and noting that another permit expires today.

In ruling the six permits valid, Mr. Justice MacFarlane rejected arguments by lawyers for two members of the South Okanagan Environmental Coalition (SOEC) who contended that protesters did not receive a fair hearing at sessions of the Pesticide Appeal Board's (PBA) June 6-14 in Penticton, B.C.

However, he upheld arguments that the board had overstepped its jurisdiction in extending four permits — which had expired June 15 — to Sept. 30 and declared them void until the PAB can make a valid decision that gives them effect.

In Victoria, Environment Minister Jim Nielsen said the government will go ahead in the next day or two with the herbicide program in the approved areas and try to clear the way for application in the four areas rejected by the court.

Minister Sues Over Cartoon

Human Resources minister Bill Vander Zalm today filed a Supreme Court writ in Victoria seeking damages and costs in connection with a cartoon which appeared June 22 in the Victoria Times.

Named in the action are Times publisher Stuart Underhill, editor Barbara McLintock and part-time cartoonist Bob Bierman.

The Times will not publish Saturday because of the Canada Day holiday. Regular Saturday features appear in today's paper. Publication will resume with Monday's editions.

NEWS BRIEFS

Crash Kills Three

PARKSVILLE (CP) — A woman and her two daughters died Thursday night when the car they were in collided with another car and a semi-trailer on Highway 19 about six kilometres north of this Vancouver Island community.

Hikers Walk Out

CHILLIWACK (CP) — RCMP said that two hikers lost for four days in the Mount Baker-Snoqualmie National Forest in Washington State were in good shape Thursday after they walked across the Canadian border to rescue.

Basford Denial

OTTAWA (CP) — Reports that Justice Minister Ron Basford will resign from politics to become chairman of the British Columbia Labor Relations Board were shot down Thursday night by Basford himself.

'Accident' Ruling

VILLE MARIE, Que. (CP) — The drowning deaths of 13 canoeists on Lake Timiskaming June 11 were accidents and there was no criminal resonsibility on the part of anyone involved, Quebec Coroner Stanislaf Dery ruled Thursday.

Massive Hail

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. (CP) — A storm dumped an inch of rain and golf ball-sized hail stones on a wide area east of Swift Current Thursday.

MOVING TRUCK moved today — straight up. Rented vehicle filled with furniture slipped brakes Friday near Princess Patricia apartments on Esquimalt Road and rolled down an embankment. Firemen stood by until massive crane hooked vehicle and hoisted it back up on to the road.

Phillips Exhausted, Expense Account Too

How much fun can you have in Japan on $29,000?

"I came back exhausted," Economic Development Minister Don Phillips admitted.

Lauk noted Phillips' mission to Japan last year cost $29,496.04.

In view of that cost for a two week trip, "did you have a good time?" Lauk asked.

Speaker Harvey Schroeder interjected: "The question suggests its own answer. However, the minister may wish to answer."

After Phillips let it slip that he'd come back exhausted, he added that he went over to work and not to play rugby.

(When Dave Barrett was premier, he timed an economic mission to Japan to coincide with an over-40 rugby game against the Japanese. Barrett scored a try in that game.)

Phillips said his mission to Japan resulted in contacts that in future will prove the money was well-spent.

BCR to Run Despite Red

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia railway will never make a profit, but B.C. taxpayers will continue 100 per cent subsidization of the service anyway, Premier Bill Bennett said Thursday.

Bennett said in a radio interview while the railway is making a profit this year on operating, it cannot service its tremendous debt built up over the past years.

The subsidy will be continued, said Bennett, because the railway will contribute more to the province's economy than any other assistance suggested by his government.

The province's decision to continue supporting B.C. Rail goes counter to a royal commission report, submitted to cabinet last December, which recommended permanent closure of the Fort Nelson extension of the line.

The report said the benefits of keeping the extension open would not justify the anticipated cost of doing so, estimated to be between $60 and $70 million over the next five years.

But Bennett said new factors, specifically the fact that the railway will be better able than trucks to carry 56-inch pipe for the Alcan pipeline, changed the economics of the situation.

Ferry Income, Costs Up

The B.C. Ferry Corporation reported net income of $1.67 million for the year ended March 31, after receiving a $43.6 million provincial grant.

The Crown corporation said in its annual report, tabled in the legislature Thursday, that while revenue from operations increased $2.2 million to $61.5 million, expenses jumped $10.6 million to $85.7 million.

The corporation reported a loss of $4 million in fiscal year 1976-77 after receiving a grant of $6.7 million.

About 600,000 more passengers travelled on the government ferry fleet last year than the previous year, the report stated, and vehicle traffic increased by 200,000.

However, the report said revenue from fares was down $450,000 because of a fare reduction June 1, 1977.

The lost revenue was offset by a $1 million increase in revenue from food service and newsstand operations, and by an extra $2.2 million from investment sources.

Salaries, wages and benefits constituted the biggest single expense of the corporation, amounting to $47.6 million in fiscal year 1977-78.

Without the provincial grant, the corporation would have lost $41.9 million last year.

The corporation reported retained earnings of $23.4 million at the end of the year, a total which included net income, balance from the previous year, and about $20 million from a bookkeeping procedure as a result of the fleet becoming a Crown corporation on Jan. 1, 1977.

Ottawa To Ottawa: Pay Up or Else. . .

OTTAWA (CP) — City council has decided to cut off the federal government.

In fact, by an 11-to-1 vote, city council decided if the federal government doesn't at least agree to start paying the $33 million the city says it is owed, all city services to federal installations will be withdrawn.

A Sept. 1 deadline for substantive discussions was set, although as Ald. Trip Kennedy said, the deadline also was open to negotiation as long as the federal government was seriously discussing the matter.

The major problem confronted by city council is that it is trapped with no place to expand — surrounded by satellite municipalities on three sides and by the Ottawa River and the Quebec border on the fourth.

Most of the major buildings in the city are federally-owned, businesses are moving out of the city to the satellite communities where the buyers are and the federal government is moving up to 20,000 employees across the river to Hull, Que., leaving prime leased office space in Ottawa begging.

Controller Pat Nicol was the only dissenting voice at the meeting, saying council should work with regional government and the province before handing down any ultimatums.

And city solicitor Don Hambling raised the matter of legal responsibility when he said that under the provincial Public Utilities Act, the city "is required to provide essential services" such as hydro, police, fire protection, snow plowing and some road paving.

Regional government is responsible for such things as water and sewer services.

Mayor Lorry Greenberg, who didn't vote on the cut-off, said the $33 million represents the assessed amount the federal government owes the city in taxes. The government pays the city a grant in lieu of taxes — with the federal government deciding how much it will pay.

Greenberg said full payment by the government would mean a $150 tax rebate for every Ottawa taxpayer.

"This is not an irrational nor an irresponsible act," Greenberg said. "This is a final act of frustration because we don't have any other course."

He told the special meeting the city had been trying for 10 or 15 years to reach an amicable agreement on taxes with the federal government, adding:

"We have found out meetings with the feds are all a farce. We can't talk with them."

U.K. Hiding Egypt Raid Pact?

LONDON (Reuter) — Embarrassed British officials today refused to say whether they had mislaid or destroyed the text of a secret agreement between Britain, France and Israel to invade Egypt in 1956.

The charge was made in a report by the Guardian newspaper, which said the signed agreement, drawn up on October 24 of that year at a clandestine meeting in Sevres, near Paris, spelled out the moves made by the three countries in the wake of President Nasser's decision to nationalize the Suez Canal.

The Israelis invaded the Sinai desert on October 29. Britain and France the next day demanded a ceasefire, which was accepted by Israel but refused by Egypt. On October 31, British and French aircraft bombed Egyptian airfields. On November 5 British paratroops landed at Port Said and tried to capture the Suez Canal.

They had to withdraw under international pressure, but controversy has raged since then about the extent to which the three nations colluded in what has often been described as the last imperial adventure.

The late Lord Selwyn Lloyd, British foreign secretary during the Suez crisis, says in a book being published here next week that secret talks were held by the three countries at Sèvres.

He says that the document that was signed was only an agreed account of the conversations held in a villa there.

But those conversations noted in accurate detail what happened when hostilities began, the Guardian said today.

A British foreign office spokesman today refused to deny or confirm questions about the Guardian's report that the foreign office "has mislaid, and may have destroyed" the text of the Sevres protocol (agreement). The spokesman took cover behind a government ruling that secret policy documents cannot be disclosed until after an interval of 30 years.

Earlier this week, Sir Hugh Greene, former British Broadcasting Corporation director-general, revealed he had been told by one of Britain's most senior officials: "Damned good care has been taken to see that the whole truth never does emerge."

Sir Hugh attributed this remark to the late Sir Norman Brook, then-secretary to the cabinet. He made the revelation in a letter to the London Times. "I assumed at the time, and still assume, that he was referring to the destruction of important papers," Sir Hugh said.

Fleet Greatest Soviet Threat

INGONISH, N.S. (CP) — The head of Canada's Maritime Command says the greatest Soviet threat comes from the Russians' three-tier fleet—military, merchant marine and fishing—under a central command.

Vice-Admiral Andrew Collier says this system "makes it exceptionally easy for the Soviet navy to muster on very short notice."

He said increased defence expenditures planned in the next few years as part of Canada's commitment to NATO are justified.

PM'S MESSAGE FOR JULY 1

OTTAWA (CP) — English- and French-Canadians must remain together, because alone, each group is too weak, Prime Minister Trudeau says in his annual Dominion Day message.

This year's July 1 message—a plea for national unity—is to be broadcast on radio and television on Saturday.

"Canada must remain united because history made us out of the gift of a great encounter," Trudeau says, referring to the two largest linguistic communities, "who found their meaning concurrently with all Canadians.

"We should cherish this unity because only thus, that is in our cohesive, diversified, enriched and dynamic duality are we strong enough to persist in our being because, considered separately, we are weak.

"Because an isolated Quebec would be in danger of implosion and tempted by the inevitable authoritarianism of despair. Because a divided English Canada would fatally balkanize itself, perhaps to be eventually absorbed by the United States."

CANADA AIDED ENTEBBE RAID

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP played "a very important part" in making the 1976 raid on Entebbe airport in Uganda successful, author William Stevenson said Thursday.

A security unit set up for the Olympic Games had enabled the RCMP, with help from foreign security agencies, to find out which terrorists were where.

Stevenson told the Commons justice committee that the RCMP gave this information to Israel, enabling its security forces to determine who had hijacked an Air France jetliner carrying Israeli passengers.

The information helped Israel set up the successful commando raid on Entebbe in which the terrorist hijackers were killed and the passengers were freed.

Stevenson said that if trust among security forces is broken down, such help might be difficult to come by in the future.

Stevenson is the author of a book on the Entebbe raid.

Tiny Pay Hikes, U.K. Warned

LONDON (Reuter) — Prime Minister James Callaghan today told Britons they must expect only small pay increases in the next round of wage bargaining.

In a speech to a trade union conference, Callaghan hinted that the government is aiming to put a five-per-cent ceiling on increases, compared with about 14 per cent in the current year.

The new round of bargaining begins in August. "Don't view it with shocked disbelief and cries of anguish when you hear what the government has in mind," the prime minister said.

His speech set the stage for a confrontation with Britain's unions and an election battle over pay policy with the Conservative opposition.

Details of the government's wage policy will be published shortly.

The prime minister stressed that if inflation is to be checked, wage increases will have to be reduced.

"I do not know whether you will like it but what I do know is that it is essential policy number one."

He said the Labor government will "fight in the country" to realize its earnings objective. He did not elaborate.

U.S. Inflation Zips Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation in the United States continued at a rapid pace in May as the cost of food, housing and transportation drove consumer prices up 0.9 per cent, the labor department said today.

The increase matched the 0.9-per-cent rise in April, which had been the largest jump in more than a year. In the past three months, consumer prices have gone up at a rate that would average 11.3 per cent if spread out over the entire year.

Food and beverages rose 1.5 per cent in May, after climbing 1.8 per cent in April and about 1.2 per cent in each the three previous months.

In a companion report, the labor department said the average worker's purchasing power declined 1.3 per cent in May, the first drop since January. Employees increased their hourly earnings by 0.4 per cent but that was less than half of the 0.9-per-cent increase in prices.

The back-to-back 0.9-per-cent increases were the largest since a one-per-cent increase in February 1977 during severe winter weather.

In the past three months, food prices have gone up at an annual rate of 19.8 per cent, while housing costs have climbed by 12 per cent and transportation expenses have climbed by four per cent.

Despite the big increases in the first five months, consumer prices are still only about seven per cent higher than they were in May, 1977, the labor department said.

Rescue Squad Scores

The recently-formed Esquimalt Marine Rescue Squad today chalked up its first Mission Accomplished.

Volunteer members Gary Caton and Gene Gray were called just before 5 a.m. after an Esquimalt policeman spotted two sports fishermen adrift in a 16-foot runabout about half a mile off Fleming Beach.

Caton and Gray raced to the police station to pick up a rubber inflatable Zodiac rescue boat which was donated to the group by the provincial Emergency Measures Organization.

Within half an hour they reached the boat and towed it to shore.

A police spokesman said Wolf Hollinger, 31, of 885 Ellery, and Grant Kitchen, 605 Wilson, had left at daybreak for a day's fishing but had only gone a short distance when their outboard motor broke down.

Police Catch School Raiders

Colwood RCMP have two juveniles and a 17-year-old in custody following an early morning break-in at Savory elementary school on Grainger Road.

Police were called at 4:45 a.m. by a resident who saw some youths prowling the school grounds.

Officers found a window in the front door had been smashed and spotted one of juveniles outside acting as a lookout. They took the boy into custody before he had a chance to alert his companions.

Officers were waiting by the door when the pair came out. They nabbed one — a juvenile — but the other ran back into the building and out another door.

The youth's father escorted him into the police station shortly after 7 a.m.

A spokesman was unable to say what charges will be laid.

He said several jars of bleach had been poured in the hallways and a number of fire extinguishers emptied.

36 Boats Poised For Race to Maui

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

ANNIE CADBY and her crew...sailing master Malcolm Anderson, Helen and Louis Lindholm, all set for run to Maui.

Thirty-six of the most competitive boats in the sailing world are massed in the Inner Harbor for the eighth Victoria-Maui International Yacht Race.

The 2,308-mile race begins at 11 a.m. Saturday from a start line off Dallas Road between Brotchie Ledge and Ron Cliff's Sea Q of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club. Lt.-Gov. H.P. Bell-Irving will be aboard Sea Q and fire the starting gun.

The race is sponsored by the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club and the Lahaina Yacht Club and ends at Maui.

Safety and radio checks are being made on each boat by race officials this week to ensure they are prepared for the Pacific crossing. Weather briefings will also be held.

The only local boat in the race is Louis Lindholm's Annie Cadby of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club. A veteran Swifstsure skipper — he's skippered 10 in his Moonraker, Oona and Annie Cadby — this will be Lindholm's first Victoria-Maui.

He has sailed to second place in his Swiftsure divisions and placed second in the 1976 Southern Strait of Georgia classic.

With him in Annie Cadby will be his wife, Helen, deputy attorney-general Dick Vogel, Malcolm Anderson, sailing master David Shepherdson, Colin Huggett and Lindholm's 23-year-old son, Marshall.

Lindholm bought Annie Cadby — a Swan 44 — in the Finnish port of Helsinki in 1974 and sailed her back to Victoria the following year.

Once the race is over, well-known local yachtsman Roy Denny, along with Ralph Weston and Hal Worrall, will bring the boat back to Victoria.

Two of the favorites in the race are Doug Fryer's 64-foot sloop Merlin of the Seattle Yacht Club and Warren Hinton's 69-foot sloop Drifter. The latest in ocean racers, their speed potential is so great the handicap rules had to be changed for the Los Angeles-Honolulu race, for which Merlin holds the record.

Another hard-raced boat will be Ed De Koning's Wizard of the Portland Yacht Club. Another boat to watch will be the 48-foot Bravura, skippered by Irving Loube of the Lahaina Yacht Club.

Vancouver boats expected to make a good showing include John Long's Coho II and John Dunfield's Discovery, both from the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

One of the most colorful skippers in the race is Bill Gardner, veteran Victoria-Maui campaigner in his Lucy Alice. Even the heat of the Hawaiian Islands never prevents him from wearing his usual sailing togs, his hallmark being slippers and heavy-textured pants.

The ketch Jeanoyce, owned by Capt. Tom Clark of LYC, will race and also act as communications boat between here and Maui, taking the noonday positions of each boat during the daily rollcall.

No electronic aids may be used except radio receivers and direction finders. Sights will be shot by sextant. Each boat must carry a minimum of 15 gallons of water per crew member. Water tanks must be divided so that a leak in one tank will not result in the loss of more than two-thirds of the total water supply.

The boats will race in two categories — International Offshore Rule and Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet.

There will be eight trophies in the IOR section. One, which no skipper is anxious to receive, is the Turtle Trophy for last to finish on elapsed time. There will be three trophies in PHRF competition.

The first Victoria-Maui race was sailed in 1965. Three boats took part — J.G. Innes's Long Gone of Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, which won with an elapsed time of 15 daya, 16 hours and 55 minutes; L.H. Killam's Velaris of the same club and M.R. Ramsey's Norena of Wight from the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

The second race was held in 1968 and the international event has taken place every second year since that time.

Special $50 Million Gas Sale to U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. said Thursday it has arranged a special sale of natural gas to the United States which will result in additional revenues of $33 million to the British Columbia government and $17 million to B.C. gas producers.

The company's export customer, Northwest Pipeline Corp. of Salt Lake City, has been authorized to sell 200 million cubic feet of B.C. gas a day to Pacific Interstate Transmission Co. for the southern California market, said John Anderson, Westcoast's executive vice-president.

The $50 million gas sale, which will extend over the next four months, is not an additional export sale, said Anderson. It will be exported under Westcoast's current export licence and, while the term of the initial agreement between Northwest and Pacific Interstate is due to terminate on October 31, Anderson said that extensions to this agreement will likely be obtained.

The 20 billion cubic feet of B.C. gas will be purchased by Westcoast from the B.C. Petroleum Corp. and sold at the current export border price of $2.16 (U.S.), approximately $2.50 Canadian a thousand cubic feet.

Anderson said Westcoast will receive no part of the $50 million in sales revenue since its earnings are based on a formula involving a percentage of its investment in its pipeline facilities.

He said this type of sale during the summer—when sales are low —is particularly useful since it requires no additional facilities by Westcoast, nor does it incur any additional costs to transport the gas, other than minor volumes to fuel the compressor stations.

What to Do Tomorrow

The only quotation pertaining to tomorrow's holiday that we could find was a bit of nonsense out of the 1969 federal report of a task force on government information:

"Live, and let Nelson Eddy live. And if the tourists turn up on Dominion Day with skis, just switch on the artificial snow machines."

There was nothing at all in the reference books about Canada Day, the unofficial name for the day which Ottawa insists on using, despite the lack of any enabling legislation. No one has said much else amusing or interesting or remarkable about Canada's great national holiday that lexicographers have thought worth preserving.

So what is July 1 for? In the absence of any federal guidelines and since the provinces can't agree on a uniform definition, here is a strictly informal, noncompulsory itinerary.

It should be a day for sitting out in the back yard with a tall, cool drink. Forget for a while that Canada has a million unemployed; there are enough days in the rest of the year to worry about the problem.

Drive out to Beacon Hill park and lie down in the long grass and look up at the blue sky. Let not a single nasty thought mar the afternoon.

Don't upset the gastric juices by meditating on the perfidy of politicians, of high taxes, or the loutish neighbors you suffer. For one day, promise not to think about the problems of moving prairie grain to the port of Vancouver. Inflation and the post office, banish from your mind. And the Crow's Nest freight rate agreement, the constitution, Joe Clark's haircut or Pierre Trudeau's decade in office.

Garden a bit. Pull a few weeds. Go down to the sea somewhere and sit and sniff the air. Walk barefoot on a beach.

Read a little Canadian history — Pierre Berton, if you will, or George Grant or W.L. Morton. Margaret Ormsby's centennial history of British Columbia (20 years old itself this year) is always fascinating on the birth and growth of our own province.

At sunset, a toast to another 111 years. Come separatism and inflation, new constitutions and taxes, despite the worst we can do and the best, the rocks and trees, prairies and mountains and lakes that make up Canada will still be there. And people calling themselves Canadians, too.

Bonanza of Claims

So a giant "gas bonanza" has been located straddling the B.C.-Alberta border? Pardon if we restrain ourselves from jumping up and cheering long and loud, but the news about how big Canada's oil and gas reserves are has flipflopped from wild optimism to deep, dark pessimism back to exaggerated enthusiasm in such a short period of time that no one knows what to believe anymore.

What's a person to think, whose only connection with the industry is the fuel pump at his corner gas station? We had former energy minister Joe Greene tell us a few years back that Canada had enough to last a thousand years.

Then that statement suddenly became "inoperative." The energy crisis intervened, prices went up — which one supposes would have increased our reserves, but didn't until very recently — and Canada quickly felt the pinch.

The federal government even went to Rumania and bought fuel oil at a ridiculous price just to make sure we had enough for the winter. They shipped Alberta crude from Vancouver in tankers via the Panama Canal to eastern Canada.

Lately, a huge oil discovery was made in Alberta, the so-called West Pembina field, which supposedly equals the province's previous existent reserves. Now comes the claim by a new gas exploration firm, Canadian Hunter, that a previously undiscovered gas field which borders the Sukunka and Grizzly valleys of B.C. and neighboring Alberta contains an estimated 50 trillion cubic feet of natural gas which could be recovered.

Canada's total gas reserves were estimated at 60 trillion cubic feet in 1976, which would make the new find a highly significant one.

If the industry's claims can be believed. No amount of glad tidings can erase the public's memory of suddenly having the rug pulled out earlier in the decade. It is no longer commonly accepted that the oil and gas companies have our best interests at heart, if it ever was.

Nor do Canadians any longer believe many of the claims made on behalf of natural gas producers, electric utilities, the oil companies. It is not that they have been deliberately untruthful or purposefully misleading (although some certainly were) but that events have compelled the adoption of an extremely skeptical stance.

Remember the slogan "live better electrically"? The utilities and manufacturers of electrical appliances convinced many people to buy completely electric homes, on the premise that electric power would continue to be cheap and plentiful.

Now in some parts of the continent, they cannot afford to pay their utility bills. In the maritimes, thousands have brought back old cast iron stoves to heat their homes. Manufacturers and retailers of new designs of stoves and water heaters that burn wood, a cheap and ubiquitous fuel, are selling their products at a rate that jumps every time the price of fuel oil goes up or B.C. Hydro adds another "service charge" to its bills.

The best advice is probably to keep your ears open to news from the petroleum industry and electric utilities about newly-discovered bountiful supplies of energy — but keep a couple of cords of dry wood on hand too.

PQ Fights Mid-term Blahs

QUEBEC — The Parti Quebecois government has begun a long summer of political fence-mending in an effort to reverse its downward slide in the public opinion polls.

Back in their home ridings until the national assembly reconvenes Oct. 3, PQ members of the national assembly are still reeling from a Radio-Canada (CBC) poll showing them trailing the Quebec Liberal party led by Claude Ryan.

The poll says the Liberals would get 40 per cent of the vote if an election were held today, compared to 33 per cent for the PQ. It also shows that only 33 per cent of Quebecers would vote for the PQ's goal of sovereignty-association in a referendum.

Confused Quebecers

A revealing feature of the poll is that 49 per cent of Quebecers are so confused by sovereignty-association that they think Quebec would continue to send MPs to Ottawa if sovereignty-association was implemented.

Premier Rene Levesque admits he was "bowled over" by the poll's results. And his party is beginning a public relations campaign to improve its own image and better sell the idea of sovereignty-association. The poll confirms what many political observers have been saying for the last few months. The Levesque government has lost the momentum that carried it successfully through its first year of power.

The euphoria generated in much of Quebec by the defeat of the Bourassa government in November, 1976 was enough to sustain the new government through its first year. The PQ also kept the issues of language and independence in high profile and waged a successful war of nerves against the federal government.

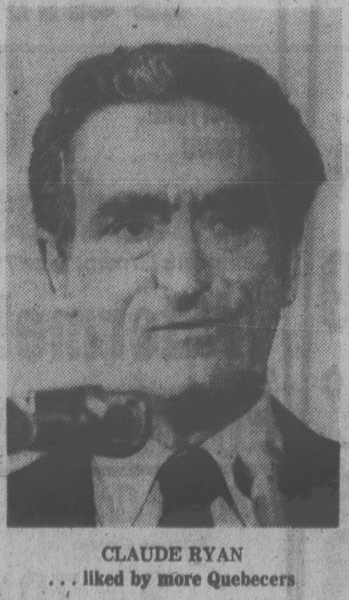
But the tide began to turn last winter when unemployment got worse, people began grumbling about automobile insurance reforms and the government gradually got the message that the economy, not the constitution, was uppermost in public concern.

The new orders from Premier Rene Levesque were to slow down on the pace of legislative reform and soften the government line on independence.

Indeed, the word "independence" has been dropped from the PQ's political vocabulary, replaced by "sovereignty-association" or "Confederation of sovereign states."

This reflects the prevailing government view that the best way to achieve independence is to not talk about it. The government feels it has a better chance of selling its product by appearing moderate and by eliminating public fear of radical political change.

But despite all the statements by PQ cabinet ministers that they don't want to "break up" Canada or that they want "a true confederation," it is clear that they have not backtracked from their original independence goals.



CLAUDE RYAN
. . . liked by more Quebecers

As Levesque explained recently, Quebec wants control of all taxation in the province and "if there's no taxation, there's no representation." That means a politically sovereign Quebec with no elected representatives in a federal parliament.

The only links with Canada the PQ contemplates would be economic — either a common market or a customs union.

But the government has done such a poor job of explaining sovereignty-association that the general public in Quebec is no better informed than they were when the PQ was elected.

There are signs that the PQ's strategy has back-fired badly. By downplaying independence, the government has lost the emotional fervor it needs to rally Quebecers to its side. You need issues and passion for an independence movement, and the PQ has run out of both.

The memo was sent to government and party officials by Doris Lussier, an actor who helped Rene Levesque found his first separatist party, the Mouvement Souverainete-Association, in 1968.

Just Mid-term Slide?

"Inside the PQ itself there is a troubling feeling of psychological paralysis," he wrote. "Many people are in a state of frustration bordering on resignation. . . They want a battle plan, with arms and ammunition."

Lussier concludes that the referendum must be won "at any price", including the use of public funds to promote the party's cause.

"We must blame everything bad in Quebec on the federal government," reads the strategy document. "We must make them the scapegoats for everything that goes wrong."

Lussier says massive advertising campaigns must be organized and party militants mobilized to combat the PQ's slide in the public opinion polls. He predicts the federal government and big business in Canada will spend millions to keep Quebec in Canada and will use the RCMP for dirty tricks to discredit the PQ's cause.

Publication of the memo was a source of considerable embarrassment to Levesque, who quickly dismissed Lussier as a simple party member with no decision-making power.

PQ officials are hoping that their fall in popularity is simply the typical mid-term slide that afflicts most governments.

Sidney Politics

The Sidney council meeting of June 19 was a prime example of huckster development versus local taxpayers. The town fathers will once more go down under the flimflam promises of the sweet smile and the big buck.

The decision to go ahead with the mobile home park has already been made, it seems. If more people were made aware of how their tax dollars were being spent at municipal levels, as is the case in Sidney, then they wouldn't be so apathetic about the tax situation that burdens them now.

Instead of a council of impartial peers, willing to hear the pros and cons of a proposed project, Sidney has a group of self-appointed decision makers who, for their own gains, seem to think the public need not have any say in the outcome of their own community. To quote the Colonist of June 20: "The public hearing was largely a formality, as municipal staff have been working for months with developers to arrange servicing for the project." In other words the decision was made before the vote was taken.

It might have looked as though there was 'strong support for the plan,' but since when did people like George Chatterton, residents of Brentwood Bay, former Central Saanich aldermen, mobile home dealers, prospective buyers from out of town and big money developers have more to say in Sidney affairs than local taxpayers? When only one petition against the scheme outnumbers the total attendance of the meeting, how then is there support for the plan?

It seems that the apathetic outlook of today's society has dimmed our view of what is "right" as opposed to what we are willing to "accept." The attitude of the mayor and council in this respect is appalling. Because they have been elected to office they think they can shove their outlook down the throats of the townsfolk without so much as a cough. Because of some fancy footwork and some clouded press we loose another valuable piece of farmland. — David A. Moran, 9499 Greenglade Road, Sidney.

(Editor's Note: Since Mr. Moran wrote this letter, Sidney council has agreed to hold a second public hearing on this matter.)

Sunday Openings

The growing practice of Sunday store openings is viewed with apathy by many people and we would like to point out the serious economic, legal and social implications of this practice.

Sunday openings increase costs. The money most consumers have to spend will not be increased by the mere fact that stores are open on Sundays. For the retailer then, Sunday openings mean higher costs for utilities, salaries and other overhead expenses, but with no increase in sales over those to be had in six days of the week, with perhaps one or two evenings open for the convenience of shoppers unable to shop during regular working hours.

To be sure, some retailers benefit when they are the first in their line of business to be open on Sunday, because they will draw some customers from other businesses which are not open. The practice is eventually self-defeating however, because their competitors, to remain in business, must also begin opening on Sunday. The result is a significant increase in sales-related costs to earn the same amount of money from the same number of customers as before.

Those unwilling to open on Sunday, particularly small family businesses and firms more sensitive to employee satisfaction than most large chain operations, can be forced out of business.

Not to be discounted are the environmental costs of heating, lighting, and transportation for the sake of something which is in the final analysis counterproductive and unnecessary.

The Sunday Observance Act of B.C. only allows work and services of an essential nature on Sundays. Like all legislation, this should be enforced.

Those who scoff at "blue laws" should consider for a moment the social impact of Sunday openings, particularly for those required to work on Sundays.

In the name of commerce, the one day of the week in which many families could be and do things together is being sacrificed. Regardless of one's philosophical or religious views, it is impossible not to admit that the family in modern North American society is in very serious trouble and that this is due, in no small part, to the fact that it is rarely together.

Even for those who are not part of a family, setting aside one day of the week for relaxation and reflection are essential.

We believe that this, a God-ordained need in Man, is the basis of the Sunday Observance Act, and we urge everyone not only to support this but to make their Sundays days when families are together, days when individuals can sit back and reflect to replenish their store of sanity in a world badly in need of it. — Dick Hordyk and Henry Kuyvenhoven, 4831 Elk Road.

A Cop-Out

With the exception of the mayor and Aldermen Mika and Cameron, Saanich council has once again displayed a shocking disregard for the rights of citizens to full information regarding the expenditure of public funds.

On June 19 council was presented with an excellent brief, submitted by a concerned citizen, which raised some very serious questions regarding the cost of work performed on the Blenkinsop Creek and the authorization for the work performed.

The report presented by staff in reply to the brief failed to answer any of the questions raised; in fact, it served only to raise even more questions and was written in typical bureaucratic jargon which even confused at least one of the aldermen.

First we learned of possible irregularities with scrap metal, then topsoil, now the Blenkinsop fiasco. One has to wonder what the next thing will be.

When will this council realize it has an obligation to keep its citizens fully informed and, at the slightest hint of irregularity in the expenditure of public funds, it has a duty to investigate? To reject the call for an investigation on the grounds of cost in a matter as serious as this can only be construed as a cop-out.

It is to be hoped that the citizens of Saanich will show their displeasure and concern at this latest episode in the next municipal election. — B. Taylor, 1830 Carnarvon Street.

Bill of Rights

Thank you for the extended editorial on the constitution in your issue of June 23 (Debate on Nuances). You have wisely emphasized the fact that it consists of far more than the BNA Act, although that is its most important component, and includes other statutes as well as customs and traditions. Since 1867 it has been amended many times, although one of its several claims to distinction is that no one knows for certain how many.

Forgive me if I point out one error in your essay. After a word of praise for John Diefenbaker's Bill of Rights, you add "even though that particular document had no standing in the courts whatsoever." It is true that it has no effect on provincial legislation, and also true that for some time the courts treated it rather cavalierly even as regards federal subjects. However, that has now changed and your attention is directed to the case of the Indian in the Northwest Territories [the Drybones Case — Ed.] who sued because he was discriminated against in the matter of drinking. Under the Indian Act he could not drink alcoholic beverages in his home while a white man was under no such restriction. The question found its way to the supreme court, which ruled that the Bill of Rights took precedence over that section of the Indian Act so Indians and non-Indians alike can now drink in their homes to their hearts' content. — F.L.P. Anderson, 409-2174 Cadboro Bay Road.

Energy Alternatives

A Hydro spokesman, Mr. Best, addressing a meeting of illuminating engineers, said that the people of Vancouver Island can expect brownouts and other shortages of electricity if environmental considerations prevent them from carrying out their power supply plans here.

At present these consist of two 500,000-volt lines from the mainland grid supplied by interior dams, and a nuclear reactor by 1993.

There is a great variety of renewable energy supply systems now operating throughout the world: wind, solar and biomass technologies. These are simple technologies, conceived and used, in some cases, for hundreds of years — such as wind and solar — and certainly for decades — such as methane and wood gas systems.

Hydro chooses to argue that these are supply options for the future, and attempts to convince us with threats such as these to accept nuclear power. It is only if they do nothing at all that we will be short of energy.

Bob Skelly, MLA for Alberni, has introduced a private member's bill to make Vancouver Island a separate energy district to develop all available renewable energy supply systems.

This would be important not only to us here on the Island, but to all the people of B.C. as a pilot project exploring alternative possibilities. Letters of support for this bill should be sent to Bill Bennett, present minister of energy, and Evan Wolfe, minister in charge of Hydro. — H. Kellington, Solar Alternatives to Nuclear Energy, Box 56, Crofton.

Tally-Ho

Once again the Tally-Ho has to fight and struggle for its existence in Victoria. Each year this fabulous tourist attraction is pushed around. Why?

I spent a number of years in the hospitality industry and the visitors never failed in their praise of Sealand, Butchart Gardens, the provincial museum and Tally-Ho. Of course, they enjoyed all our attractions but the above seemed to be the highlights and they added "Victoria is such a beautiful city, you are so lucky to live here."

I wonder if people are noticing that the tourist industry is becoming increasingly competitive. Any city that can capitalize on the tourist trade is doing so. Maybe we should take heed and instead of making it difficult for the people who are attracting visitors to our city by having invested in the numerous tourist enterprises, let's give them the backing they deserve. Think of the hours they put in.

To stand behind a desk and meet the visitors to our city does not take more than an average amount of grey matter, but I really feel that to have the power to pull the strings of the tourist industry — one week behind the desk and conversing with our tourists — would be an introduction that many people need.

I'd like to congratulate Grace McCarthy for her "super smile campaign," Victoria needs support and uplifting and can very well do without the individuals that pride themselves on criticizing.

Hold your place, Tally-Ho. You have been here for many, many years. Forgive Victoria for taking you for granted. You deserve every consideration and will get it, I'm sure. — Mrs. J. R. Check, 172 Maddock Ave. West.

The Conference Game: It's Canada's National Sport

There was a time, many years ago now, when ice hockey was thought to be the national game of Canada. Foreigners, in fact, had a mental picture of the average Canadian standing beside a rink holding a hockey stick in one hand and a puck in the other.

Times have changed. The national game of Canada is now conference-going. Canadians love to confer. They meet in the most unlikely places to discuss the most unlikely topics. Check into a hotel and you will find that you are sharing the fourth floor with members of the National Society of Sprong Adjusters who are meeting for three days to consider the past, present and future of the sprong. Wander into the depths of the northern woods and you will stumble upon a meeting of the National Society of Spoke Shavers dealing with that vexing question, Whither the Spoke?

If anyone doubts that conference-going has become our national sport, he should wander down almost any main street in the country any day at high noon. If he looks carefully he will note that at least half the men and women he encounters have lapel stickers featuring the printed notice "Hi! My name is . . ." with the wearer's name written in underneath.

These people are in town for a conference and in many cases at least half of them have been flown in from the opposite side of the country at public expense. The government has not yet created a ministry like Sports Canada to deal with conference-going, but various government agencies are already involved and the creation of a ministry of conferences cannot be far off.

Conferences on sport are very popular these days and those involved in even formerly neglected sports such as tetherball and mumbley-peg can expect, sooner or later, to be invited to Ottawa in order to confer with their co-enthusiasts from Newfoundland, the Northwest Territories and other regions. Be it ever so humble, it is worth a conference in Ottawa.

The arts conference has, of course, become a vital part of our national cultural life. At any given moment there must be at least half a dozen arts conferences going on in various parts of the nation. It has been suggested, in fact, that if all the people who talk about art actually started producing novels, plays, poems, pictures and string trios,

By CHRISTOPHER DAFOE
Vancouver Sun

Canada would find itself in the middle of a golden age. The fact that the golden age has not yet dawned indicates that most people feel that more talking is necessary before the great work can actually begin.

While many Canadians are actually engaged in the creation of artistic work, many more find that talking about the arts is more satisfying. There are people, in fact, who might be described as professional arts conference attenders. The Canada Council knows them well. The Canadian Conference of the Arts could not function without them. The Order of Canada is saving places for all of them.

A career in conference-going may not be as bad as it sounds. You get to stay in good hotels in Ottawa, Toronto, Vancouver and various resort towns such as Banff or St. Andrews-by-the-Sea. If you stick to it and keep your jaws flapping you may, in time, be asked to flap for Canada at an international arts conference in Paris, London or Cannes. For the art enthusiast with no actual talent of his own, it can be a full life.

My own career as an arts conference attender has been spotty. I suppose I could have worked my way to the top, but I somehow lacked the powers of jaw and backside that make for a really great conference-goer.

The two arts conferences I did attend were, I suspect, typical of the species. The first was held at a comfortable conference centre in the Gaspe in high summer. Various bodies, including mine, had been gathered in at great expense from various corners of the country to consider the question of audience development, always a winner at these affairs. The food was excellent and we played, I recall, a great deal of ping-pong. From time to time we assembed around the bar to consider the question at hand. Once or twice the debate became stormy as we considered methods of hauling in the audience (Cheaper tickets? Better productions? Door prizes? More nudity?) but the dinner gong always headed off any real violence. During the evenings we played a lot of scrabble.

We thought of producing a manifesto, but on the last afternoon we all went out to see Perce and Bonaventure Island and the manifesto was never written. There have probably been 10 subsequent conferences on audience development, and still no manifesto.

My second arts conference was held in Ottawa. The delegates represented every inhabited sector of the country. We talked for several days on that great question: What is the function of criticism? We also had a lot of excellent meals and attended a couple of operas at the National Arts Centre. All gratis, of course.

As far as I can recall, we failed to agree on the exact function of criticism, but a good time was had by all.

The arts conference business, I am happy to report, continues to boom. As soon as the snow melts every year they begin and they go on, seemingly without stint, until the last leaf falls. This summer jaws will flap on such topics as dance, mime, folk art, ethnic dancing, weaving and almost anything else you can do without getting arrested for indecent exposure. Conferences may even be held once again on those old chestnuts — audience development and the function of criticism. The arts conference, after all, has become a way of life. Those who can, do; those who can't, talk. And guess who pays most of the bills?

The Spoor of the Rich Trails Everywhere in the U.S.

By ROBERT LEKACHMAN

(A book review in the Washington Post of 'The Mellon Family' by Burton Hersh, and 'The Guggenheims' by John H. Davis. Lekachman teaches economics at Lehman College in New York and was once an ungrateful recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship)

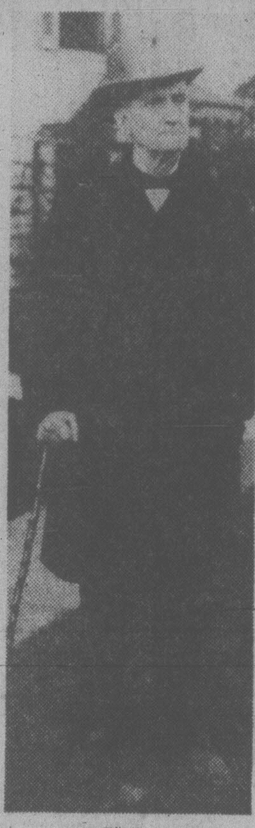
The United States, it barely needs the saying, is a plutocracy. With rare interludes, its politics are family squabbles among the propertied. Egalitarian fevers rise and fall but great fortunes pass on, ever amplified, from one generation to the next.

The tax reforms bravely announced by presidents sink out of sight and mind in Russell Long's Senate Finance Committee. Proposals to break up Exxon and its monstrous chums segue into discussions of the best way to subsidize exploration for new sources of gas and oil. Once in the White House, populist presidential candidates seek pitifully to win the confidence of the business community. The Senate is a millionaires' club. John D. (Jay) Rockefeller IV is governor of West Virginia, and Pierre duPont IV protects the family properties as chief executive of Delaware. The state of New York is slowly recovering from 15 years of the stewardship of Jay's uncle Nelson. As ever, money is the mother's milk of politics.

The spoor of the rich is everywhere. The Mellons first rendered Pittsburgh a smoky inferno and then decided to renovate the city. Washington's National Gallery is a Mellon bequest and New York's Guggenheim Museum a testimonial to a river family's belated patronage of the arts. Legions of scholars, writers, and artists have used or wasted fellowship years at the expense of the Guggenheim Foundation. Renaissance City in Detroit owes its glassy existence to Henry Ford II. A Circle Line tour of Manhattan is a Rockefeller montage — the World Trade Centre, Chase Manhattan Plaza, the United Nations, the Cloisters, Riverside Church, and the Interchurch Centre. Other Rockefeller monuments are a few blocks inland — Rockefeller Centre, the Museum of Modern Art, and Lincoln Centre.

Like them or loathe them, attention simply must be paid to our centi-millionaires and the occasional billionaire. There's the difficulty. How does one cope with dynastic histories in which are mingled economics, politics, social behavior, philanthropy, art collection, and the personalities of the dynasts themselves? The ideal royal biographer should share the blue blood, possess a keen intellect and the training of a professional historian, and enjoy robust emotional health.

In the absence of such, students of the rich have pursued various strategies. One of the more prosaic but sensible is to concentrate upon the methods by which the fortunes have been accumulated and the impact of those methods upon national development. Historians of the quality of the late Allan Nevins have focused upon Standard Oil of New Jersey rather than upon the first John D. Rockefeller. Daniel Boorstein's trilogy, The Americans, approximates business history more nearly than conventional biography or political history.



THOMAS MELLON
. . . first the inferno

An alternative and more entertaining approach is that of the social chronicler, in the mode of Stephen Birmingham's Our Crowd, a friendly but perceptive examination of such prominent Jewish families as the Lehmans and Schiffs. The rich in the hands of a master like Thorstein Veblen are the materials of social satire and social theory. Veblen's great essay, The Theory of the Leisure Class, deployed its author's talent for polysyllabic invective in the service of his theory of irreconcilable conflict between the frivolities of business enterprise and the stern moralities of the engineer and technician.

Burton Hersh, author of a book on Edward Kennedy, and John H. Davis, biographer of The Bouviers, both organize their badly written tomes around the personalities of several generations of Mellons and Guggenheims. Even if their literary skills were of a higher order and their command of American economic history stronger, their books would probably have been unsuccessful. For, with infrequent exceptions like that high-spirited collector of men and paintings, Peggy Guggenheim, the members of both families — and the males in particular — are dull types decade after decade. The obsessive pursuit of money simply does not enhance latent powers of epigram, poetry, or intellectual speculation.

Davis, who is more sympathetic to his huge cast of characters than Hersh, endeavors to cope with his paragons of pelf by lingering as long as he can on Peggy Guggenheim, the archaeological adventures of Iris Love, the publishing career of Roger Straus, and the long list of the eminent who got Guggenheim awards at critical points in their creative lives. But neither Simon Guggenheim — who came to the U.S. in 1847 from a Swiss Jewish ghetto — his son Meyer, or his grandson, Daniel, the architect of the family's near-monopoly of smelting and mining, comes to life.

Daniel especially deserves more attention. His handling of labor relations featured armed thugs, strike-breakers, and frequent invocation of state militias and federal troops. To pass this strenuous performance off as no more than conformity to conventional standards is akin to excusing criminals because of the bad company they keep.

Wherever he can be, Davis is more enthusiastic than his evidence warrants. Harken to this eulogy: "The magnificent conception with which Simon Guggenheim, Carroll Wilson, Frank Aydelotte, and Henry Allen Moe were seized exemplifies the very best of American civilization in the twentieth century." As a description of the Guggenheim Foundation — particularly in recent years when awards have flowed in increasing numbers to established writers and professors — this is overheated. As a makeweight for the human and environmental devastation inflicted by earlier Guggenheims in their march to financial empire, it is distinctly inadequate.

Hersh, by contrast, doesn't much care for the Mellons. Under the circumstances, one wonders at the self-discipline which carried him through interviews with 111 men and women, including at least a score of surviving Mellons, not to mention a fair quantity of primary and secondary source matter. Perhaps to relieve his own boredom, Hersh uses the language of physical depreciation to put down his nonheroes and nonheroines. Here are some random samples: "Sour news — that rash of tormented country banks now prickled like white spots across their shrunken Mellon tongue." Or, "The elderly banker's neat little peaked ears lay back very flat by this time; those well-seamed hackles were stiff with apprehension." And, "His brows are taut with controlled repugnance."

Such linguistic lapses might be tolerable, though barely, if Hersh had succeeded in telling at least one of the major Mellon stories. The most important is some coherent account of just how the Mellons made their millions and what effect their methods had on the rest of us. Scarcely less valuable would have been an intelligible interpretation of Andrew Mellon's long management of the Treasury during the dreary Republican administrations of the 1920s and early 1930s.

One suspects, but without much help from Hersh, that one major achievement was institutionalization of tax preferences for the wealthy, an innovation that has survived the New Deal, Fair Deal, New Frontier, and Great Society.

Tiresomely long as each is, neither volume does justice to the size of its subject. After reading them, one is none the wiser about how these two families — instead of any number of equally greedy rivals — won the grand prizes of a rapacious capitalism. Let me end on a sympathetic note. As seems to be typical of the latecomers in highly successful families, many members of these two tribes led unhappy, desultory, even wasted lives. Their troubles are excellent argument for confiscatory inheritance levies. No heir should be compelled to bear the burden of great wealth. Free at last, he might feel better. Almost certainly, he would be more useful to his fellow citizens.

Swallows Nice To Have Around

Angus Shortt has been on my mind a lot these past few days. Angus was one of my old birding buddies back in Manitoba. Aside from being a pretty fair hand with brush and palette, Angus has another claim to fame: he is one of the few Manitobans ever to see a Violet-green Swallow — in Manitoba. And that's why he's been on my mind lately.

You see, a pair of Violet-green Swallows has set up shop in a neighbor's garage and in their daily activities around the nest, those swallows and I frequently cross paths, and they remind me of Angus and his accomplishment.

Seeing a Violet-green Swallow on the west coast, or just about anywhere in British Columbia for that matter, is no great challenge, but to spot one among migrating swallows in Manitoba — 700 or 800 miles from where it should be — is something.

Only someone with an artist's eye for detail could have done it, and Angus had an eye for detail.

But I really wanted to talk about Violet-green Swallows today, not Angus Shortt; I'll get back to him some other day.

This is the second year the swallows have nested in that garage and in both years they've chosen the tiny opening under the peak of the shake roof for their nesting site. It's not the kind of spot I'd pick; it's small, cramped, and must be as hot as blazes on a sunny day. But the swallows like it. Last year they brought off four little ones and, from a swallow's point of view, that alone makes the location attractive.

I'm sure many of you have swallows nesting around the place. I'm also sure — unless they're Barn Swallows and nesting where the mess is a nuisance — you're getting as much enjoyment out of having them around as I am with those Violet-greens.

Unlike most kinds of birds, which, if you can coax them to nest around the place, will remain relatively inconspicuous during their stay, swallows make their presence known in many endearing ways. They sit on wires and chatter amicably; they perform wild, exciting aerial chases which seem to have no other purpose than releasing pent-up energy; and they accept our presence without animosity. In short, swallows are nice to have around.

Swallows are unlike other birds — particularly insect-eating birds — in another more subtle way. Feeding as they do on flying insects, swallows are somewhat more at the mercy of the elements than those kinds of birds that seek their insect food in the foliage of trees. So, in cool, windy weather — when flying insects are at a premium — swallows, particularly their nestlings, go on short rations. And, if the food shortage is prolonged, they die.

The swallows get around this threat to the continuance of their line by being prolific producers. They not only have large clutches — five or six eggs being an average — they don't hesitate to go for a second clutch if, for any reason, the first one fails. Sometimes, even when the first clutch is a success and the young are got off early, they'll still have a second clutch. Barn Swallows have been known to go for three clutches; which sometimes means they'll have young in the nest when the first gales of autumn send the adults south.

I have a feeling that, after an early start at the beginning of June, the Violet-greens next door marked time through the rest of the month and are only just now finishing the job started then. If so, they've timed it nicely because young born during the cooler weather of June might have been given short-shrift; those born now should do much better.

But, since I don't pry deeply into their affairs, I can only watch those swallows and speculate on their progress. And remember Angus Shortt, who proved that Manitobans don't always have to come to British Columbia to see Violet-green Swallows.

CANADIAN LITTLE LEAGUE
1979 NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP
2411 - 15th AVENUE SOUTH LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA
T1K 0X7

June 1978

To the Business and Professional People of Victoria

Ladies and Gentlemen:

In the months to come, more than 85,000 youths between the ages of 8 to 18, from all across Canada, will be competing in team play-offs, to determine which teams will be in the finals of the Canadian Little League Baseball Championships to be held in Lethbridge, Alberta, in August, 1979. There, these teams will be vying for the highest honor their League has to offer; an opportunity to represent their town or city, their province, and this Nation, in the World Series Little League Baseball, to be hosted in Williamsport, Pennsylvania, later, in the same year.

To compliment this prestigious occasion we are excited about a very special project; the production of our first, Deluxe souvenir Programme. A copy will be issued free to every member of each team competing in the finals, and a complimentary copy will be provided to every display advertiser. The remaining programmes will be made available to everyone attending the Championships at a minimal sum.

Our programme will be a beautifully designed first class product consisting of a full sized 8½" X 11" magazine format, with professional printing on coated, high gloss stock. Full color photographs will be profusely illustrated throughout the programme to enhance its attractiveness and value even more. Unquestionably, this will be a programme which you'll be proud to be a part of; a publication you'll be pleased to have helped make happen, and finally, a vehicle that will do you and your advertising dollar more than justice.

Your support of our programme is still another step in making this province a finer place in which to live, by encouraging our youth to participate, compete and excel in sporting activities of every nature.

Within the next few days one of our advertising staff will be in touch with you to determine your advertising requirements for insertion in our programme. This letter is to inform you and to encourage your participation. May we "Thank you" in advance for any courtesies which you can extend to us, for your interest in our programme and in the youths who play Little League Baseball in Canada.

Sincerely,

Sam Serbu

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Sharp losses in oil issues sent the Toronto stock market down almost two points in moderate mid-afternoon trading.

Husky Oil Ltd. was down 9 to $39½ a share on the sale of 33,548 shares after recovering from a drop of $35½ following its resumption about 11:30 a.m. Trading starts were co-ordinated on the Toronto Stock Exchange, the Montreal Stock Exchange and the American Stock Exchange at New York.

A halt was issued at Wednesday's opening for news that Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd. has decided to hold the line at its 35-per-cent acquisition. However, AGTL president Robert Blair said the company reserves the right to defend its position as principal holder should another company try to take over the Calgary-based firm.

AGTL Class A shares were unchanged at $14⅝ on the sale of 29,988 shares.

Alliance Building Corp. Ltd. declined 35 cents to $4.65 on 6,400 shares following its opening resumption. Talcorp Associates Ltd., which holds 63-per-cent control, has announced negotiations with a "substantial Canadian company" for its possible sale.

A trading halt issued at the opening continued in shares of Foodex Systems Ltd. pending results of a shareholders meeting. In Thursday's trading, Foodex was unchanged at $8½ a share.

Among other industrials, Campeau Corp. B dropped 1 to $10, Asbestos Corp. ¾ to $44, Pop Shoppes International ½ to $6⅜, Ashland Oil Canada ½ to $22¾ and Livingston Industries ½ to $25½.

Canadian Reserve Oil and Gas slipped ⅜ to $9⅝, Great Canadian Oil Sands ¼ to $6¾ and Canada Southern Petroleum ⅛ to $5⅜.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were mixed in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2.30 p.m. was 353,000 shares, compared with 315,500 shares traded up to the same time Thursday.

London

LONDON (CP) — Hopes of relaxed dividend controls sent the London stock market moderately higher near the close of light trading.

The Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 460.8, up 3.5.

Whonnock

Whonnock Industries Ltd. announced that it has purchased the sawmill and all the shares of Bay Forest Products Ltd., a private Vancouver company.

Purchase price was not disclosed and Whonnock president Chester Johnson said the acquisition is subject to regulatory approvals.

The purchase is being financed internally through long-term bank borrowings, Johnson said.

Johnson said the acquisition will strengthen Whonnock's operation and increase its lumber production by 140 million board feet and sales by more than $30 million annually. Bay employs about 240 persons and will increase the Whonnock work force to about 1,600. Whonnock has a wide variety of sawmill, cedar and logging interests.

OK Helicopters

Increased activity overseas has boosted revenues of Okanagan Helicopter Ltd. in the first four months of 1978, although domestic earnings have remained static, compared with the same period last year, John W. Pitts, company president, said.

Pitts told the company's annual meeting the continued depressed state of off-shore and northern oil and gas exploration in Canada means the company must continue to seek overseas employment for most of the medium and heavyweight helicopters in its 130-machine fleet.

Okangan had net earnings of $1.2 million on revenues of $36.5 million in 1977, compared with earnings of $1.6 million on revenues of $33.2 million in 1976.

Pitts said improved earnings in the first four months of this year resulted from inclusion of revenues from Associated Helicopters Ltd., of Edmonton, purchased last year, and expanded overseas activity. He did not reveal 1978 earnings figures.

CAE Ind.

CAE Industries Ltd.'s financial position is looking better and the company expects improved revenue and profit this year, Douglas Reekie, president and chief executive, told the annual meeting.

Reekie said CAE had earnings of $4.2 million or $2 a share before extraordinary items for the year ended March 31, up from $3.7 million or $1.75 a year earlier.

After the extraordinary loss of $2.5 million resulting from the write-off of expenses related to the manufacture of road graders at subsidiary Northwest Industries Ltd., final profit was $1.7 million or 81 cents.

Delinquencies Up in B.C.

TORONTO (CP) — The over-all delinquency rate for single-family home mortgages in Canada declined to 2.30 per cent during the three month period ended March 31 from 2.54 per cent in the preceding quarter, the Mortgage Bankers Association of America said Thursday.

The Washington-based association said the rate declined in all provinces except British Columbia, which had an over-all increase of .18 per cent as a result of an increased delinquency rate for convention loans.

Rates for short-term delinquencies — loans one and two instalments past due — caused the decline in the over-all delinquency rate, the group said.

Rates for long-term delinquencies — loans three or more instalments past due — for both National Housing Act and conventional loans showed increases of .13 per cent and .01 per cent respectively.

Although the over-all rates declined from those recorded in December, they were .07 per cent greater than in the first quarter a year ago, the association said.

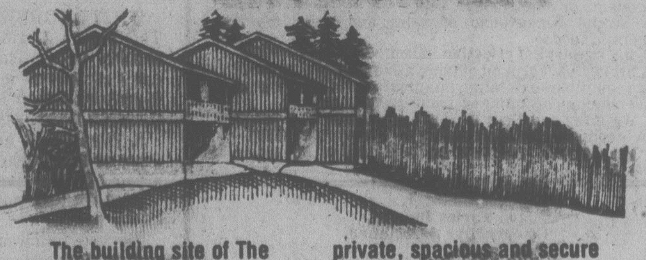
MUCH CARE HAS BEEN TAKEN TO PRESERVE THE ENVIRONMENT



The building site of The Sea Haven on Admirals is exceptional. Much care has been taken to preserve the environment and take advantage of the natural beauty — a setting of over four acres, spreading through trees and down across rock outcroppings, to within a stone's throw of the harbour.

The Sea Haven townhouse complex is a strikingly modern development — private, spacious and secure — built with an eye to the needs of modern living. Many of the 18 home units now for sale — with two or three bedrooms and several alternative floor plans — provide easy access to natural and professionally landscaped common areas. And many have a harbour view, where ships of all sizes may be observed through every season of the year.

Macdonald Conflict Probe Urged by MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative Otto Jelinek asked Thursday for an investigation into what he said was former finance minister Donald Macdonald's role in obtaining federal assistance for a subsidiary of the McDonnell-Douglas Corp.

Macdonald resigned as federal finance minister last September and resigned his Commons seat March 1. He was named to the corporation board of directors in late May.

Jelinek, MP for High Park-Humber Valley, did not get the unanimous consent required to introduce a motion in the Commons calling for a committee investigation.

In a letter to Allan MacEacEachen, deputy prime minister, Jelinek said:

"I have in my possession documented evidence which indicates quite clearly the fact that Donald Macdonald, former minister of finance and a newly-appointed director of McDonnell-Douglas Corp., was directly involved in negotiations with Douglas Aircraft of Canada Ltd. (a wholly-owned subsidiary of McDonnell-Douglas) regarding federal financial assistance to that corporation in the form of interest-free loans and direct capital assistance amounting in excess of $16 million."

Jelinek said in the letter, which he made public, that Macdonald was involved in negotiations after his resignation from the cabinet but while he was still a member of Parliament.

However, Jelinek added, "it is quite clear that the proposal received a negative reception from senior officials of industry, trade and commerce until Mr. Macdonald was appointed to the board, at which time he apparently used his former position to have the corporation's bid approved."

Jelinek said in the Commons he raised the matter "in view of the current and topical concern in conflict-of-interest guidelines and the government's apparent death-bed conversion occasioned by pressure of the opposition and public opinion."

Ban on French In Skies Valid

OTTAWA (CP) — The Federal Court of Appeal has ruled that an Aug. 27, 1976 federal order limiting the use of French in Canadian airspace is valid.

"In my view, the fact that a language is official does not necessarily mean that it may be used under all circumstances," Mr. Justice Louis Pratte wrote in a judgment upholding the order.

The court ruled 3-to-0 against Association Des Gens De L'Air Du Quebec, a Quebec aviation association. They argue, among other things, that the federal government did not have the power to pass the order and that it is contrary to the Official Languages Act.

The court's ruling was made public Thursday. The Quebec group can seek to appeal it to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The orders officially prohibited the use of French at the busy Montreal-area airports of Dorval, Mirabel and St. Hubert. Bilingual communications are allowed at smaller Quebec airports, but only for visual flight, not instrument flight rules.

Gens de L'Air has argued that the Official Languages Act makes English and French equal and therefore French can be spoken by pilots and air controllers.

Wrote Justice Pratte:

"The fact that it was more dangerous to speak French in the air than English would be a circumstances that would justify treating the two languages differently."

His decision was supported by justices Gerald Le Dain and G. M. Hyde, a deputy judge of the appeal court.

It is the second court defeat on the issue for the Gens de L'Air. Early last year, Mr. Justice Louis Marceau of the Federal Court trial division, said he could find no grounds for ruling the order invalid. Marceau is a former Quebec ombudsman.

The order was issued about two months after the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association went on strike to protest use of French over Quebec. That association said English was the international language of aviation and that use of French was dangerous.

Pearson Out-Yukon

WHITEHORSE (CP) — The Yukon Legislative assembly voted Thursday to ask the federal government to remove Arthur Pearson as Commissioner of the Yukon.

A resolution asking for Pearson's removal passed by a vote of six-to-five.

Pearson had no comment on the action.

The vote followed the resignation Wednesday of Yukon Education Minister Dan Lang, who said Pearson had breached the trust of the Yukon assembly executive.

Lang said the breach occured during the Stratton inquiry.

Lang told members of the legislative assembly that the commissioner either deliberately withheld information or lied to exectuive committee members.

Surgeon To Pay $2,400

MONTREAL (CP) — A man and wife were awarded $2,400 damages in Quebec Superior Court Thursday after complaining that a sterilization operation did not prevent the wife from becoming pregnant with her 11th child.

Chief Justice Jules Deschenes held that Dr. Antonio Moreau was negligent and liable for damages because he failed to follow proper technique for the 1971 operation on Germain Cataford of Oka, west of Montreal.

Mrs. Cataford followed her family doctor's advice to have the operation, but became pregnant four months after it was performed. She gave birth to the child in September, 1972.

Mr. Justice Deschenes said the professional fault of the defendant is proven beyond the shadow of a doubt."

Key Changes Set In Trudeau's Staff

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is making several key changes in his 90-member staff, appointing a new foreign affairs adviser to replace Ivan Head, adding an assistant principal secretary and hiring a new executive assistant.

Sources in the prime minister's office says Jacques S. Roy, former chairman of the policy planning secretariat at the external affairs department, has become the new head, replacing the long-time Trudeau associate who was made president of the International Development Research Centre earlier this year.

There has been some friction between Trudeau's office and the external affairs department in the past. Some civil servants complained that Head usurped a role that properly belongs to department bureaucrats.

Meanwhile, Michel Rochon, 33, head of Trudeau's correspondence section, for the last two years, has been named assistant principal secretary, working under James Coutts.

Rochon has assumed responsibility for administrative aspects of Trudeau's office, leaving Coutts, 40, free to devote himself to the job he likes best—politics.

Rochon took the job temporarily earlier this year to give Coutts more time to plan a summer election. When the election plan was abandoned, his move was made official.

Finally, Allan Lufty, a Montreal lawyer and former special assistant to Justice Minister Ron Basford, will replace Trudeau's current executive assistant, Robert Murdoch, Aug. 1.

Murdoch, a Vancouver lawyer, has decided to take a job in Paris after spending five years as Trudeau's schedule keeper.

You won't know it's a diesel when you pull out to pass. Just when you pull up to the pumps.

Molybdenum-coated piston rings for longer engine life and low oil consumption
Six-bearing forged steel crankshaft is machined to aircraft tolerances

For over 40 years, practical motorists have been attracted to the Mercedes-Benz diesels for their mileage, maintenance economy and legendary durability.

Since the introduction of our unique, fuel-injected 5-cylinder diesel engine, there's a new reason to buy a diesel: performance.

This diesel is not turtle-paced or timid. It passes with power; it whispers at speed. On the autobahn in Germany, it cruises comfortably at 130 kph. Here in Canada, it will accelerate to highway speed without effort and maintain that speed all day long.

But there's more to performance than speed. And more to a Mercedes-Benz than an efficient, responsive engine.

Features you won't find in any other diesel

At Mercedes-Benz, we never forget the most important element in a car's design: the driver. That's why every Mercedes-Benz has luxury, safety and performance features you won't find in any other diesel.

Drive over a very rough road surface and experience the world's most advanced suspension system. No jostle. No vibration. No jerking of the wheel.

Drive in city traffic and appreciate the precise power-assisted steering system. The highest praise of this system may be that it seldom feels like power steering. You never have to fight the wheel but you retain that all-important "feel of the road".

Apply the brakes and you'll be reassured by the solid force generated by four disc brakes and the straight line tracking assisted by zero-offset steering. The latter system prevents hard braking on broken road surfaces from jostling the car off course. Introduced in 1972, it's now standard equipment on all Mercedes-Benz automobiles.

Inside a Mercedes-Benz you have a complete array of security and convenience features within easy reach. All are standard equipment. Such things as cruise control with a "memory", bi-level climate control, power windows, AM/FM stereo with power antenna, central locking system and 3-speed windshield wipers.

The remarkable new 300CD

The newest diesel from Mercedes-Benz is the extraordinary 300CD coupe—a limited production two-door automobile with five-cylinder diesel power. It combines thrift with elegance, performance with common sense.

Of course, common sense is what diesel technology is all about. Its economy goes far beyond good mileage.

Whether you choose the attractive 300D sedan or the classic new coupe there are practical advantages inherent with this advanced diesel technology.

No spark plugs to change. No carburetor to adjust. No distributor to replace. Conventional "tune ups" are simply not required.

With the added cylinder, Mercedes-Benz has kept this practicality while adding smoothness and performance. You need only test drive it to appreciate it.

Engineered like no other car in the world.

The engineers are the heroes at Mercedes-Benz and they have but one objective: it is to build safe, responsive, practical cars—with as few imperfections as possible.

This philosophy puts engineering ahead of petty economies and precludes the mass production of inexpensive cars. It allows little room for compromise or for shortcuts; just the pursuit of engineering excellence.

Exports, Imports Drop in May

OTTAWA (CP) — The merchandise trade surplus with other countries tripled to $343 million during May from $127 million in April, Statistics Canada reported today.

Both exports and imports of products fell from April levels.

The government agency says that exports to the United States — the key trade partner — were down by 15 per cent to $2.84 billion from record levels in April.

Exports of Canadian-made products to other foreign countries fell by 11½ per cent to $1.22 billion in May, after a decline of about three per cent a month earlier.

Finance Minister Jean Chretien said earlier this week, in a speech to the Conference Board in Canada, that improvement in the foreign trade balance is a key to economic recovery.

But Statistics Canada says that aside from small gains in exports of natural gas, chemicals and agricultural machinery, there was a widespread decline in exports of other commodities during May. Shipments of wheat, metallic ores, non-ferrous metals, crude oil, newsprint, petroleum products, steel and motor vehicles and parts all were lower.

However, imports also declined. The value of imports from the United States was down by 19 per cent to $2.64 billion, following a sharp increase a month earlier. Similarly, imports from overseas countries fell nearly as sharply after an April rise.

Most of the decline in imports from overseas countries was concentrated among the nine-member European Economic Community.

Imports from Japan increased by about six per cent, but from all the other overseas countries there was a fall of about two per cent.

Except for small increases in imports of coal and crude oil, there were extensive reductions in May imports. Food commodities, industrial materials, machinery, motor vehicle and parts imports all were lower than in April. Auto products imports alone were down by nearly $300 million during May from month-earlier levels.

The May surplus figure continues a trend of surpluses so far this year. It follows surpluses of $340 million in January, $272 million in February, $771 million in March, $127 million in April.

But while Canada regularly records surpluses in merchandise trade, it usually loses in foreign travel. Canadians spend more abroad than tourists visiting here do.

$2M Mackerel Subsidy

OTTAWA (UPI) — The federal government will purchase $2 million worth of canned mackerel under a program designed to subsidize the maritime and Quebec fishing industry and contribute to Canadian food aid to developing countries, Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc said Thursday.

In addition to providing high-protein food for people in developing countries, the purchase will ensure Canadian mackerel fishermen a continuing market.

When a mine like Endako profits, B.C. benefits.

When the Endako Mine opened in 1965, the nearby community of Fraser Lake was revitalized. Formerly a tiny village, Fraser Lake today is a modern town of 1,500 people…and it's happening because the mine is a well-run, profitable operation.

"Profit" is a key word when assessing a mine. When an operation is profitable, there's money for expansion, for replacing worn-out equipment …and of course, for repaying the shareholders whose investment made the mine possible. Profits also aid the environment, by helping to pay for the reclamation work carried out by a mine like Endako. Equally important, profits help to finance exploration, which leads to new mines and new jobs.

The most obvious benefits from a profitable mine are found in towns which depend directly on mining. Towns such as Fraser Lake, Trail, Kimberley, Granisle and Peachland. In every case, the proximity of a viable mining operation has led to growth and prosperity. But apart from the people who benefit directly through jobs in mining, there's a tremendous indirect benefit to many more people. That's because for every job in mining, there are an estimated three more jobs in B.C. that depend on mining—jobs in service industries and supply companies.

Considering the enormous capital investment needed to put a mine into operation, realizing a profit is no simple task. It requires sound planning, efficient management and a skilled work force. Dedicated people have helped Endako become Canada's largest producer of molybdenum, providing direct employment for nearly 650 people and indirectly supporting roughly three times that number. Endako is one of many B.C. mines utilizing a natural resource in a way that benefits our whole province.

Cuba Plans Aid Boost To Africa Liberation

LUSAKA (AP) — Cuba will increase its material support to black nationalist liberation movements in southern Africa, Cuban Foreign Minister Jose Fernandez de Cassio said Thursday. He did not specify what the support would entail.

Fernandez, completing a two-day visit to Zambia, spoke to reporters before departing for Mozambique. He said it is Havana's view that the liberation movements in Rhodesia and South-West Africa should be given more support.

"During my talks with my counterpart here, we also agreed that more material support should be given to the liberation movements so that they can attain full independence soon and start exercising their sovereign rights."

He declined to say how much material aid Havana would give.

"We don't publicize such matters," he said.

Fernandez said he met with representatives of both the Zimbabwe African People's Union (ZAPU), which is fighting to remove Rhodesia's biracial interim government led by Prime Minister Ian Smith. He said he also spoke with representatives from the South-West Africa People's Organization, which is fighting to remove South-West Africa, also known as Namibia, from South African control.

The U.S. state department has estimated Cuba has between 38,000 and 39,000 troops and 6,000 civilians — medical specialists and other non-diplomatic personnel — stationed in 13 African countries.

About 17,000 Cubans are in Ethiopia, where they have joined in Ethiopia's efforts to drive Somali forces from the Ogaden region. U.S. officials also estimate up to 25,000 Cubans are in Angola, helping the Marxist government in that country battle guerrilla insurgents.

Seventy-five Cuban military advisers are reported to be training ZAPU guerrillas at camps in Zambia near the Rhodesian border, a report the Zambian government has denied.

Fernandez accused countries that have criticized Cuba's role in Africa of trying to divide the black African liberation movement.

"When our position is being questioned, what is really being questioned is the aim of the movement," Fernandez said. "We do not interfere in the internal affairs of African countries. We are in Africa only by invitation.

"We don't own mines, we don't own land, we don't want to have property or industries in Africa. We are not acting in Africa to support any society that tends to discriminate."

War Clouds In Africa

WINDHOEK, South-West Africa (AP) — Soviet support for black nationalist guerrillas fighting to take over this South African-administered territory is increasing and might lead to full-scale conventional war, the commander of South African forces here said Thursday.

In an interview in the newspaper Windhoek Advertiser, Maj.-Gen. Jan Geldenhuys said black guerrillas based in Angola—this territory's northern neighbor—are equipped and trained in infantry warfare and now are receiving artillery training as well. He said more sophisticated weaponry is involved, but he did not elaborate.

Geldenhuys said the Soviets have established a base in Angola to train guerrilla armies fighting in Rhodesia and South-West Africa, also known as Namibia.

U.S. Approves Fishing Terms

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Senate formally ratified 1978 Canada-U.S. reciprocal fishing arrangements on Thursday, three weeks after those bilateral arrangements broke down.

Senator Ted Kennedy (Dem. Mass), however, issued a statement expressing his hope that the ratification "will be perceived in Canada as a friendly gesture" that will "reduce the level of tension" between the two countries and facilitate agreement.

The reciprocal fishing arrangements were in effect for several months, in anticipation of Senate approval, but a complex series of court cases and diplomatic disagreements led Canada to order U.S. fishing boats out of Canadian waters three weeks ago.

The United States countered against Canadian fishermen, ending reciprocal arrangements while negoators from the two countries continued to try to reach a settlement.

Ratification of the Canada-U.S. fishing agreement does not allow Canadian fishermen to return to U.S. waters, but merely authorizes Canadians to fish in U.S. waters if the U.S. state department and Canada again reach agreement.

Ratification, however, removes one potential problem that handicapped earlier talks. U.S. west-coast fishermen were once on the point of obtaining a court order barring Canadian boats from U.S. waters on the grounds that there had then been no ratification.

A spokesman for Senator Kennedy said ratification also means "the decision now is up to the Canadians as to whether they will go along with this."

Woman Executed Moro?

ROME (AP) — Newspapers say ballistics tests indicate former premier Aldo Moro may have been killed by a woman firing with an "unsteady hand."

Initial results of the tests show Moro was struck with 10 bullets from a Czechoslovak-made Skorpion automatic pistol and an 11th, possibily administered as a "coup de grace,", say the Corriere della Sera and La Repubblica.

The bullets, although fired at point-blank range, were spread over a wide area of Moro's chest. This would indicate they were fired by someone with an unsteady hand, possibly a woman, the reports say.

Epilepsy Breakthrough

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Scientists reported Thursday that they have made a breakthrough in epilepsy research by finding a way to induce the disease in rats by using a natural component of human blood.

This development opens new possibilities for investigating ways to prevent the disorder, said members of a team of scientists affiliated with the Veterans Administration Hospital and the University of Florida College of Medicine.

About one-half of all epilepsy beginning in adulthood is the result of a head injury or stroke in which cerebral blood vessels burst and bleed.

The scientists said it took one injection of a minute amount of iron to cause chronic, localized epilepsy in the animals. Seizures occurred in most of the 65 rats injected.

They say the new technique provides a means for evaluating drugs in an attempt to manipulate brain chemistry and prevent post-traumatic epilepsy.

LONDON — Twiggy, the British-born number one cover girl and model of the 60s, is expecting a baby in November, it was reported Thursday.

Her pencil-thin figure and very short hair set the style of the period with all ready-to-wear designers.

Twiggy now lives in the United States with her American husband, actor Michael Witney, and plans a new career in movies.

SOUTHBURY, Conn. — Carl Bixby, a writer who created the long-running daytime radio drama Life Can Be Beautiful and later wrote the television soap opera Edge of Night, died at his home Thursday. He was 83.

In the 1920s Bixby worked in the New York City area for an advertising agency and suggested the phrase "Good to the Last Drop" as the slogan for Maxwell House Coffee.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Comedian Don Adams' 26-year-old wife is suing him for divorce because she says he is a chronic gambler who loses up to $8,000 a month.

OREM, Utah — Tammy Wynette, the country music singer, is in Utah this week getting ready for her fifth marriage and taping a Roy Clark television special.

Miss Wynette, 36, and record producer-song writer George Richey, 42, obtained blood tests this week for their wedding in Jupiter, Fla., on July 6.

CHICAGO — An Illinois state appeals court Thursday annulled a 13-year marriage on the grounds that the wife lied to the husband before the marriage by claiming she was a widow. James Wolfe, 48, a Roman Catholic, said his wife Judith not only said her first husband Thomas Haffner was dead, but she also produced a death certificate. But Haffner appeared before the court to prove in person that he still is alive.

DEL MAR, Calif. — Nobody rushed to shake Allen Stacey's hand after he set a new world record for tossing cow chips during the Southern California Exposition.

Stacey's mighty heave of about 64 metres surpassed the record and allows him to compete in the World Championship Cow Chip Chucking Contest next April, in Beaver, Okla.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Country music singer Donna Fargo, hospitalized in Santa Barbara, Calif., with peripheral neuritis, may be disabled for three months, officials said Thursday.

Her illnes "has resulted in weakness and instability which makes it unsafe for her to perform on stage," said her physician, Dr. Larry Smith.

OAKLAND — A man walked into Crocker National Bank and handed a teller a note that said: "Put money in bag."

"Is there any particular reason why I should?" asked the unidentified teller.

"If you don't, I'll walk out the door," replied the blonde man, who wore gold-rimmed glasses and a tan leisure suit in addition to an embarrased smile.

"Go ahead. Be my guest," replied the teller.

And, police reported, the would-be bandit did just that.

TOKYO — Michiaki Suma, former Japanese ambassador to Tanzania and Malaysia, was appointed ambassador to Canada succeeding Yasuhiko Nara, the foreign ministry announced today.

VIENNA — Britain's Princess Anne will be among a small circle of royal guests at the wedding of Prince Michael of Kent in Vienna's Town Hall today, a spokesman for the prince said Thursday.

The princess, daughter of Queen Elizabeth, will arrive with other relatives of the 35-year-old prince, who renounced his right as 16th in line to the British throne in order to marry Baroness Marie Christine von Reibnitz, 33, a Roman Caholic.

The civil ceremony marriage will be the first registry office wedding in the British Royal Family since the Duke of Windsor married Wallis Warfield Simpson in Paris 41 years ago after abdicating as King Edward VIII.

RECITAL PLANNED

Victoria-born pianist Robert Holliston will team up with Sonja Delevoryas, principal violist of the Victoria Symphony in 1977, for a recital at the Greater Victoria Art Gallery, Sunday, July 9 at 8 p.m.

Trial Resumes

BERLIN (AP) — The trial of terrorist suspect Till Meyer, who was recaptured in Bulgaria last week after breaking out of prison May 27, was resumed in West Berlin.

KIDNAPPING DENIED

PARIS (AFP) — Dalila Maschino, 26, whose French husband Denis claimed she was kidnapped by her brother in Montreal on April 25, has denied being abducted from Canada and forcibly taken to her family in Algeria.

In a French radio interview, Mrs. Maschino said that she had abandoned her husband, and that her husband had earlier abducted her from Algeria.

Honeymoon a Secret

MONTE CARLO (Reuter) — Princess Caroline of Monaco and French financier Philippe Junot are on their honeymoon after Monaco's biggest party in 22 years ended with a news blackout on the couple's whereabouts.

The bride and groom, married at a Roman Catholic ceremony in the Grimaldi Royal Palace Thursday, were expected to leave the principality after a lunch for Hollywood stars, relatives and a few of Monaco's citizens.

But spokesmen for the family would neither deny nor confirm that they left following the most opulent festivities seen here since Prince Rainier married film star Grace Kelly in 1956.

Most people thought they would board the luxury yacht Prince Rainier and Princess Grace gave them as a wedding present and head off on a Mediterranean cruise.

Present at the wedding were some of Princess Grace's Hollywood friends—Ava Gardner, Frank Sinatra and Gregory Peck.

And there was an uninvited guest—a young man in a red hang-glider who swooped over the palace as the chapel ceremony was under way.

This defied Prince Raineier's ban on flights over the principality, a decree meant to stop press photographers taking unauthorized pictures.

Allstate believes in Canada.

"I believe in Canada, with pride in her past, belief in her present and faith in her future."

"I believe in the quality of Canadian life, and in the character of Canadian institutions."

"I believe in the Commonwealth of Nations within whose bounds we have found freedom, and outside which our national life would lose its independent being."

"I believe in our abiding friendship with our nearest neighbours; an honest friendship without either the subservience or the mimicry which must impair true partnership."

"I believe that Canada is one, and that if our minds dwell on those things which its parts have in common, we can find the unity of the whole."

"I believe that with sound work, the spirit of a team, and an awareness of ourselves, we can look forward to achievements beyond our imagining."

Board Seeks Free Hand

The Human Rights Commission, which has been in limbo since Dec. 31, 1977, has recommended it be given powers independent of Labor Minister Allan Williams.

Williams has not appointed a new commission since the last one's term of office expired at the end of last year.

Past chairman Bishop Remi de Roo presented the commission's 1977 annual report to Williams today with that recommendation.

The report, while not critical of Williams, said there is an unavoidable conflict between the minister's responsibilities under the Human Rights Code and his other duties.

It urged the code be ammended so the commission or another independent body decide when a case should be heard by a board of inquiry or should be dismissed.

De Roo says the commission dealt with aboriginal claims, equal employment opportunities programs and changes in the Human Rights Code including changes in the method of appointing boards of inquiry to hear human rights complaints during the past year.

While praising the progress made in settling the native cut-off lands problem, where land was taken from Indian reservations in the early part of the century, de Roo expressed disappointment that similar progress has not been made in other areas of Indian land claims.

He urged both the provincial and federal governments to negotiate a fair settlement on these claims.

The commission also expressed concern with the lack of native Indians in the health care professions and recommended that the University of B.C. develop a special program for native medical students.

It also recommended the appointment of a native ombudsman.

Other recommendations include:

—Amending the Human Rights Code, giving it precedence over other legislation that might accidentally conflict with the code;

—That immigrants be elligible for government services on the same basis of need as all other persons;

—That educational programs be developed dealing with racism and sexism;

—The publishing of informational material about human rights in all major languages used in the province;

—That the Human Rights Branch be expanded, making the position of chairperson of the Human Rights Commission a fulltime position.

The commission is responsible for educational programs and activities designed to promote human rights and act as a bridge between the public and government.

The actual investigation of human rights complaints is not done by the commission, but by the Human Rights Branch.

Shrinkage Shattering

Then the tax bite came — $111.40 for income tax, $12 for unemployment insurance and $12.90 for Canada Pension.

It happened to all 35 employees at Sealand and Oak Bay Marina.

Marina owner Bob Wright, who normally pays his staff by cheque, said he decided to pay in one dollar bills to dramatize how government spending is financed just as much by wage earners as by big corporations.

"Most people can only relate to the dollars they get in their pockets, not to the other end," he said.

"It's to remind our people that it isn't just GM that pays or the shipyard or someone else. The man on the street has to pay his share too," he said, adding he thinks government spending in Canada, now hitting 45 per cent of the Gross National Product, makes the country one of the most over-governed and over-taxed in the world.

Said Cathy, leaving behind a stack of bills earmarked for the government: "It's a big chunk. I don't know to what ends it's going or even if they (the government) are justified in taking it away."

Soil Expert Dispute Casualty

A battle over the removal of 16 acres of North Saanich land from the Agricultural Land Reserve (ALR) has claimed its first victim.

Provincial government soil specialist Fred Reid, 26, says he lost his job because he provided information on the matter to The Vancouver Sun.

Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt, however, says Reid wasn't fired, but simply resigned on a matter of principle.

Reid said that he was given his walking papers Monday, a day after he returned to his Cloverdale office from an out-of-town assignment to find his files had all been removed.

"When I opened the drawer and saw my files gone I wondered if I was in Russia," said Reid.

He said his immediate superior called him to Victoria where he was told he could either be fired on the spot or turn in a resignation and clear out by Wednesday.

Reid said he opted for resignation so that he would have a chance to tie up a few loose ends.

But Hewitt said Thursday that "Mr. Reid resigned. I have a copy of his letter of resignation — he wasn't fired. I can only assume he submitted it because he wanted to resign."

Hewitt added that he did not intend to find out whether Reid had been forced to resign.

The controversial land case at the heart of the issue involves a 16-acre section near Sidney that was twice refused removal from the ALR before its owners, Don and Jaqueline Wilson, 9299 Canora Road, recently succeeded in getting it removed.

Application by the Wilsons to have the land declassified were refused by the government in October, 1976, and March, 1977, before being approved on May 31 this year.

Land commission chairman Gary Runka told the Wilsons in a letter that their land was being released in view of the fact that there had been several exclusions allowed for lands adjacent to their property.

In January about 62 acres adjoining the Wilson property was removed for the ALR. Some 33 acres in that parcel are now proposed for a controversial mobile home park development that's sparked heated debate in Sidney.

Reid said his job problems began when he became concerned about the commission's decision to release the Wilson property.

He said that as a soil specialist he advised the commission that the land could be rated Class Two with high agricultural capacity.

Faculty Club Bid Delayed

The University of Victoria board of directors Thursday deferred a decision on whether to relocate the campus faculty club in University House.

Faculty members have proposed that the former residence of UVic president Dr. Howard Petch on Haro Road get expanded dining and kitchen facilities.

The change would require an increase in dues and additional sources of revenue through opening membership in the club to university staff or members of the public willing to pay an initiation fee.

The governors noted that of the faculty club's membership of about 450, only 85 voted on the proposal and the vote was 46 to 39 in favor.

VOTE ASKED ON BIG EXPENSES

Taxpayer Power Bid

A Socred backbencher proposed Thursday that taxpayers get a vote on major public expenditures including employee pay hikes.

Lyle Kahl, the MLA for Esquimalt, made the suggestion at a ratepayers' meeting as one of several ways to help cut local taxes.

He said ratepayers want more direct say in how their money is spent and more information from their local, regional and provincial officials.

Kahl acknowledged that holding taxpayer referendums might be awkward at the provincial level but said he believes it is a good idea up to and including the regional level, particularly if budgets are presented at election time.

More than 100 persons turned out for the joint meeting of Albert Head and Metchosin ratepayer associations to discuss the escalation of taxes with Kahl and representatives of the regional district, Juan de Fuca recreation, the Sooke School District and the B.C. Assessment Authority.

KAHL
. . . more direct say

Kahl said taxpayers are determined to take some action in time for the preparation of next year's budgets and mill rates.

Suggestions at Thursday's meeting included a proposal to abolish the regional district, which Kahl said received enthusiastic support.

Recommendations endorsed at the meeting will be forwarded to the appropriate authorities.

Some other ideas were: elimination of non-essential programs; a rollback of property tax increases to a maximum 6 per cent; allowing taxpayers to vote in annual fall elections on proposed budget expenditures for the following year; placing all major community projects and salary increases to a vote; rolling back provincial spending to a maximum 6 per cent increase and establishment of a 25-1 student-teacher ratio in schools.

Kahl said there was much interest in school spending as a result of a 10-mill increase in taxes this year and the fact that about 68 per cent of District 62's budget goes to salaries and administration.

Fee Increase For Students

An increase in student fees can be expected for the 1979-80 term, Howard Petch, University of Victoria president, told the board of governors Thursday.

The president, saying no increases are planned this September, noted the Universities Councils has recommended universities increase fees by about seven per cent.

The board approved a $38.9 million operating budget, a 3.4 per cent increase over the 1978 figure of $37.6 million.

Petch said the budget is "incredibly tight."

He reiterated to the board his concerns about the provincial government financing policies which gave UVic only a seven per cent increase in grants this year, not enough to cover additional costs generated by inflation and increasing enrolment in the university's programs.

"For the first time since I have come here I am really worried about next year," he said.

Oak Bay Launches Boat Watch Project

Oak Bay police have launched a Neighborhood Watch program for boaters, the second municipality in the Greater Victoria area to do so.

Beginning Monday, two summer students, under police supervision, will assist boaters in marking their property for identification purposes in the event of theft.

A similar program is already under way in Sidney through the RCMP.

Both programs will continue throughout the summer, ending Aug. 31.

Constable Grant Fowler, Oak Bay police's crime prevention officer, said the students, Lori Peterson, 15, and Bobbi Low, 16, will concentrate on Oak Bay Marina and the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

About 600 boats are moored at the marina, and another 500 at the yacht club.

Fowler hopes at least 75 per cent of the boat owners will participate in the program. The department's goal is 100 per cent.

In addition, Fowler said, the girls will assist owners of trailer boats in marking valuables with the owners' social insurance number.

The marking will be done at the Oak Bay police station on an appointment basis only and is open to anyone in the Greater Victoria area.

Half of the salaries of the girls is being paid by the Victoria area Junior Chamber of Commerce; the other half by the Oak Bay Kiwanis Club.

TOWN TALK

Some Love Story!

"Moose Love Us" states an ad being run in B.C. newspapers by the pulp and paper industry of Canada.

The ad says deer and other animals love the resource industry because when the forest is harvested new growth springs up which attracts numerous wild creatures.

That's true enough, and it's also true that "A mature evergreen forest holds little nourishment for wildlife."

But what the ad doesn't say is that the little nourishment mature growth does hold is of vital importance to wintering deer.

Last week Fish and Wildlife branch biologist Daryll Hebert stated publicly that if Vancouver Island's virgin Tsitika watershed is logged according to the current plan 70 to 90 per cent of the blacktail deer will be killed.

Hebert said the logging companies propose to take all the mature stands over a 60-year period — and that will mean eventual winter starvation for almost all the deer in the area.

Hardly sounds like love.

Thanks, but no thanks, is Oak Bay council's response to the Urban Transit Authority bill that would dump bus services gratuitously into the laps of municipalities.

Despite objections to the proposal, Capital Regional District chairman Jim Campbell has started preparing his staff for talks with municipal officials to set out the areas to be served. In a letter to Oak Bay this week he asked for "co-operation in this endeavor."

Mayor Brian Smith asked CRD delegate Ald. Shirley Dowell, "Has anyone (at the regional district) suggested the present is declined?" None whatever, she replied.

It illustrates a point Smith has often made, that the region knows no bounds to expansion and is quite ready to assume any and all responsibilities.

Oak Bay fire department may have a first in offbeat alarms — a frost-free freezer fire that put itself out.

Chief Fred Leeke reported to fire wardens one fire loss last month, a $650 blaze that snuffed itself after charring to a crisp the inside of a refrigerator at 483 St. Patrick, home of John W. MacRae.

The owners were absent for several hours, during which it is suspected an electrical short developed in the defrosting cycle, heated the cubicle until its plastic liner caught fire and burned out when all the oxygen was used up.

Fans of the television program Star Trek and the intergalactic exploits of Captain Kirk, Mr. Spock, Scotty et al aboard the starship Enterprise may want to beam down to the Hillside shopping centre next week.

Cat Middlemiss, senior officer of the United Federation of Canadian Star Trekkers, says the club will have a Star Trek display in the mall Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Among the items featured will be the group's float from the Victoria Day parade, the movie sets it uses to make animated films, posters, pamphlets, books and model rockets.

One of the graduating students at Oak Bay secondary school's leaving ceremony this year had six children in the audience and one on stage with her.

Joanne Leslie, a 44-year-old mother of seven, plans to become a registered nurse and went back to high school after a 25-year absence to brush up on her sciences.

Three of her children have already graduated from the school and a fourth, Karen also got her diploma this year.

Joanne, who said she is fulfilling a lifelong dream, will enter Royal Jubilee Hospital's school of nursing in the fall. Karen also wants to become a registered nurse and plans to attend the University of B.C.'s nursing school next year.

Pupils in the class of Brenda Morton at the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children decided six months ago they would end the school year with a donation to help people. So week after week they brought coins to school to fill a collection can.

On Wednesday they presented Heather Siska, Victoria representative of the B.C. Save The Children Fund, with a total of $18.30.

The fund receives many donations throughout the year, but for Mrs. Siska the gift from the boys and girls was special.

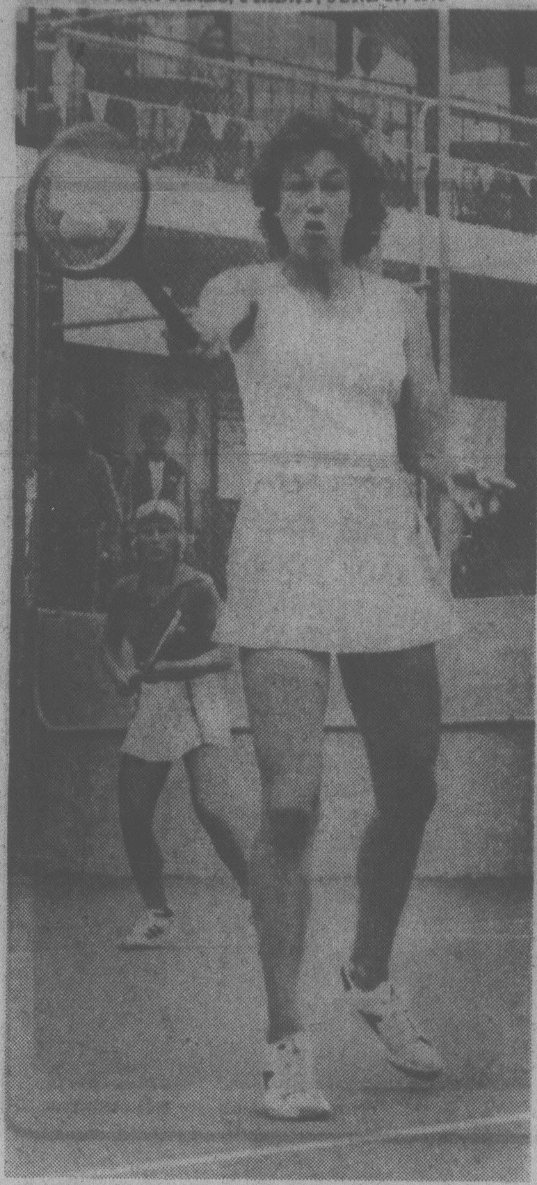
Snappy Reply

A friendly tip from Town Talk on protocol at meetings of Saanich council or the lands, planning and housing committee: If you're sitting in the public gallery and you want to catch the chairman's attention to have your say, don't snap your fingers.

Someone did just that recently, and received the following blast from Mayor Mel Couvelier: "I really hate people snapping their fingers at me. I guess it's a hangup from my old days as a waiter."



EFFORT was in vain for Canada's Susan Pridham and Helene Pelletier, background, in women's doubles events of B.C. Open tennis championships at Racquet Club, Thursday. Picken Carries B.C. Hopes

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

It may be the first circuit he's ever played on but John Picken of Burnaby is certainly carrying the hopes of Canada squarely on his young shoulders in the 80th B.C. Open tennis championships today.

Displaying a coolness and cunning well beyond his 20 years, Picken ousted American Chip Fisher, a former B.C. Open winner and the giantkiller who toppled fourth-seeded Mexican Emilio Montano earlier, with a 3-6, 6-4, 6-3 victory in the feature match Thursday night.

For most of the game, the tall, graceful Californian seemed in full control. He broke Picken's service twice in the first set to take it 6-3 and then shot into an early 2-0 lead in the second set with another service break.

But Picken wasn't through. Hitting a very fast return of service, he left Fisher stranded several times as he broke back twice to take the second set and, despite a determined comeback effort by the American, the young Canadian stayed in command to grab the final set.

Picken, who is attending Pan American University in Texas on a tennis scholarship and is just testing himself on this circuit ("to see how I'll go against some of these ATP guys") before deciding to turn pro, was ecstatic as he left the court. He called his victory one of his best wins ever.

If it seemed good to him, it was even better to the Racquet Club of Victoria crowd which now had a lone Canadian to cheer in today's quarter-finals of the men's singles.

Earlier, Picken had watched as the three other last Canadians left went out. Dale Power of Toronto was beaten, 6-7, 6-3, 6-3 by Bruce Kleege of the United States; Nick Mohtadi of Calgary went down, 6-0, 7-6, to fifth-seeded Lars Elvstrom of Denmark; and Quebec's Richard Legendre twice reached 4-4 and twice lost his serve at the crucial moment to be eliminated, 6-4, 6-4 by second-seeded Jorge Andrew of Venezuela.

A tough task faced Picken today as he was due to meet hard-hitting Rocky Maguire, who cruised past fellow-American Ted Williams, 6-4, 6-1, on Thursday.

American Guy Fritz got past New Zealander Stephen Temple, 6-1, 7-6 and Alvin Gardner ousted fellow-Australian Simon Clarke, 6-0, 6-3, in other men's singles matches Thursday.

But once again the most impressive was top-seeded Aussie Bill Lloyd, whose serve-and-volley game in the crisp John Newcombe tradition was simply-devastating as he swept aside young American Larry Stefanki, 6-3, 6-1.

Hitting the ball with incredible speed, Lloyd, who in 1973 had a win over world star Guillermo Villas of Argentina and with fellow-Australian Phil Dent reached the quarter-finals of the men's doubles at Forest Hills with a victory over Bjorn Borg and Rod Laver, showed he's certainly going to be tough to beat.

Vancouver Island's last hope of a title in any of the four events went out the window Thursday when Lori Barlow of Victoria and Brenda Perry of New Zealand were ousted, 2-6, 6-2, 6-0 from the women's doubles by Dorte Eckner of Denmark and Lisa Senn of Toronto.

In the other women's doubles quarter-finals, Zenda Leiss and Bunny Smith of the U.S. defeated Kate Brasher of England and American Nancy Harris, 6-1, 6-4; Kate Glancy of England and Marlee Buehler of the U.S. downed Canadians Helene Pelletier and Susan Pridham, 6-7, 6-3, 7-6; and Jenny Gardiner of Australia and Lilly Bell of the U.S. eliminated American Lindsay Siegleman and Alida Spex, a former Cuban now living in the States, 6-1, 0-6, 6-4.

Play continues today and Saturday and wraps up with all finals Sunday at the Racquet Club.

The players then go on to Calgary for the Prairie Open (on July 3 to 9), which is the second stop in six on the new Challengers Circuit sponsored by American Express. Players are competing for $15,000 in prize money at each of the first five tourneys with $25,000 up for grabs in the last one — the Masters in Montreal Aug. 2 to 6.

Mussels Start to Make Changes

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

When the team loses, the manager gets the axe. That's axiomatic in baseball.

But when the manager is part-owner of the club, as is the case with Victoria Mussels, the situation is a little different.

In any case, no one is demanding playing-manager Jim Chapman's scalp, but that doesn't mean he's content to stand pat with a losing hand. Far from it.

The Mussels, 5-3 losers to Walla Walla Padres Thursday night before a paid crowd of 253 at Royal Athletic Park, announced two players have been cut and one added to the roster.

Infielders Mark Hildrebrand and Dan Phillips have been sent home and Mussels will pick up righthanded pitcher Marcel Moran, a 21-year-old fireballer from Seattle, when they open a three-game Northwest League series tonight at Grays Harbor against the Loggers. Dale Mohorcic, elevated this week from the bullpen into the starting rotation, pitches for Victoria tonight.

The addition of Moran is designed to beef up Mussels' mound staff, although Chapman and pitching coach Don Rogelstad feel the pitching isn't the main reason for the team's 3-7 record, last in the Northern Division.

"What we're doing here is strengthening the bullpen," Rogelstad explained. "We're hoping that another good strong arm will help us. We're facing clubs in this league that carry as many as a dozen pitchers. We're hoping to add strength in this area because we were short of pitchers in the first place."

Pitching wasn't the problem Thursday night. It was lack of hitting as the Mussels managed only five singles off starter Mark Boggs and none off relievers Mike Vint, who pitched the seventh inning, and Willie Hardwick, who mopped up.

Boggs got the win, his second in three decisions and Walla Walla's seventh in 10 starts, good for first place in the northern section. Boggs walked one and struck out seven. Only Mussel to solve him to any degree was third baseman Dan Gans with two hits in five trips, good for two runs-batted-in that came in a three-run Victoria third. None of Mussels' runs were earned.

Loser Dave Cheadle (1-2) had good control but yielded 10 of Walla Walla's 12 hits, including solo home runs by Jerry Johnson, his third of the season that highlighted a two-run second, and Doug Gwosdz, his second of the campaign that came in the sixth. Cheadle walked three and struck out two.

High point from the Victoria standpoint was the relief work of homebrew righthander Roy Moretti, who came on in the sixth to stifle a Walla Walla threat. He handcuffed the Padres on two hits over the last $3\frac{2}{3}$ innings, walking none and fanning four. Sharp control and an effective slider were his best weapons as he logged his third impressive relief effort.

The Padres' punch was provided by Johnson, 3-for-5 with two runs-batted-in, Gwosdz, 2-for-4 with an RBI, and Mobil Cox, 3-for-4.

Walla Walla	220 001 000	—	5	12	3

Mike Boggs 2-1, Mike Vint (7), Willie Hardwick (8) and Ron Tinglev; Dave Cheadle 1-2, Roy Moretti (6) and Vito Lucarelli. Home runs: Walla Walla—Jerry Johnson (3rd), Doug Gwosdz (2nd).

Lions Rally for Third Win

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jerry Tagge directed British Columbia Lions to two touchdowns in the fourth quarter as the Lions remained undefeated in exhibition play with a 30-25 victory Thursday night over Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Canadian Football League.

The B.C. quarterback, delighted 19,796 fans at Empire Stadium by throwing five yards to Al Charuk for a touchdown early in the quarter, then handed off to LeRoy Moss for a two-yard touchdown run at 11:55 for the come-from-behind decision.

The victory was the third straight for the Lions.

B.C. also got two touchdowns from rookie running back Larry Key—on a 26-yard screen pass from Tagge and a 17-yard run. Lui Passaglia converted three of the touchdowns and kicked a 29-yard field goal.

Saskatchewan's touchdown came from Bob Bruer on a 14-yard pass from Ron Lancaster and Steve Molnar's two-yard run. Bob Macoritti converted both and kicked three field goals.

In another game, Terry Metcalfscored the winning touchdown as Toronto Argonauts defeated Hamilton Tiger-Cats, 16-11. Metcalf's score came on a 43-yard run with less than two minutes remaining and minutes after he had fumbled the ball away.

Two Unbeaten In Island Play

Tom McKeachie and Chuck Davies of Victoria downed Ed Brown and George Konochak of the host club 19-15 and Jack McMillan and Syd Smethurst of Burnside dropped clubmates Glen Taylor and Rollie Mercer 20-9 Thursday at Victoria West to remain unbeaten in the Vancouver Island pairs lawn bowling championships.

McKeachie and Davies have a 4-0 record in the six-team division and McMillan and Smethurst have a 3-0 record in the five-team section of the 11-team event.

In other matches, John Allan and Alex Redi of Vic West topped George Sage and Bill Barr of Burside 18-12, Mike Belton and John Green of Oak Bay defeated Bill Cruickshank and Paul Jenkins of Vic West 19-16 and Jim McGregor Sr. and Jr. downed Bill North and Chris Knudson of Victoria, 31-16.

Marie Sage amd Ivy McLeod of Burnside defeated clubmates Jean Chandler and Joan Farnham 16-14 to win the Rose Bowl in women's play.

Tourney Draws Visitors

Four out-of-town entries will play in the seven-team Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League holiday tournament this weekend at Central Park.

Port Angeles Telecable, Graber Insurance of Everett, Campbell River and Port Alberni have entered the double-loss elimination affair.

Webb and Trace is entered from the Heywood Men's League and Ingraham Hotel and Victoria Athletics are playing the role of hosts.

In Heywood League play Thursday, Capital Builders took advantage of a pair of seventh-inning errors to edge Webb and Trace 4-3 at Heywood Avenue Park.

At Hyacinth Park, MacDonald's Furniture downed Strawberry Vale Juniors 9-3 and Victoria Skylarks blanked Victoria Athletics 12-0 in Victoria Senior Women's League play.

SOCCER COACH QUITS

VIENNA (AP) — Helmut Senekowitsch, 45, who coached the Austrian World Cup soccer team, says he is not interested in a renewal of his contract.

Okker Upsets Vilas

LONDON (AP) — Dutchman Tom Okker pulled a surprisingly easy upset over fourth seed Guillermo Vilas today, and defending-champion Bjorn Borg won his long-delayed second-round match over Australian Peter McNamara in the Wimbledon tennis championships.

Okker, who hasn't been seeded here in two years, served and volleyed strongly to beat the Argentine, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

Resuming play after a rain washout Thursday, Borg, who is seeking his third Wimbledon crown in row, beat McNamara, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

It was the second year in a row that Vilas has fallen in the third round here. The Argentine had a spectacular season last year, amassing a record 51 consecutive match victories, including the French and U.S. open titles.

Borg, meanwhile, continued little-tested in his quest to emulate Fred Perry, the last man to win three consecutive singles crowns here. Perry did it in 1934-36.

Borg was first scheduled to play Wednesday night but play was suspended by darkness before he could get on court. Rain kept him from playing Thursday.

Play resumed on time at the All-England Club this morning after Thursday's matches were abandoned because of rain that didn't let up all day.

Barlow Takes Junior Title

Barlow, a 16-year-old from Royal Colwood, had a potentially-disastrous shot bounce off a tree on the 17th hole to catch first-round leader Bruce Rands of Uplands and then won the third hole of a sudden-death playoff to claim the crown.

Rands, 18, shot 73 on the opening day at Gorge Vale and had a one-under-par 34 on the front nine on his home course but a slip on the 15th produced his downfall. He finished with a five-over 75 and a 36-hole total of 148.

Barlow, who shot 75 at Gorge Vale and 73 at Uplands, scored 35 on the front nine on the final day and was still three strokes back when Rands slipped.

Rands carded a three-over-par eight on 15 and Barlow made par to tie it up.

Barlow fell one stroke back by bogeying the par four 16th but parred 17 and 18 while Rands three-putted the 18th for the tie.

Barlow was saved on the 17th when the ball hit a tree and bounced onto the green after he pulled his tee shot and it looked as if the ball would land in a clump of trees and tall grass.

Both golfers parred the first tow holes of the playoff and both were in trouble during their initial shots on the third hole — Rands in a trap and Barlow behind some trees.

"I couldn't see the green but I hooked my shot around the tree and it landed on the green," said Barlow.

He two-putted for a par while Rands had a five.

Barlow also wins the juvenile title (16-and-under) and clubmate Guy Spencer shot an 82-83 — 165 to capture the divot (under-14) title.

ROCKIES FOR SALE OWNER CONFIRMS

DENVER (AP) — The majority owner of Colorado Rockies has confirmed he is negotiating to sell the National Hockey League franchise and has already taken a parting shot at Denver city officials who balked at a new pact for the team's use of arena facilities.

Jack A. Vickers, Rockies owner, said Thursday it is a "shame" the enthusiasm the team was building in Denver did not extend to the city administration.

He confirmed he was negotiating to sell the team to a New Jersey trucking company operator.

In a copyright story, the Denver Post put the price for the club at $5 million, saying Arthur Imperatore hopes to move the team east and split its home schedule between New York's Madison Square Garden and the Philadelphia Spectrum for two seasons until the 21,000-seat Meadowlands Arena in East Rutherford, N.J., is completed.

Superstars Suspended

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Dwight Stones, former world record holder in the high jump, and three other members of the U.S. Olympic track team have been suspended from competition for accepting prize money, the Amateur Athletic Union announced Thursday.

Stones, javelin thrower Kate Schmidt, middle distance runner Francie Larrieu and pentathlete Jane Frederick were suspended indefinitely by the Southern Pacific Association of the AAU. Seven members of the association's nine-man registration committee voted unanimously June 23 to suspend the four athletes.

The vote stemmed from the athletes' participation in ABC television's Superstars program, for which they received a total of $58,000, the AAU said.

The registration committee said $33,400 went to Stones's Desert Oasis Track Club, and the other $24,600 went to the Pacific Coast Club, of which Schmidt and Larrieu are members. Frederick, who competes for the Los Angeles Naturite Track Club, asked that her prize money be paid to the Pacific Coast Club.

The payment of funds directly to an athlete's club is a clear violation of amateur rules, the AAU said.

The rules of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, which is the world governing body for track, specify any money received by an amateur must go to the national governing body, in this case the AAU.

Stones, 24, and Schmidt, 24, both two-time Olympic bronze medallists, appeared before the committee before the suspension and admitted receiving money, the AAU said. Larrieu, 25, and Frederick, 26, the American record holders in the mile and pentathlon, respectively, declined to appear before the committee, the organization said.

All four will be given a chance to appeal the ruling to the Southern Pacific Association-AAU board of managers. The next step would be an appeal to the AAU's national registration committee, and a final appeal would be to the AAU board of review.

The AAU indicated the suspension might be lifted if the money was returned. Otherwise, the suspension, if upheld, would mean loss of amateur status and, in effect, ineligibility to compete anywhere.

Sooke-Pedder Waters Still Best On Island

Waters between Sooke and Pedder Bay continue to provide the best chances of catching a large chinook around Vancouver Island.

Fred Louth boated a 43-pounder Sunday while fishing on the Sooke side of Secretary Island and Howard Nelson landed a 39-pounder Monday on the opposite side of the Island. Both were trolling with anchovies.

The odd coho to 5¾ pounds and a few sockeye to six have come in from the same spot and most trollers are using 50 to 80 feet of line and 1½ to two pounds of weight.

But the largest lunker proved to be a 54½-pounder taken Monday by Mike White while trolling an anchovy off the Trap Shack. A few coho to five pounds are showing from Church Rock right through to Secretary and most returns have come from about the 40-foot depth.

John Bokyo of Ladysmith has been doing well on a week-long trip to Pedder Bay. He's landed about half a dozen chinooks over the 20-pound mark, including a 35-pounder, while fishing off Church with an anchovy.

Some coho to seven pounds have also turned up for bait fishermen using light lines.

Use 80 to 90 feet on a downrigger or two pounds of lead and 75 "pulls" of line with either anchovies (tops) or strip (a close second).

Drift-fishing with Buzz-Bombs, Stingsildas and their kin is also starting to pick up off the Pedder Bay kelp bed and near Bentinck Island.

Oak Bay waters are producing chinooks to 34 pounds and "lots in the 20-pound range" for both trollers and drift-fishermen working off Trial Island and the Golf Links.

At Sidney, there appears to be an abundance of chinooks to 26 pounds off James Island, Sidney Spit and Saanichton Spit. Unfortunately, there's also a lot of minnows and needlefish as well — and the chinooks are well fed. Fishermen who have scored are bouncing hootchies or strip along the bottom right at the tide change.

Waters between Hatch Point and Mill Bay are yielding chinooks to 15 pounds on deeply-trolled strip, Tom Macks or Krippled-Ks.

Other fairly good spots in Saanich Inlet have been Coles Bay, Indian Bay and Finlayson Arm.

Further up-Island, salmon fishing is picking up off Bold Bluff, Crofton, Thetis Island, Tent Island, Big Finger Island, The Wall, Bamfield, Comox Bar, Bates Beach, the Red Buoy at Campbell River, Mitlenatch Island and Baker Pass.

Freshwater anglers are starting to run into locked forest access gates again because of the hot weather.

But in some ways it doesn't really matter because that same heat is depressing the catch in some of the low-elevation lakes around the Island.

Some good catches, however, were reported from Cowichan, Wild Deer, Sproat and both Upper and Lower Campbell lakes.

NIBBLES: The bit we had on limited entry hunting Wednesday got chopped slightly to fit a tight space . . . Hunters once more are reminded the deadline for submitting entries for the various limited entry areas throughout the province is Monday . . . The draw will be made the following day . . . Exceptions are moose and elk in region three and moose in region six and seven . . . Deadline for these hunting areas is Sept. 22 with the draw scheduled Sept. 25 . . . Application forms and further information may be obtained from any provincial government agent, fish and wildlife branch office or hunting licence issuer . . . The entries, however, must be submitted to branch headquarters in Victoria . . . And, at this late date, it might be an idea not to rely on the mail to get them in before the deadline.

A 51½-pound chinook has returned to Campbell River after an absence of nearly 15 years . . . The late Jack Keller landed the monster on 15-pound test line Aug. 6, 1963 while fishing out of Painter's Lodge . . . He subsequently won a Field and Stream award for the feat and this past week his widow, Emma, donated the mounted fish to Painter's.

Durante Sparks Adanacs

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Dave Durante gave himself a big sendoff Thursday night in leading Coquitlam Adanacs to a 17-14 win over New Westminster Salmonbellies in Western Lacrosse Association play.

Durante, who is getting married today, then leaves Saturday to join Team Canada at the world field lacrosse championships in Manchester England, scored five goals and added three assists.

Moe Jodoin scored three Coquitlam goals, while Dave Cochrane and Jim Aitchison had two each. Art Wilson, Mark Valastin, Mat Aitken, Ray Mattinson and Bob Salt added singles.

Sanudo Five Under

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Many of the big names on the professional golf tour regularly pass the Western Open because of the tough Butler National golf course.

But the way some of the lesser known members of the tour handled the 7,083-yard, par-72 links in the first round of the $225,000 Western on Thursday may prompt some of the game's big money winners to give playing the tournament extra consideration in the future.

In all, 28 golfers, led by Cesar Sanudo with a five-under 67, broke par on the course, while 18 others were at even par after 36 holes.

"There's no doubt the course isn't playing as difficult," said Allen Miller, who recorded a four-under 68 to finish one stroke behind Sanudo.

Sanudo, who is playing the tour regularly for the first time since 1975, was one over for the first five holes but went on to birdie six of the next 10 to go five under.

Dairy Queen Triumphs

Three bases on balls, an error and three hits — including a three-run double by Bob Mabee — in the five-run second inning helped Dairy Queen to an 8-5 victory over Greaves Movers in Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League play Thursday at Lambrick Park.

It was the third victory of the season for cellar-dwelling Dairy Queen, who trails fourth-place Greaves by five games.

Laurel Point

joins in the Bicentennial Celebrations

if we'd been here when Captain Cook came calling ... he might have stayed!

Too bad for the good Captain that Laurel Point wasn't ready then—but lucky for you we are now. In fact, more than two-thirds of the original Laurel Point units are sold—which means if you'd like a front-row-centre seat on the Bicentennial celebrations on or about the Inner Harbour this summer—the time to get to the Point is now!

Talk it over with the Laurel Point team this week; they're skilled, friendly realtors with a wealth of experience, and reserves of information about financing, house trades and more.

RVYC Women's Crew In North America Final

AROUND OUR SHORES

Louise Anstey and her crew from the Royal Victoria Yacht Club will race under the club's burgee in the Adams Cup finals, to be held in Newport, R.I. from August 27-31.

They won the right to compete in the top competition for women in North America by winning the Area H regatta, held on Seattle's Lake Washington on the weekend, racing against crews from British Columbia, Washington, Oregon and Hawaii.

Louise, along with Jennie Charlesworth, Trish Schibli and Wendy McBride won the six-race series with three firsts, two seconds and one fourth.

Another Canadian crew, skippered by Judy Day of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club was runner-up and last year's winner, Marilyn Thordarson of Tacoma, placed third.

Also in Seattle, two Victoria boats did well in the four-race six-metre series for the King Olaf Cup. Paul Longridge's Saga placed third while Kim Olsen, in his first regatta at the helm of Toogooloowoo IV, placed fourth.

Built in 1935, Toogooloowoo IV's high placing was probably helped by the presence aboard of two French sailors who will be crewing in Irving Loube's Bravura, one of the boats in this year's Victoria-Maui race.

They've also raced in Baron Bic's 12-metre, used in his bid to wrestle the coveted America's Cup away from the Americans.

Scot Rohrer's Razzle Dazzle of the Seattle Yacht Club was the big winner, Bill Buursma's Frenzy of Seattle being runner-up. Kirk Hull's May Be VIII, north American champion in 1961, came fifth, followed by another Victoria boat, John Graeme's Llanoria of RVYC, helmed by John Davies. Kirk Palmer's Buzzy III of the Maple Bay Yacht Club came next.

Saga came first in six-metre racing during RVYC's Wednesday night racing this week, edging out Buzzy III. In Lasers it was Elizabeth Dewey, followed by Mike Turner and Dave Teece.

The first three Cal 20s were George Lewis' Pegasus, Don North's Polaris and Ed Life's Semiramis. Top Thunderbirds were Garry Cooney's Hocus, Louise Anstey in Owl and John Watson's Drambuie.

First boat over-all in Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet competition was Jack Woodward's Puff II. After her came Steve Merriman's Country Style and Frank Cushing's L'Alouette.

There will be series racing again this Wednesday, starting at 6:30 p.m.

Taking full advantage of the holiday weekend, RVYC cruising boats will gather at Sidney Spit this evening for the beginning of the annual commodore's cruise, which may well meet up with an around-the-San Juan Islands cruise planned by the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association.

The CFSA's cruise, which is an invitational, will begin at 10 a.m. in Cadboro Bay, the first stop being Deer Harbor on Salt Spring Island.

If you've been wondering who those gilt-edged pleasure cruisers that arrived in the Inner Harbor this week belong to you'll be interested to know they're from the San Francis Yacht Club in San Francisco.

Fleet captain Joseph Cervetto says the 10 boats are on a Pacific Northwest cruise that will last three months.

This is the first venture of this magnitude and Joseph says he and his buddies were delighted with the reception given them by city mayor Mike Young.

They're hoping Vancouver mayor Jack Volrich will be just as hospitable when they visit him on the next leg of their trip.

Short Tacks:- Apologies of the week go to 17-year-old Andy Lister, who crewed in the Canoe Bay Sailing Club's 48-miler around Salt Spring Island aboard Bev Westman's Tiercel. Tiercel won the race and was reported to have had an all-girl crew. The other member of the crew was Leah McCaw, also 17.

VICTORIANS MIGHT MISS GAMES TRIP

Five Victorians have qualified for places on the B.C. team that will compete in the Canadian Games for the Physically Disabled at St. John's, Nfld., the week of Aug. 20.

Producing the problem is the fact that the provincial association does not have sufficient funds available to send all the qualifiers and only two of the Victoria contestants are assured of a trip to the Canadian meet.

Officials of the Victoria group are hoping that their other three qualifiers will also be able to take part in the games. To make this possible, additional money is required and officials are seeking sponsors, or donations, to help cover the expenses of $715 per contestant.

Historic Fresco Bared

PORDENONE, Italy (AP) - Workmen restoring the 15th-century cathedral in the nearby town of Sacile, badly damaged in a 1976 earthquake, have uncovered a hidden fresco. Art experts said the work was extremely interesting and planned tests to determine the artist and when it was painted.

Churches yearbook covers diverse information

There are 40 religious periodicals in Canada and, according to 1974 statistics, people in the 40-44 age bracket had the largest average income and yet, in breakdown of charitable donors, were fifth on a list of 11, with those older than 70 contributing the highest amounts.

These and other facts are contained in the Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches, 1978, now available through major book stores across Canada. The book is published by Abingdon Press for the National Council of Churches, New York, and is edited by Constant H. Jacquet. The yearbook was first published in 1916.

One of the finest reference works of its kind, the book is used by government offices, libraries, major tourist brokers and religious writers, as well as members of the clergy and professional workers. Listings for both Canada and the U.S. cover the fields of religious bodies (both Christian and non-Christian), international agencies, confessional, interdenominational, co-operative, theological seminaries, faculties and Bible schools, regional and ecumenical agencies, service agencies and religious periodicals.

There is an extensive statistical and historical section which gives church financial statistics and related data, a list of the main depositories of church history material and sources along with interesting trends and developments, the employment situation for ordained Protestant clergy, reports on a study of the effects of inflation on per capita givings and a preliminary report on women ordained to the full ministry.

In his foreward, Jacquet states there are several major qualifications that should be made about church statistics. For example, they are always incomplete and not always comparable.

Forest bill delay asked

The Victoria Presbytery of the United Church of Canada has asked the B.C. Legislature to delay third reading of Bill 14, concerning the Forest Act, to allow the public more time to gain information and offer input into the debate. The request is in a resolution passed June 27 and is based on what the church termed the long-term implications of the bill which deals with forest management policy and proposals to increase logging of crown lands.

Perspectives

By Rev. J. A. Davidson

The hero of Albert Camus' allegorical novel, The Plague, Dr. Bernard Rieux, is a completely dedicated physician. With great tenderness he cares for his wife who is dying of tuberculosis, and when a deadly plague strikes his city, Oran in North Africa, he risks his life fighting it and attending its victims. He is an utterly decent man, a man of great compassion and of the consecrated competence to implement his compassion.

But Rieux is an unbeliever who has rejected the Christian interpretation of reality and human existence in which he had been raised. The author seems to be trying to show in the person of this splendid physician that basic human decency requires no support from religion and that the humane unbeliever is often more sensitive to the needs and sufferings of others than is the conventional Christian believer. Readers of the novel see that Rieux is morally superior — and superior by Christian standards — to the disturbed priest, Father Paneloux.

Many persons of authentic decency, of creative moral concern, are without faith in God, without any formal ties with religious tradition. Religious believers can claim no monopoly in decency and compassion. Do these people refute, by the very quality of their lives, the biblical notion that religion and ethics, faith and morality, are inextricably entwined in one another?

Let me ask another question. If a whole society be cut off from the nourishment of faith, can its morality long survive? I suggest, hesitantly, that individuals — some individuals, anyway — can maintain a high morality apart from faith, but that a society as a whole cannot. I put it to you that Rieux and others like him are in fact nourished from streams of water which they do not acknowledge, that their roots — the roots of their decency and compassion — are nourished by waters of faith, even though they may not think that they are.

The Christian's moral task is not merely to try to bear fruit of mercy and compassion in his or her own life; it is also to help sustain the moral foundations of society. Let us indeed rejoice in the decency and the compassion of Dr. Rieux and his kind — but let us recognize that they owe much to the faith of others, past and present.

Here we must guard against smugness and censoriousness and complacency. We must resist temptations to moral snobbery. None of us, even the most saintly among us, has earned the right to adopt a pose of moral superiority. But we must determine to keep our moral roots nourished in the waters of God's grace, so we may be guided and strengthened for the service of God's purposes of mercy and love and justice — and so the moral capital of society may be constantly replenished.

It is a fundamental biblical principle — implicit in the Bible as a whole and clerly expressed in the teaching of Jesus, and, I submit, verified in history and experience — that morality is not self-supporting, that decency and compassion are not, in the long run, self-sustaining.

Adventists seeking new quarters

The local community services centre of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, which has been serving Victoria since 1926, is seeking new quarters.

When the church first started helping meet the welfare and other needs of the community it operated from the old Graham Street church, and since has functioned in various locations, its latest address being 930 Hillside.

The current temporary address is 1462 Hillside. It is increasingly difficult to find suitable building space at low cost to carry on this humanitarian work, yet somewhere in this city there must be an older house or hall, where this type of service may still be carried on to meet the many calls that come in, church members feel.

The Seventh-day Adventist Church maintains two organizations dedicated to helping those in need. One of these organizations is called Seventh-day Adventist World Services, the other Seventh-day Adventist Community Services.

Community services is operated by the members in the local churches, and almost every church has a community services centre.

Both organizations give relief without regard to race, creed, religion or national origin.

Love for human beings, no matter where they live or what may be their station in life, motivates Seventh-day Adventists to fund and execute extensive relief programs.

When the Johnstown, Pennsylvania, flood took place in 1977 community services was there, giving away thousands of articles of clothing, sheets, blankets, to help relieve the suffering of those who had lost everything.

The same service was provided in the flooded areas of the southlands when a tornado struck in Alabama and Mississippi, and when tragedy hit Big Thompson Canyon in Colorado in July 1976.

In addition, for the hundreds of thousands of people who have been burned out or for some other reason became destitute, community services has endeavored to make life easier.

This same type of emergency help is offered at each local centre. Baby layettes, crib blankets, are made available to mothers in hospital who have little means or no other persons to turn to.

Adventists dig down deep into their pockets and give to both funds.

The S.A.W.S. disaster and famine relief offering is taken in their chuches around the world once a year. In the past two years this offering amounted to more than $900,000 each year.

Some church members are so interested in this work that they give regularly, weekly or monthly, to it.

Help comes from commercial corporations, governments — U.S. AID being the largest contributor — and the thousands of friends who know that their dollars will not be used up in administration, but will reach the needy people of the world. Nearly 100 per cent of this relief money went to countries other than the United States.

At the same time community services, the sister service, gave more than $3 million in relief in the U.S. alone. In 1977, SDAs gave relief around the world in an amount in excess of $9 million.

The Seventh-day Adventist community services works closely with other agencies, for in this work of relieving suffering, there is room for all.

As followers of Christ, they cannot turn away from suffering, hunger, malnourishment and sorrow. They believe that the poor will ever be with us and, as long as time shall last, will do what they can to help people wherever they are.

St. John's schedules three Sundays

Focus set on prairies

During three Sundays in July, St. John's historic "Iron" Church will focus on the people of the Prairies. "On these Sundays," says the Reverend Robert MacRae, "St. John's will welcome visitors, tourists, newcomers and former residents of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. In a small way we will capture the friendly spirit of "community" that is so characteristic of the Prairies.

"As we do so, we also celebrate our unity," says the rector of the parish.

St. John's Church (with the green spire on Quadra) will have two services each Sunday during which special focus will be made: at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. Manitoba Sunday will be held July 9; Saskatchewan Sunday on July 16 and Alberta SUNDAY on July 23. At these services former prairie clergy and bishops will assist with the worship and the preaching.

"It is a meeting of people to celebrate re-creation, holiday, and God's abundance in the land." It is meant to be a time of thanksgiving and to remake old friendships and re-establish live contact with communities of the prairies, says MacRae.

"We will meet formally in the worship services and be welcomed informally at the parish coffee hour at 10:30 a.m. in the garden court beside the church." Special gifts to mark the occasion have been prepared for both visitors and congretation alike. All people are welcome to attend butespecially those from the many prairie communities and churches.

Among those participating will be Bishop Gerald Burch, former bishop of Edmonton, Bishop Stanley Steer of Saskatoon, The Rev. Canon Minto Swan, one time rector of Portage la Prairie, The Rev. R. N. R. Holmes, one time Archdeacon of Selkirk and travelling missionary in Rupert's Land, the Reverend Robert MacRae formerly of Prince Albert and Saskatoon and a special preacher, the Reverend Dr. James I. Packer of Bristol, author and theologian.

CHURCH CHRONICLES

Folkfest offers interfaith fare

A Folkfest interfaith church service will be held at Centennial Square 11 a.m. on Sunday as part of Canadian Unity Day ceremonies. Folkfest co-ordinator Iryna Revutsky says this is the first time a church service of this type has been organized in Victoria.

It begins with the Lord's Prayer in English, Portuguese, Spanish and Italian, followed by the Unity Prayer in English, a Ukrainian hymn, scriptures read by Rev. Sui Man Lee of Chinese Presbyterian Church, a performance of Hindi Bhajan Satsang—Dhana Moodley and group, and a negro spiritual. There will be a sermon and prayers in Polish and English and benediction by Lama Tashi Namgyal, Tibetan Buddist priest.

The newly appointed district governor of Rotary International, Dr. A. Deans Peggs, will preach the sermon at Fairfield United Church this Sunday at 11 a.m. Peggs has been an administrator in the educational system of Hong Kong. Before that, he served in a similar capacity in Nassau in the Bahamas.

For the past six years, Dr. and Mrs. Peggs have been living in Victoria and have been involved in community enterprises. Dr. Peggs is an elder of Fairfield United.

Organist Erich Schwandt of the faculty of music, University of Victoria, will give a recital at Christ Church Cathedral, Quadra and Burdett, at 4 p.m. today. The program is entitled Music in the Cathedral 1978.

Tucker

Melody Tucker, 892 Craigflower, has been chosen as one of eight young people to represent B.C. at the Nazarene World Youth Conference at Estes Park, Colorado, in July.

Melody, who attends the Esquimalt Church of the Nazarene, will be among 2,400 young Nazarenes from 50 countries who will gather for the conference.

Its purpose is to accelerate spiritual growth in the lives of the delegates, to help them share their faith with others and to introduce them to future church leaders.

Melody is following in the footsteps of her brother, Tim, who was a delegate to the last conference four years ago in Switzerland.

Victoria Christian Women's Club will hold a lunch from 12:30-2:30 p.m., Wednesday, July 5 in the garden at 4071 Haro Road (bus route 16).

Special feature will be summer fashions by Eatons, with music by Lynne MacKinnon. Speaker will be Fran Thomas of Sequim, Wash.

Reservations are necessary by July 3; surnames A-L phone Julia Hampton, 598-7459, and M-Z, Thelma Brownrigg, 477-7775.

Please reserve for free babysitting at Emmanuel Baptist Church.

The fourth in the series of 12 Christian gospel summer services in Beacon Hill Park, sponsored by Parks Services Interdenominational, will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday in Cameron bandshell.

Victoria Citadel Corps of the Salvation Army will conduct the service.

The gospel message will be delivered by the corps officer, Capt. John Wilder, with deputy bandmaster Bruce Hoadley as conductor and the Citadel Songsters with leader Brian Russell.

In addition to numbers by the Songsters, the program will feature the Townson family singing group both prior to and during the service. Accompanist is Brian Ratcliffe.

Attendance at these community services, now in their 36th year, shows they are well appreciated.

The Canadian Council of Churches is sponsoring a Canada-China program "to develop a responsible Christian understanding of the on-going Chinese Revolution, to awaken the long-held friendship of Canadian Christians for the people of China and to interpret China to the Canadian Church and Community."

The program is supported by Roman Catholic and Protestant bodies.

The Victoria branch is sponsoring a visit in September by the director, Dr. Raymond Whitehead, and is planning study groups in the fall using the book China! Search for Community written by Whitehead and his wife.

Memorial camp re-opens today

Neighbors Deal

George Pringle Memorial Camp starts its summer season today. This is the 27th season of the Shawnigan Lake camp.

Camps in July are Junior Girls, Junior Boys and Intermediate Boys.

From July 29 to Aug. 15 the camp will be open to families to come and camp by the week or by the day. Campsite facilities and staff will be available, including good meals in the dining room.

Other camps in August are Junior Girls and a fun music co-ed camp for teens 14 to 17 years of age.

Barbara Neighbors Deal, who says "anyone who can speak can sing," will direct the camp. Barbara is an internationally-known composer, choral director and songleader. Her book Singin' a Song for Joy was published by Abingdon Press. She has directed youth and adult choirs for 12 years, both local churches and travelling choirs. In addition, she has conducted many choral workshops for young singers.

She teaches piano, voice and guitar and has a special interest in music therapy. She and her husband, a United Methodist minister, make their home in Walla Walla, Wash.

Further information and camp registration forms can be obtained from any United Church or by telephone from Phyllis Moore 598-8165. For family camp call Joan Sharpe 477-1576.

Witnesses plan for conventions

The Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society of Toronto has announced plans for four international conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses in Canada during the summer of 1978. Theme is Victorious Faith.

Arnold McNamara, convention manager, Toronto, said 145,000 delegates are expected at the conventions scheduled in four different cities.

McNamara said the largest complexes in the country wil be utilized. These include the Edmonton Coliseum, Winnipeg Stadium, Empire Stadium in Vancouver and the Olympic Stadium in Montreal.

Richard Tannhauser, spokesman for 10 delegations in Victoria, said more than 1,000 representatives will be traveling to Vancouver for the convention scheduled at Empire Stadium. The crowd for the convention, July 19-23, is expected to reach 22,000.

Tannhauser added that 145,000 people are expected to attend the four conventions across Canada, with sessions to be held in nine languages: English, French, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, Greek, Ukrainian, Arabic and Korean.

Twenty conventions are planned for the continental U.S. with an attendance estimate of 760,000.

"There are many issues confronting society today," Tannhauser said. "These include changing moral standards, emphasis on materialism, social problems, energy crises and an accelerating arms race. The convention will stress the value of faith in the Bible as Christians face these issues and other daily problems of life."

Bennett's Third Session Short, But Not Placid

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Davis has been committed to stand trial over his alleged habit of converting first class airline tickets to economy and pocketing the difference.

North Peace River MLA Ed Smith resigned as Speaker following the publicity that surrounded the appointment of his girlfriend to a sensitive government position.

In 64 sitting days that started March 30, MLAs passed 39 bills and approved a record $4.28 billion budget for the current fiscal year including for the first time more than $1 billion spending in both the health and education ministries.

NDP leader Dave Barrett views the session as a strange one that gave hints the government is beginning to crack.

The former premier said the government proved rudderless with no indication there is any cohesive leadership in the party.

He said Premier Bill Bennett was testy, jumpy and resorted to pettiness and sleaziness.

Barrett noted the attack the premier engineered against him by dredging up government airline logs that showed Barrett's wife accompaned him on six flights to official government functions during his 3½ years as premier.

The NDP leader said he is convinced Bennett is not doing a good job as leader and said if he could have the best possible person to bring down the government, he would choose the premier himself.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson said he felt MLAs accomplished some very important work.

He praised new Speaker Harvey Schroeder for initiating more decorum in debate and said he was pleased to see the Crown corporations committee set up to audit the province's large Crown corporations.

And although there is still a long way to go, he said it was refreshing to see the government more willing to listen to the opposition debate and make amendments to legislation.

Rookie Tory leader Vic Stephens says he got more out of the session than any other member because it was a learning process for him.

The Oak Bay MLA said next time he'll have the background to really tackle his job.

During the session, the Opposition hammered Bennett's spending estimates for two weeks and also tried to have his salary reduced.

Other ministers had an easier time as the NDP let their estimates slip through without too fierce a battle.

Most new legislation received speedy passage although a handful of bills generated stiff and often bitter opposition.

Concerted attacks were launched against the compulsory heroin treatment legislation, the new Forest Act, the act changing electoral boundaries and the Transit Act.

The session saw a number of new faces. Stephens won Oak Bay for the Conservatives taking over where Scott Wallace left off.

And the newest MLA quickly found an issue with his pledge to lead a California-like tax revolt, picking up some much-needed publicity.

Walter Owen finished his five-year term as Lieutenant-Governor and was succeeded by Brig. Henry Bell-Irving who quickly endeared himself to the press and government officials with his first ever official statement the day he was sworn-in: "Gentlemen, I think the bar is open."

Bennett was sworn in as energy, transport and communications minister shortly after dismissing Davis.

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm, who was in the spotlight so much last session that the NDP ribbed him that he was vying for the premier's chair, kept a much lower profile this session.

In fact his profile was so low, he apparently got worried toward the end of the session and grabbed a reporter for an "exclusive" interview in which he proposed shipping welfare cases out of Vancouver back to their home towns.

Schroeder's efforts to be the best and most highly thought of Speaker seemed to bear fruit if the popularity of his surprise birthday party was any gauge.

Other personalities emerged more clearly. The venerable veteran Socred Cyril Shelford from Skeena announced he was in his last term in office because he's sick of the bipartisan bickering in the house.

NDP reaction to new bills was slow and methodical.

And the reaction tended to centre more on such things as cost and impracticality rather than on civil libertarian issues as in the case of the Heroin Treatment Act.

Bennett said all along this session would be short and light on legislation.

Compared to last year's marathon 133-day sitting which saw nearly 90 bills introduced, he was right in his prediction.

COYOTES LEARN LESSON

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP) — A taste aversion program aimed at teaching coyotes in British Columbia's Peace River area not to kill sheep has only partially succeeded, says Fred Harper, fish and wildlife branch biologist.

The experiment which began in April, involves the injection of lithium chloride (a salt) into dead sheep baits. Any coyote taking the bait becomes sick and turns to killing other animals for food.

"We haven't lost any lambs this year," said Harper, "but the coyote population is down so it's hard to measure the effectiveness of the program."

He said the coyote population is declining due to an outbreak of mange this year.

Oil, Gas Rights Raise $17M

More than $17 million was raised this week through sales of oil and gas rights in B.C. Mines Minister Jim Chabot said Thursday.

Chabot said that $16.8 million was raised through tender bonuses, while the remainder came from statutory fees and rents on bids involving 114 parcels of oil and gas rights.

The disposition offered 137 parcels covering 160,744 acres of petroleum and natural gas rights, of which 147,474 acres were purchased for an average of $114.42 an acre, the minister said.

Committee Clears MLAs

A special committee of the legislature has unanimously cleared four Social Credit MLAs of any wrongdoing in connection with alleged illegal acceptance of expense money.

The Social Credit-dominated committee, boycotted by all opposition MLAs except Conservative leader Vic Stephens, found Thursday that the four government members did not violate the Constitution Act and therefore are not in danger of losing their seats.

Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf and George Kerster (SC—Coquitlam) had been accused by the NDP of illegally accepting expense money while serving on a committee two years ago which did not have the legislature's sanction.

Len Bawtree (SC—Shuswap) said he was in possible violation of the act because he had accepted government range improvement funds.

NDP members refused to sit on the committee. They said that because Social Credit members formed the majority on it, a fair hearing couldn not be guaranteed. The NDP said the matter should be settled in the courts.

Former attorney-general Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) said his party's worst fear came true.

"We believed that the committee would whitewash the thing, and we were proven true," Macdonald told reporters.

However, Stephens, a lawyer, said Thursday the proceedings were legally sound and the decision was just and honest.

Tax Hike Blame Pinned on Socreds

VANCOUVER (CP) — Municipal governments, regional districts and authorities funded through property taxes are blaming the provincial government for huge property tax increases which have sparked mass opposition throughout the province.

The British Columbia School Trustees Association says the 15.5-per-cent increase in budget funds from province-wide property taxes was necessary because the provincial government's contribution is not sufficient.

The Greater Vancouver Regional Hospital District says it was forced to ask for a 36-per-cent increase in property taxes this year because the provincial government's share in hospital construction is not sufficient to meet the district's commitments.

The B.C. Assessment Authority says it was forced to increase its property tax levy by 22.5 per cent because the provincial government's annual grant to the authority is frozen at too low a level.

"And it's the municipalities who are getting all the blame," said George Ferguson, first vice-president of the B.C. Union of Municipalities.

"The province brought in the new assessment formula this year and told everyone the municipalities are better off," he said in an interview Tuesday.

"But then it dropped its contributions to school boards and everything else dependent on property taxes, forcing them to raise their levies."

B.C. municipalities increased their share of property taxes by 7.7 per cent this year to $379 million from $352 million.

Meanwhile, B.C. school boards increased their share of 1978 taxes by 15.5 per cent to $498 million from $481 million in 1977, regional districts increased their share by 16.1 per cent to $19.5 million from $16.8 million; the hospital districts increased their share by 23.4 per cent to $17.4 million from $14.1 million and the B.C. Assessment Authority increased its share by 22.5 per cent to $13.7 million from $11.1 million.

Since California voters passed a referendum reducing taxes, B.C. taxpayers have been in an uproar over their property taxes. B.C. Progressive Conservative leader Vic Stephens has called on B.C. ratepayers to revolt against the provincial government's formula for municipal and school financing and community meetings have been held throughout the province to protest the increases.

"If the province had just maintained the same level (of contributions to local school budgets) as the year before, $43 million more would have gone to local municipalities," said Dave Kendall, president of the B.C. School Trustees Association.

He said the provincial government sets the tax, which pays for the basic education program that makes up about 95 per cent of operating costs, but the government's share of local operating costs has declined from 43 per cent in 1975 to 39 per cent in 1978, leaving the local taxpayer to pick up the balance.

Ted Gwartney, commissioner of the B.C. Assessment Authority, said the authority's actual 1978 budget increase is only 3.7 per cent but a hefty increase in the authority's property tax levy was necessary because its government grant has been frozen at $5.7 million since 1974.

He said the initial legislation had allowed for a government grant of one-tenth of a mill against the full assessed actual value of property. As assessments went up every year, so would the government grant, but with the grant frozen, the authority was forced to first draw on its own resources—and when those ran out—the property owner.

The GVRD increased its share of property taxes by 36 per cent to $9.22 million in 1978 from $6.78 million in 1977 and will continue to increase "quite considerably" until 1981, said an official in the hospital district finance department.

"We are currently involved in very major construction," he said. "We have been behind in hospital construction and we're catching up. "Next year, the requisition will be up to $12 million."

GVRD chairman Jack Campbell said the hospitals' share of property taxes will continue to skyrocket unless the provincial government pays more than the current 60 per cent of capital costs of hospital construction.

'It's a good life in a good place'

By PHILIP SOUSA

LA ROMANA, Dominican Republic — Pablo Maria Brito shares this corner of his country's spectacular southeast coast with a flock of rather famous folks.

Alas, he hasn't seen a movie "in quite a few years" — so he wouldn't recognize Sophia Loren if the talented Italian star were to swim or sunbathe within sight of his boat, which she often does.

I met this simple and hospitable man in Bayahibe, a primitive fishing hamlet about 21 kilometres down the coast from where he lives and works taking visitors around in a runabout.

For this village, which hugs incredibly clear waters and stands amid a riot of tropical trees and flowers, the clock seems to have stopped years ago.

Ditto for Brito.

He's going to be 69 this year, but looks much younger.

A human map the color of ripe tobacco leaves, his face is that of a veteran sailor.

How long have you been at it, you ask. And with that touch of poetry peculiar to Spanish-speaking people he says: "The sea and I have been together for 55 years."

But to call him an old man is inaccurate, you soon discover. Several of Brito's pals in Bayahibe are 100 and older.

His secret?

"The good life in a good place," he says, one leathery arm on the steering lever of his boat, the other sweeping in an arc to take in the scenery around us.

And what a sight, his slice of the good life!

Transparent aquamarine waters. Superb uncrowded beaches of soft white and caramel sands. Lush vegetation thick with flowers and singing birds. Simple houses and fishing boats sporting every color of the rainbow. Men and youngsters plucking fine fish from the bountiful sea. Few visitors, but lots of healthy cows, horses and pigs meandering along Bayahibe's unpaved streets. Lovely children quick to dazzle you with great smiles. And all very peaceful, very gentle.

Remote in pace and feeling, this village. Yet it's only a couple of hours by car from Santo Domino, this country's very 20th century capital with its modern hotels and casinos.

Bayahibe stands at the edge of what may well be the ultimate resort in the Caribbean: Costasur, a 7,000-acre complex built by Gulf and Western.

For sheer luxury, setting, amenities and service, its homes, condominiums and two hotels are unmatched.

La Romana is a small sugar-processing town right on the Caribbean. And it is right next to the sugar mill that Hotel Romana catches your eye with its handsome wood balconies, original tiles, stone walls and graceful archways; in fact, the structure once was a guest house for mill visitors.

A few miles down the coast, linked to Hotel Romana by minibuses that run throughout the day, is Casa de Campo, the resort's piece de resistance.

With rates that start at $35 for a single and $45 double, a casual atmosphere and a swinging nightclub, Hotel Romana attracts a rather young crowd. Casa de Campo, on the other hand, draws families and guests who are more interested in golfing than dancing; rates at this posh collection of hotel rooms, secluded villas and other accommodations whose facilities include private jet airstrip, polo field and two Pete Dye golf courses, start at $80 a day for a single.

Both hotels serve outstanding food. And, of course, both have swimming pools.

The one at Casa de Campo boasts a two-level thatched roof bar and lounge; you swim or wade your way to the bar, which is at water level, and climb a flight of wood steps to the breezy wall-less lounge.

But, as mentioned, golf is big here.

No less than 36 championship holes. Seven holes of the 6,700-yard course skirt or cross the sea. And every hole has three separate tees. Golf magazine's verdict: the finest golf resort in the world.

You can also go snorkeling through coral reef gardens; cruise aboard the resort's 52-foot schooner; go deep-sea fishing; visit horse and cattle ranches; tour the sugar mill, which is the largest privately owned sugar refinery; shop for Dominican arts and crafts here at La Romana or in nearby Santo Domingo or, if the mood strikes, do nothing more strenuous than turning yourself into a luxury version of a beach bum.

BAYAHIBE
COSTASUR

"The sea and I have been together for 55 years, says Pablo Brito who, at age 69, is really a youngster - - many of his friends on the Dominican Republic hamlet of Bayahibe are 100 and older. This hospitable sailor and his unspoiled village are representative of the people and sights found on Caribbean island whose first tourist was Christopher Columbus.

Upper Canada Village: 20th century 'creation'

UPPER CANADA VILLAGE, Ontario — This 18th century village, much like Virginia's Williamsburg, located about 160 kilometres west of Montreal along the St. Lawrence River, is a 20th century "creation."

However, even though a bit ersatz in character, it offers a delightful day of enjoyment and instruction in life as it was over 200 years ago.

The village might be said to be part of Canada's effort to establish something in the way of a national heritage or historical tradition. As such, it is as successful as Williamsburg — complete with old blacksmith shop (except the smithy is a labor union man and does not work Saturdays and Sundays when most tourists are here.)

There is a working farm here, managed in much the same way as farms were managed in Revolutionary War times — and it was Tories from the United States who fled here when the colonies triumphed over mother England in the war.

Upper Canada Village, even though it depicts life 200 years ago, came into being as a result of creation of the St. Lawrence Seaway in 1959. In order to build the seaway, it was necessary to flood about 100 square miles of farmland, including eight historic villages on the Canadian side of the river. These villages were the sites of some of the earliest settlements in Upper Canada (much of which now is the province of Ontario), so-called because the area was upstream from older areas like Montreal.

To the casual eye, this village looks like it might always have been here. The Ontario provincial government, however, moved most of the buildings here from the eight towns that were sacrificed for the St. Lawrence Seaway. Even doing this, there were not enough buildings collected to re-create a complete village. Other buildings were moved from other areas of Eastern Ontario — thus the composite village that now exists.

Canadian historians presided over the work, to the point that a total of 531 buildings were moved here — all in one piece, even including the two-story Cook's Tavern — and were furnished in the mode of 1784. Guides are in what North Americans would call colonial costume, furnishings are authentic to the time depicted, horse-drawn carriages take visitors on tours, an old sawmill operates daily and actually provides lumber for work still under way.

A visit to Upper Canada Village is a must and part of history classes for Canadian school children. Canadian senior citizens are admitted free (U.S. seniors pay the going rate of $2.) About 5,000 tour the village on summer weekend days.

Those who preside over the village (the official agency is the St. Lawrence Parks Commission) also seek to teach a lesson with a 20th century application.

Trip into Red China now an easy procedure

Travel Tips

By STAN DELAPLANE

Going through Hong Kong and at the last minute decide you'd like to visit Red China? Well . . .

"Now it's as easy to spend a weekend inside China as it is to go between Los Angeles and San Francisco," my Hong Kong correspondent writes. "You need a passport, three passport photos and $185 U.S.

"Travel advisors in the lobby of the grand old Peninsula Hotel on the Lowloon side of Hong Kong handles it. You have to give them your passport, photos, and money by Wednesday noon for the Friday trip.

"Friday you take the Hong Kong train to the border. Get off. Walk across the famous Friendship Bridge. Board the People's Republic train bound for Canton. (Seats are first-class. Which means they're padded, and they serve you hot tea immediately.)

"The price gives you train fare, hotel, meals and sightseeing. Canton only. Monday you come back the same way."

"MY BOY friend is left-handed. He says it's impossible to get a cigarette lighter with a wheel that spins for him. Apparently the wheels you spin with your thumb are made for right-handed people. For lefties, they spin out of your hand . . ."

They have golf clubs, can openers, scissors. Even greeting cards that open on a southpaw turn.

CAMBRIDGE, the University town 60 miles north of London, is the gateway to East Anglia, a rural part of England that was untouched by the industrial revolution. (I think England is the most rewarding driving country in Europe.)

Our reporter there now says: "We put up one lilac-scented summer night at The Swan in Lavenham. A medieval village that was big in the 14th and 15th centuries of the wool trade.

"A good place to base. Second World War American airmen left their signatures on the bar. Painted a nude on the ceiling."

"JUST OUT of town is one of those rare culinary surprises you find on England's back roads. Robert Carrier — (TV and cookbook man from America) — rescued Hintlesham Hall seven years ago.

"It's a Queen Anne cream-and-white manor house. He turned the lower floor into a restaurant that must rank with the best in Britain. Grilled guinea fowl with limes. Fillets of trout braised in lettuce leaves.

"Lunch $12. Dinner $14.

"A long-ago owner, they say, dressed his wife in a French maid's uniform and made her pull him around in a cart. Much to the amazement of the locals. Naturally, she haunts the place. No extra charge."

CP AIR'S Ernie Beyl reports from Tokyo: "In one of the big department stores on the Ginza, I broke the language barrier by drawing a picture of an umbrella.

"I came up with a little umbrella that sits on your head. Like a Chinese coolie's hat. Really very practical, leaving your hands free to carry packages. About 18 inches across when opened. Folds to 12 inches in length.

He says: "The pencil-and-paper communication is the best I've found where you can't speak the language. However, I tried to buy a mosquito net in Mexico. Drew a picture of an arm with a mosquito biting savagely.

"The shopkeeper brought out a fly swatter."

Aztec capital

Heavenly altitude excitement

By EVELYN KIERAN

I keep a bag packed in hopes someone will invite me to Mexico City. It is always ready, for no place in the world continues to fascinate, to offer such pleasures, such excitement and such wonderful feelings of joy, merely to be there, as the ancient capital of the Aztecs. I love Mexico City.

When the most recent invitation came, to assist at the opening of the new El Presidente Chapultepec Hotel, naturally, I was there.

The hotel fronts on the famed Chapultepec Park in one of the prettiest districts of the city.

But remember, please, it is also in a heavenly altitude. Go slowly at first. Take a little walk from the hotel.

The neighborhood is one of the best. Not new, but gracious. Lovely old stone and brick houses. Well tended gardens with magnificent flowering shrubs. The fragrance of the city assaults my memory.

Soft music invites conversation, romance among the tea and cocktail drinkers.

The music rises a little, soft voices murmur, ice tinkles; it is a paseo indoors. In one corner a balloon man offers wild-colored bubbles to two enchanting little brown-eyed girls in hand-embroidered pinafores. A smiling senorita cuts her eyes toward an elegant young caballero and heads for the elevator.

Dinner is at El Lago, a great rustic building on the park lake, flashing colored fountains on many, well-planted levels. Cork ceilings keep the conversations on a hearable level. Corks popping accent the mesmerizing rhythms of the mariachis. And the dinner!

An icy soup of velvet avocado and cream, served with a white, fragrant wine. A terrine of red snapper, with a mousse of a delicate local white fish, sauced ever so lightly with a quiet veloute. And duck in a golden sauce, cooked to perfection with a lingering tartness, complemented by a rich red wine. A feast from the gods themselves!

And then to the Zona Rosa to dance the night away. Tomorrow we will return to the beautiful shops to buy leather and onyx.

Tomorrow. There is always tomorrow.

The day reaches out before us.

We walk just a few pleasant blocks under great shade trees to the fabulous Museum of Anthropology. And for hours we are lost to the ages. Miniature copies of pyramids of 2,000 years ago, reproductions of whole cities, artifacts from many cultures. It is vast, cool, crowded with history, philosophy, religion, revolution.

Then suddenly we are at the Museum of Contemporary Art. The great canvases seem to leap from the walls and grab us. What color! What light! What enormous vitality! Here is the spirit of rebellion which finally broke the dictators' backs. Here, rising from the very heart of the people, is the beginning of self-expression.

NEW ORIENT/CHINA CRUISE

We are pleased to announce a new 54-day Orient/China cruise sailing roundtrip from San Francisco/Los Angeles September 21/22, 1979, aboard the Royal Viking Sea.

The highlight of this new cruise will be a 4-day call at Shanghai, with a choice of two optional excursion programs that offer a remarkable and exciting adventure in today's China.

The first program includes sightseeing Shanghai, plus an overland excursion to Peking, to visit the Great Wall of China, and the Palace Museum—the former Forbidden City—which houses some of China's greatest art treasures.

The alternate program features three days exploring Shanghai's major attractions, with insights into the daily life of the Chinese people, plus one day traveling to the ancient city of Soochou. You will see exquisite works of Chinese art, and visit the Children's Palace, where the musical artistry and other skills of Chinese children are nurtured and developed.

And on both programs, you will have ample time to explore Shanghai's "Friendship Store," for once-in-a-lifetime shopping for scrolls, carpets, antiques, furniture, silks, and many other treasures.

Speaking of once-in-a-lifetime shopping, this cruise also features extended stays in two of the great shopping capitals of the Orient: three days in Hong Kong, and two days in Manila.

GARDENING

July 15's A Date To Circle

As the calendar sheet is turned to July, the home gardener puts a large ring around Saturday, July 15.

This is the date for starting a vegetable garden, or for making the sowings and plantings that will continue the supply of fresh vegetables through September into October, with some producing into December.

As far as I know, the southwest coastal area of British Columbia is the only place in Canada where a fall vegetable garden is part of the regular gardening schedule.

A start is made on July 1. Vacant spots in the present vegetable garden are composted and tilled, or a new area is prepared in the same way.

If possible the fall vegetable garden, and the winter garden which is sown in mid-August, should be located beside an all-weather path and the rows spaced sufficiently to allow planks to be placed for harvesting the crops in inclement weather.

The cook, male or female, is not going to enjoy walking in mud to pull carrots, cut greens, or gather beans and peas after the rains start in September. Clean paths make the gathering of fresh garden crops as pleasant as savoring the flavors at mealtime.

Between mid-July and the end of September we can reasonably expect 75 days of perfect growing weather, with a few rain showers around Labor Day to help things along.

Any vegetable which will mature in 75 to 80 days is suitable for sowing now. Some of the shorter-period crops can be extended by another sowing after the first is well established.

Those vegetables we have been sowing at intervals of 10 to 15 days are continued on this schedule until around mid-August when the final sowings for the winter vegetable garden are made.

In addition to preparing the soil immediately, the seeds on hand should be checked and listed and a want-list made of those needed by mid-month.

This is the time when it is a great help to have a reliable seed company's catalogue on file, one which gives sowing dates, time to maturity, varieties especially suited to the home garden and those best for fall sowing. It does not matter if the catalogue is two or three years old.

When you start looking for seeds in local outlets you will find the seed racks, so prominently displayed until early June, have now disappeared, because seeds are no longer in demand by 99 per cent of home gardeners living in Canada.

Our sources of supply now are the local seed companies, florist stores, farm and garden outlets in the city, and Canadian seed growers who offer mail order service for the seeds not available locally.

The weather during the weeks ahead will be the opposite of spring. In spring the soil was wet and cold and we waited impatiently for our sowings to germinate.

In July, the soil is warm, germination takes place in from 48 hours to seven days, and the seedlings make rapid growth, reaching maturity in approximately the same average day temperatures as our early spring crops.

Only the long-season crops such as tomatoes, parsnips, pole beans, squash, cucumber and similar are excluded.

The following list taken from the catalogue on file gives some idea of the wide choice of vegetables that can be sown now. The figures in brackets are the number of days to maturity; where two figures appear, several varieties covering the period shown can be used.

Green and wax beans, French or bush type (40-50).

Bush Lima beans (60).

Bush soy beans, Fiskeby V (70).

Swiss chard (55-60).

Cress (10), radish (28).

Corn salad (45).

Flower-of-Spring cabbage; transplanted early Sept. for use as leaf cabbage in April, heads in May.

Hybrid Chinese cabbage (60).

Carrots (50-70).

Extra early cauliflower (47-68).

Sweet corn (53-58).

Kohlrabi(50-55).

Lettuce, butterhead types (60-64).

Peas; edible pods (60).

Regular (55-62).

Summer white turnips (30 for greens; 60 for roots).

Spinach (45-50).

Swede turnip (Rutabaga) sown now, harvested size of tennis balls in September.

There was no difficulty in keeping the seed rows moist in spring, but there is in July.

It is often necessary to provide some shade over the rows until germination has taken place and the seedlings have their roots a few inches into the soil.

The best temporary shade is provided by pieces of scrap shiplap leaning against wooden stakes to give shade from the hot aftenoon sun.

It is not wise to use any covering laid flat on the soil because it makes a perfect gathering place for all kinds of insects, good and bad, and the seedlings disappear overnight.

In a period of high temperatures the seed rows may need a gentle misting with water two or three times a day. It is not necessary at this stage to water deeply as roots are at the surface, and deep watering will tend to cool the soil and retard early growth.

If this should be your first attempt at a fall vegetable garden, keep a record of the varieties used, date of sowing, approximate weather conditions and the dates of first and last pickings. This information will be a most useful guide for making a successful fall vegetable garden in future years.

HEALTH SURVEY COMING

TORONTO (CP) — A federal survey of 12,000 Canadian households should give a clear idea of what is normal health for persons in various age groups and regions, the project's director says.

The survey, a joint effort of Statistics Canada and the health and welfare department, is the first major study of its type since the Canadian sickness survey of 1950-51.

Project director Thomas Stephens said most health statistics currently come from death records, insurance files, disease registries and hospital reports.

Persons surveyed are interviewed on health matters and then asked to fill out a questionnaire on lifestyle and behavior patterns.

At about one-third of the households, there will be physical tests of blood pressure, heart rate, body fat, liver and kidney function and levels of iron in the blood.

The survey will start in the western provinces on Monday.

Favor for B.C. Friend Proves Rough Sailing

Rosemary Toms and Roger Johnson of Capetown, South Africa, spent six months on two oceans as a favor for a friend living here — so how was the fishing?

"Don't ask us about fishing, please," Toms said. "That's a sore point — we didn't catch one the whole time!"

Instead, the pair battled winds, freezing temperatures and rotting sails to steer themselves half way round the world and deliver a 31-foot sloop to their friend.

Waiting for them this week when they arrived was Buddy Hulscher, who built the sloop then arranged for his two friends to deliver it when he moved to West Vancouver from Capetown earlier this year.

Toms and Johnson were in Victoria sightseeing. They will head for home in a week or two — by air.

"We ate and slept and steered — we're exhausted," said Toms, 31, who took a year's leave of absence from her job as an x-ray technician.

Their problems began just out of Capetown when the engine broke down, and sails had to be relied on for the rest of the trip.

They said the sloop's nine sails took an enormous beating. The main sail was in tatters, while others were so rotted they could no longer be mended and patches were glued on. Temporary lashings held the Genoa sail.

Johnson, 35, an independent building contractor in Capetown, was the more experienced sailor and handled navigation by block and sextant.

Food came from cans and goods taken aboard after port stops at St. Helena's Island in the middle of the Atlantic, Brazil, the West Indies, Panama, Acapulco, San Diego and Seattle.

Hulscher said the sloop is licensed to race and he hopes to enter it in local events after he gets a new set of sails.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY CANADA

A special wish expressed through community television programming on Cable Ten Victoria begins at noon on Saturday, July 1st. "Looking at Canada" contains eight hours of vibrant and colourful entertainment by Victoria Ethnocultural Groups plus Canadian Cultural Documentaries depicting the history of our land and the origin of many of the Canadian people. Visitors and many Victorians give sometimes surprising answers to the question: "What is a Canadian?" and young people from across our country discuss Canada's future. The local programming segments of "Looking at Canada" will be repeated July 1st beginning at approximately 8 p.m. The Victoria Communities and Cable Ten Victoria say "Happy Birthday Canada" on July 1st. Watch for it and see someone you know!

Floods Engulf Yugoslavia

BELGRADE (AP) — Three straight days of heavy rainfall caused floods in many parts of Yugoslavia on Thursday, engulfing hundreds of houses and thousands of acres of farmland.

A state of emergency was imposed at Vrsac, near the Romanian border, after the Nera River flooded 7,500 acres of cropland and forced many families from their homes, officials said.

HATCHING FLIES? GOV'T SAYS NO

TORONTO (CP) — A number of persons believe the Ontario government is releasing large, hairy flies to combat forest tent caterpillars in the province this summer but the ministry of natural resources says it is not true.

The ministry says nature is responsible for the large parasitic flies — sarcophaga aldrichi — which are a major factor in the 90-per-cent reduction in the number of caterpillars in the southern Georgian Bay area this year.

The ministry said in a statement Thursday that it has been beset with calls from angry cottage owners, who believe that the flies are being released by the ministry in order to control the caterpillars.

"In recent weeks, we were getting 40 calls a day, many from very irritiated people who demanded we stop releasing flies," said Rod Carrow, provincial pest-control supervisor.

"We are not raising and releasing the flies, we never have and we don't have any plans to get into that type of program," he said.

The increase in the flies is a natural phenomenon connected with outbreaks of tent caterpillars which occur about once every 12 years.

The flies, larger and hairier than the common housefly, tend to congregate in the sun on warm man-made surfaces such as car roofs, picnic tables and windows.

They don't bite but their buzzing and presence are a great source of annoyance to persons, the ministry said.

Disarmament Pitch To France, China

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The UN General Assembly's special session approved a proposal to enlarge the Geneva disarmament commission and eliminate the joint Soviet-U.S. chairmanship in a bid to bring France and China into the arms talks.

The assembly's working committee of the whole approved a final document for the session without a vote early today, assuring its adoption. The assembly began the special session on disarmament on May 23. It was expected to adjourn later today.

The document will increase the 31-nation Geneva committee to 37 or 40 members. The chairmanship will rotate each month among all committee members on an alphabetical basis. A permanent secretary will be appointed by UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to organize the committee's business and timetables and take care of other administrative details handled in the past by the co-chairmen.

The United States and the Soviet Union both agreed to give up the co-chairmanship they have held since 1961. France refused to participate because of the superpower domination, and China after its admission to the United Nations, also refused to participate for the same reason.

70% Lack Safe Water

WINNIPEG (CP) — About 70 per cent of the world's population is without safe, dependable water, the annual conference of the Canadian Water Resources Association was told Thursday.

Dr. Noel Brown, director of the United Nations Environmental Program, said waterborne diseases, among them malaria and typhoid, kill 25,000 people every day.

"Studies in eight developing nations have shown that 90 per cent of deaths in children could be avoided by safe water supplies, hygienic sanitation and sewage deposal," he said.

Another of the keynote speakers on the opening day, Dian Cohen, a Montreal resource economist, said part of the problem is the general apathy towards our water resource.

"It is difficult to get people to see that the situation with water management is serious," she said. "People's lives are filled with too many other complicated issues for them to worry about pollution causing cancer 10 years down the road."

But, she said, eventually we'll have to pay for that apathy.

Snow Still Unfit For Water

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A federal government survey indicates that the amount of arsenic in snow in the Yellowknife area last winter was considerably less than in 1975, but the snow was still unsuitable as a regular water supply.

The environmental protection service said in a news release Thursday that a survey taken in March by that agency and the department of Indian and northern affairs showed mean arsenic levels were still above the recommended levels for potable water.

The survey was designed to determine the characteristics of snow in the Yellowknife area. Samples were collected within a 30-mile-radius and analyzed for arsenic, cyanide, mercury and other metals.

The environment service said the result of the analysis were compared with past survey results and "the arsenic content of the snow showed a significant decrease."

Last Tug

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A tug-of-war that ended when the rope snapped and 200 of the 2,274 students and teachers were injured will be listed in the 1978 edition of the Guinness Book of World Records but a Guinness official said the category will be abolished because of the dangers involved.

New Car and Truck Specials!

Brian McLean Talks About New Car & Truck Specials

Why is this a good time to buy? Because we are in a "buyers" market due to high inventories and consequently lower prices.

Right now we are probably at our "peak" for availability of 1978 models. With 327 vehicles in stock and another 165 on the way that's a total of 492 cars and trucks for you to choose from!

Also, we've had a real good year so far on both new and used sales and to keep up our volume we'll give you a very good price on a new vehicle and as an extra bonus an attractive allowance for your trade.

So come in today and take advantage of us. Remember — it's a "buyers" market.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Judge William Ostler wished an impaired driver good luck in his treatment for alcoholism when he sentenced him in provincial court Thursday to six months in jail.

Six concurrent sentences of six months each were handed Roland Schutz, 35, of 2642 Dowler, who pleaded guilty to two counts each of driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 and driving while suspended, and one count each of impaired driving and refusing a breath test demand made by police.

"I wish you luck," Judge Ostler said. "It's a dreadful affliction and I'm sorry for you."

Schutz was stopped on May 5 by Saanich police, May 20 by Victoria city police, and June 20 by Sooke RCMP and charged with the drinking-driving offences each time.

Crown counsel Don Laughton said Schutz had a serious drinking problem and was a prime candidate for the Alouette River unit for the treatment of alcoholism.

Legal aid lawyer Brian MacKenzie said Schutz had attended Alcoholics Anonymous meetings but "it hadn't paid off." He said his client is willing to try the program at Alouette River.

"The alternative is to kill yourself," the judge warned.

Ostler also told Schutz he must be motivated to make Alouette River work.

Schutz was placed on two years' probation and ordered to take any DARS counselling as directed.

Laughton said Schutz had four previous drinking-driving convictions dating back to July 21, 1964, in Regina.

An 18-year-old who was denied bail in the morning returned in the afternoon to plead guilty to two break-ins.

David Marshall Berriault, jointly charged with two counts of breaking and entering with 17-year-old David Nelson Jarvis, was denied bail by Ostler when both appeared in the morning. Jarvis was released on his own recognizance in the sum of $500, ordered to obey a 9:30 p.m. curfew, and remanded until next Thursday for election of trial method.

Both teen-agers, who gave their address as 760 Queens, were charged with break-ins last Thursday at Acklands Ltd., 2017 Government, and Budget Rent-A-Car Ltd., 1800 Douglas.

In the afternoon, defence counsel MacKenzie entered the guilty plea on behalf of Berriault, a recent arrival from Jasper.

Crown counsel Laughton told the court the break-in at Acklands occurred about 8 p.m. but that nothing was taken. Two hours later, Laughton continued, a key was taken from the car rental establishment. Laughton said Berriault and a companion were picked up by Victoria city police about 10:20 p.m. walking along Discovery Street.

MacKenzie said Berriault only had about $15 in his pockets and was looking for cash.

Ostler noted that Berriault had an "unenviable" record for his age, particularly a conviction on Feb. 7, 1977, for breaking and entering for which he received eight months in jail and 12 months' probation.

After Berriault said he had gotten "mixed up in drinking for three years," the judge sentenced him to 10 months in jail, recommended his term be served at the Boulder Bay camp, and placed him on two years' probation. Ostler also ordered Berriault to take any Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation Society counselling as directed.

An 18-year-old who pleaded guilty to four break-in charges June 23 was given a break by Ostler, who said a monetary penalty was not much use in this case.

Brian Kenneth Moore, 56 Strathdee Place, entered the pleas in connection with three break-ins at a storage warehouse at 3100 Jacklin in March and a break-in at 4121 Glendenning on April 10.

The break-in on Glendenning was the most serious in Ostler's view. Laughton said Moore and a 16-year-old companion saw a woman drive off and knocked on the door. Finding no one home, Laughton stated, they broke in and ransacked the premises, taking $850 in American Express cheques, $118 cash, more than $20,000 in deposit certificates, a stamp collection valued at $800 and various life insurance policies and wills.

Laughton said the pair destroyed the papers, opened metal boxes with an axe and sold the stamp collection to a dealer for $600.

MacKenzie asked the court to note it was Moore's first brush with the law and that Moore was a follower in the break-ins. He also advised the court Moore was going to start work next week in Alberta.

Ostler gave Moore a suspended sentence, placed him on one year's probation, ordered him to pay $117 restitution and not to associate with any of the co-accused persons, and to perform 200 hours of community service work when he returned from Alberta.

A 27-year-old Sooke man was charged with unlawfully using a firearm.

Norman Robert Lund, 6263 Sooke Road, was arrested by Sooke RCMP early Thursday morning after eight-to-10 shots were fired in a populated area.

Ostler released Lund on his own recognizance but ordered him not to possess any firearms or to enter any licenced premises or liquor outlet while the case is before the court.

Lund was remanded until next Thursday for election.

Robert Dale Morton, 21, of 606 Galiano, was fined $500 and prohibited from driving for six months after pleading guilty to dangerous driving.

Laughton informed the court Morton was involved in a serious accident April 29 in the 1800-block Old Island Highway when his vehicle collided with a power pole.

Laughton said a passenger had to be pried from the vehicle with the Jaws of Life and it was estimated Morton's vehicle was going 80-to-90 mph when it hit the pole.

A 32-year-old Colwood man was remanded for psychiatric observation after being charged with three counts of indecent assault and two counts each of buggery, gross indecency and assault causing bodily harm.

Gerald Patrick Rushford, 63 Kingham Place, was remanded until this afternoon in the hopes a psychiatric examination could be performed.

A no-publication order was granted in the bail hearing which is expected to continue today.

Single Lottery - Bennett

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett said Thursday lottery advertising should be curbed and suggested one lottery in Canada would be enough.

Speaking on a radio talk show, Bennett was reacting to a complaint by a caller about the proposed computerized Loto Canada lottery to be introduced in November across the country.

Bennett said he "appreciates people's right to buy the tickets," but questioned the extent of advertising lotteries.

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy earlier said the lottery sales market should be limited and said the federal government-supported Loto Canada, designed initially to help finance the 1976 Montreal Olympics, was being unfairly extended without consulting the provinces.

$500 Fine Imposed Over Stolen Bike Parts

Ronald James Lawrence, of Victoria, was fined $500 in county court Thursday for having stolen motorcycle parts in his possession.

He pleaded guilty to having a frame, wheels and other parts of a 1975 Harley-Davidson bike of more than $200 value last Nov. 5 in Esquimalt. The parts had been stolen and obtained by Lawrence through a member of a motorcycle club. He said he paid the biker $250 for the frame, knowing it was worth much more.

The theft occurred last October at the apartment of George Turner, 614 Esquimalt, whom Cornish was visiting while on a day pass from Wilkinson Road jail where he was serving a sentence for impaired driving and driving while under suspension.

Fall Styles Made to Order

By BERNADINE MORRIS
New York Times

Minimal. Underplayed. Clean.

Halston's made-to-order collection for fall is all these things.

It is also elegant, luxurious, wearable.

In short, just the kind of clothes women are looking for today.

His credo has always been quiet clothes for day, exuberant ones for evening clothes are quiet, too. Well, as quiet as, say, gold lame can be.

As he accepted the kudos after the first of his two showings in his impressive Olympic Tower salon, the designer seemed a little surprised at all the homage.

"So many things weren't finished," he lamented.

The things that were ready looked good enough, especially for those who value the virtues of simplicity.

The plot the designer has devised for next winter is not at all hard to grasp. During the day, you wrap yourself in a knitted cashmere pants suit, with a matching stole draped around your shoulders. Or perhaps you would prefer an alpaca coat in the new almost-ankle length. You swing along with it open, the belt hanging negligently loose at the sides.

Some variations are possible, of course. The coat can have slightly rounded sleeves, as in a wine-colored style worn with a matching narrow wrapped skirt.

Or the jacket can be a reversible affair, black on one side, cyclamen or green on the other. But the aim is never look-at-me. It's truly throwaway casual — despite all that cashmere and alpaca.

The surprise is in the evening scene, where the shapes remain almost as simple as the daytime ones. The main fabric now is satin, supplemented by chiffon and lame.

The basis of most evening outfits is pants — Skinny satin ones, usually black. There are some exceptions. The pants can be creamy white, in which case they are accompanied by a matching shirt-jacket. Or they can be red and worn with a comfortably loose bubble jacket that is more cape than jacket.

Wine or purple satin pants are matched by padded quilted jackets. It's the bubble, however, that turns up repeatedly — in gold lame, pink matelasse and rust-colored chiffon, among other versions. It's a little easier to handle than a stole, it changes its shape as the wearer moves, and it carries with it echoes of that old-time elegance.

Despite the big emphasis on pants, Halston has no objection to skirts. There are any number of them in chiffon, especially with one-shoulder necklines.

And there are a number of caftans too, as Halston revives his loose shape of a few years back, thinking of the clients who aren't skinny enough to wear his skinny pants.

It's a collection that manages to touch all bases — even if all the clothes he had in mind weren't ready for the show, Halston at top form is very good indeed.

Youth Clinic

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Blair Shaw, psychologist; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker. Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N4.

Dear Mr. Vichert:

I am a 14-year-old girl. I met this cute 16-year-old guy about a week ago. At first he was really nice. Then he became a bug and always hung around me which I disliked.

He comes over at night around midnight to my bedroom window and calls to me but I never answer him. Now I hear from my friends that this guy and his friend are after my girlfriend and I to rape us.

If I tell my parents they will never trust me again with guys. But, if I talk to him, he will just deny it and keep on bugging me. I need help.

Answer: You should tell your parents. Tell them that there is a boy who is bothering you and that you need some help deciding what to do about it.

I think your parents will trust you even more if you turn to them when you are in trouble. Telling them lets your parents know that you trust them, that you see them as people who can help you and that whenever you are in trouble you will let them know.

Tell your parents soon.

Dear Mr. Vichert:

I am a 17-year-old girl and I have been going steady with an 18-year-old boy for 11 months now. The problem is that I love him a lot and enjoy going out with as much as I can.

My parents are upset with me beause I go out with him so much.

I do not go out every single night and I do see my friends some nights. Now I can't even go out with him two nights in a row.

I don't see any harm with going out with him more than four times a week after we've gone through 11 months together.

My parents think we go out just to neck but really we don't — I love him and he loves me and we just go out to be with each other.

Could you please tell me if there is anything harmful about our relationship?

Answer: I can certainly understand that if you love someone you would want to spend as much time with that person as you can. The world is an exciting place, but when you are exploring it with someone that you love it becomes even more exciting and interesting

From your description it does not sound as if there is anything harmful about your relationship. I wonder why your parents are concerned?

It may be that they do not want you to be hurt — perhaps they lack confidence in your boyfriend. Do they know him well? Would it help if the two of you spent more time at your house so that your parents would be able to know your boyfriend better?

This might help them develop some trust in him and therefore in your relationship. I think one way to deal with your problem would be to have a discussion with your parents to find out what they are concerned about.

Dear Dr. Shaw:

When I was six-eight years old I was pretty popular with boys. I had a lot of attention. Now whenever a guy finds out I like him, they go off to some other girls.

I'm only 14, but since I was so popular when I was younger I guess I miss it.

I get so frustrated because I'm short, not pretty, kinda cute, I guess, and kinda plump.

Please help me before I drown in all my tears. Crying is all I can do even if it doesn't solve my problem.

Answer: Check out the picture you have of yourself. Are you really so unattractive: Short, plump, not pretty? Or are you "kinda cute" as you suggest in another part of your letter?

The picture we have of ourselves is often inaccurate and is really the result of the problems we are experiencing rather than the real image we present to others.

I don't doubt that you feel upset, lonely and "out of place," but these feelings are so common at your age that it is almost a routine part of growing up — painful though.

Take a good look at yourself in the mirror. Then get a few friends, relatives, etc. (some should be a little older) to talk over with you just what you look like. Don't bother talking with anyone who is just going to give you a story to make you "feel good." Only honesty is worthwhile.

50 Countries Offer Hostels

Youth on the Move

By LUCY IZON

There are now more than 50 countries involved in the International Youth Hostel Frederation providing over 4,500 simple, inexpensive places to stay overnight.

The term youth hostel can be misleading. In general, their membership is open to anyone regardless of age. However, Belgium, Switzerland and Bavaria will give preference to those travellers under 27.

The cost to join is about $12 and you can arrange a membership before you leave by contacting the Canadian Hostelling Association (CHA) in your area. Air Canada ticket offices will also be selling memberships, but don't leave it until you reach the airport — they are handled by downtown offices.

When you join, there are several other items that you can consider purchasing, depending on your personal plans. Volume 1 of the CHA handbook will give you information and addresses of all the hostels in Europe and the Mediterranean. In the back of the book is a map that is cross-referenced with the information so that you should have no problem in finding the correct locations.

It is also possible to purchase from the CHA a money belt ($5) and a sheet sleeping sack ($6). If you plan on staying in hostels rather than camping on your trip, the sack is not a bad idea. Some of the hostels will not let you us a sleeping bag on their mattress after it has been used outdoors. You will also find the sack much lighter to carry with your pack.

All of the hostels have separate dormitory-type accommodations for males and females and they also provide a common room where hostellers may congregate in the evening and relax. The hostel is a good way to meet other young travellers and exchange information on places you have been to or are planning to visit soon. There really is no better authority on a specific place than a young traveller who has just been there. The overnight fees vary. You will usually find them anywhere from $1.50 to $3.50 a night and this can sometimes include breakfast.

If you're planning on staying in a youth hostel in a major city or tourist area during peak tourist periods, an advance booking is a good idea. You can make the booking with the hostel or the regional office and a handbook will give you this information. Deposits are not normally necessary, but prior notice of cancellation is requested. There is a limit of up to three consecutive nights at any one hostel. However, if accommodation is available, your stay may be extended.

The one possible drawback to this inexpensive type of accommodation is the curfew. They are closed in the daytime from about 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., when they reopen for signing in. And in the evening they close their doors at 10:30 p.m. to midnight, depending on the hostel.

Switzerland is not only the home of some of the most breathtaking scenery in the world, it's also the country to see the International Alpine Hot Air Balloon Races and join in on numerous birthday celebrations. Here's what's coming up:

On July 29, in Kreuzlingen, is the Grand Lake Night Festival. It's a fun atmosphere and the fireworks over the lake at night make it one of the favorite events in a Swiss summer.

Switzerland was founded in 1291 and Aug. 1 is its birthday. Celebrations are held all over the country with numerous activities and a national holiday.

If you're in the area of the town of Lucerne Aug. 11 to 13 or on Sept. 30 you'll be in time for its 800th anniversary. It will be celebrated with a Swiss Musicians Festival on the summer dates and a Youth Festival on the later date. The theme of the latter will be Lucerne of Tomorrow.

Jazz lovers should head towards Zurich Aug. 31 when they hold Jazz Festival '78.

Aug. 25 is the 750th anniversary of Liechtenstein and the party there will run until the 27th.

The town of Uzanch will also celebrate its 750th anniversary this year and the date for its Jubilee Market will be Sept. 2.

If you're around Lausanne Sept. 9 to 24, watch for the 59th Comptoir Suisse. It's a national autumn fair.

For something really different try the sixh International Alpine Hot Air Ballooning Week. It will be held in Flims commencing Sept. 21 and running through until Sept. 27.

Students Survey Traffic

Eight students are spending the summer sitting on chairs beside various roads in B.C. talking into little black boxes.

Hired by the ministry of highways, they are doing a licence plate survey.

Ray Bains, public information officer for the ministry, said the study will provide highway officials with greater information about traffic patterns on secondary road systems.

The specialized group was in Victoria this week, checking the traffic on McKenzie between Glanford and Gordon Head.

The students record on a tape-recorder the car licence numbers and the time the vehicles pass along checkpoints over the route. The information is then plotted on graphs and fed into a computer.

The group will complete a similar survey in Sidney and then move on to Duncan, other points on the Island, and the mainland and interior.

Doing the Town

With DOROTHY FRASER

Gift shopping at the Art Gallery . . .

We don't often go overboard nowadays . . . not after 15 years of visiting stores of all kinds . . . but we must say that the Art Gallery's gift shop . . . just back after four months of extensive alterations . . . left us speechless when we dropped by last Monday! . . . They have such perfectly beautiful and unusual things, not limited to Canadiana, but from many parts of the world . . . (Right off the bat we bought a lovely Corinne Boychuk bowl to give as a wedding gift) . . . Many other delightful pieces of pottery by this excellent potter . . . Now let's give you a quick rundown of things you won't find elsewhere . . . Color Windows and Kinetics, which you must see to appreciate. They're absolutely fascinating . . . great gifts for children, the elderly, or hospitalized adults. Guaranteed to take your mind off your troubles! . . . Japanese netwukes . . . Ashanti gold opium weights from West Africa . . . Pure Thai silver jewelery, little boxes, etc. . . . reproductions of antiques . . . Beaten copper and brass objects made here in Victoria . . . Beautiful blown glass and gorgeous paperweights . . . Thai silk scarves and men's ties . . . Appleton's crewel wool and patterns . . . Gordon Huchens raku pottery . . . Delightful stuffed animals by Rockinhorse Crafts of N.S. . . . Lidded casseroles, soup bowls and mugs by Roger Stripley of Vancouver . . . Lots of things which complement the oriental art pieces shown in the Gallery . . . Art books, and baku hasti-notes and lovely postcards . . . And a lot of jewellery you definitely won't find anywhere else . . . Open daily from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. . . . The Gallery Shop, Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, 1040 Moss St., 384-7012.

The chic look of transition . . .

Any fashion-conscious woman knows how very important the "transition" look is . . . those clothes which are dark in color, but very lightweight in fabric . . . which you start wearing in August when light summer clothes are beginning to pall . . . and keep on wearing right through the autumn! . . . Gibson's have just received some exciting new clothes with the new look of transition . . . and we'd like to suggest that you go have a look at them soon . . . One is a 3-piece suit in a copper grey and black print polyester resembling fine cotton . . . Black georgette blouse with soft tie neck, all-round pleated skirt and tailored jacket . . . A wonderfully understated dress is a copper, gold, brown and navy paisley with bow tied neck . . . This too a polyester with the look of gossamer wool . . . Then there's the "Four O'Clock" dress . . . perfect for cocktails and such . . . very pretty dress in a black green and gold print chiffon, with soft sleeve and slightly blouson top . . . A real August dark dress! . . . A 2-piece. dress, in black or mushroom crepe has a short-sleeved tucked top and a clever skirt tucked over the stomach . . . These new skirts less full than last season's . . . We saw an outstanding black disco dress . . . Floaty chiffon with tucked high bodice, wide shoulderstraps and separate long tie . . . Dressy envelope style ultrasuede purses in black, brown, and two shades of grey . . . Detachable straps . . . and real roomy to hold all your impedimenta! . . . Gibson's, 708 View St., 384-5913.

A regal stone for a July birthday . . .

So nice to see de Goutiere's open again . . . and all their precious jewellery back on display! . . . Bearing in mind that the ruby . . . "the sun's own gem" . . . is the birthstone for July, we hovered over the new ruby rings which glow so richly in their diamond settings! . . . One is a cluster of rubies and diamonds . . . another has a centre ruby with three diamonds on either side . . . and a third in a rich red ruby surrounded with small diamonds . . . Admired a danty little gold earring and pendant set with a small ruby in each . . . and gold flower earrings with a ruby in the centre . . . (Noticed this same gold and ruby flower used as a catch on a string of cultured pearls!) . . . De Goutiere has some quite unusual and little-seen stones mounted in rings . . . Tanzanite . . . which is purplish blue, is in a ring with marquis and round diamonds . . . Diamonds also surround the pale green oval garnet set ring . . . Another ring is set with tawny brown andralusite, circled with green garnets . . . and there's a lovely dark green emerald-cut garnet set off by diamonds . . . We admired a free-form malachite pendant on a gold chain . . . such interesting patterns in the stone! . . . Saw a necklace and bracelet of cultured pearls with jade and gold beads . . . and another of lapis with pearls and gold beads . . . Lots of unusual styles in engagement and wedding ring settings . . . Loose diamonds which you can select yourself. . . . de Goutiere Jeweller Ltd., 2542 Estevan Ave., 592-3224.

Thinking of a summer perm? . . .

Has the advent of these hot summer days caught you with your hair down . . . meaning it's limp and fractious . . . looks like the dickens when you come in from a swim or finish up a game of golf? . . . Then what you undoubtedly need is a really expert haircut (which doesn't necessarily mean short!) . . . and a perm for body and manageability, right? . . . This time why don't you try OUR hairdresser, the Charming Lady . . . a salon whose expertise half the town is buzzing about? . . . We can promise you unconditionally that . . . no matter WHAT type of hair you have . . . you'll be completely happy with the way you look when you leave the shop with your new hairdo . . . And delighted with the way it stands up between appointments . . . (We know women who never NEED appointments between their periodic cuts and perms!) . . . As for whom to ask for . . . well, all the staff are amazingly proficient in all phases of hair care, custom perming, cutting, coloring and styling . . . and they're tremendously nice people, to boot . . . If you ever have a hair problem, discuss it with Tibor whose knowledge of hair is downright awesome! . . . Ask for Tibor, or Mary, or Donna or George . . . you'll be delighted with any one of them . . . As for the salon itself, it's cool and relaxing . . . a really good atmosphere you'll enjoy! . . . Charming Lady, 1712 Douglas St., 385-8133.

Delightful fashions in half sizes . . .

We can remember when half-size dresses tended to be somewhat short on style . . . but this is no longer true . . . They're getting better and better . . . and certainly look smarter on many women than the regular sizes do! . . . At Charmante's this week we saw some beautiful sunny prints in half sizes, starting at 12½ and right up to 22½ . . . A very pretty print . . . beige background with apricot, white, and touches of soft pink . . . Another dainty blue print with soft flared skirt, short sleeves and low jewel neckline with rows of stitched piping . . . This one we'd like ourself! . . . Another smart style in a short-sleeved dress with tie neckline has a long-sleeved jacket to complete the ensemble . . . Comes in navy or green with white . . . A long-sleeved dress which is actually polyester thought it looks like cotton, is completely lined, buttons down the front. Cool and attractive green and white print, it's the perfect summer dress for a heavier figure . . . Sizes 16½, 18½ and 20½ . . . For those hot sunny days there's a pretty 100% cotton red/white/navy print sleeveless sundress . . . The sort of thing you'll wear happily now then take on a cruise next winter! . . . Charmante's have a nice assortment of printed skirts, some with matching stoles . . . Well priced, too . . . Some very pretty flounced skirts complete with stole, are tagged at just $27 . . . Charmante's Hillside Shopping Centre, 595-1555.

Here's a Mecca for needlecraft devotees! . . .

Surprising the number of people from as far afield as southern California who are beating a path to the Victoria Needlecraft Centre on Oak Bay Ave. . . . Guess it's a case of good news travelling on the wings of light . . . because the tremendous variety and high calibre of the needlecraft supplies to be found here is certainly good news for any man, woman or child devoted to the ancient art of stitchery! . . . There's a big tramme needlepoint picture of Empress Eugenie and her court . . . the faces already worked in petit point, exciting a great deal of interest . . . Only two of these in the world, and Mrs. Brandt has them both! Price is $525 . . . We saw a lot of new tapestries . . . all imported . . . either pre-worked or painted . . . New painted canvases from Eva are here again . . . If quilting is your thing, you can now get a big quilting frame at Victoria Needlecraft . . . with extensions to make it into king size . . . And big round or oval hoop frames which can be used for either quilting or punched rug making . . . Quilting batts are also obtainable here, and quilting classes will start again on Sept. 18 (Store closed Sept. 1-16 for well-deserved staff holidays) . . . Along with all the supplies needed for needlepoint . . . there's also everything that goes into the making of rugs and wall hangings . . . Complete kits or separate rug canvases and yarn . . . A new line of rugs and wall hangings never seen here before . . . arriving in September . . . Victoria Needlecraft Centre, 1863 Oak Bay Ave., 592-3711

Discover the joys of going by train . . .

It's donkey's years since we were last on a train . . . yet our memories of boarding a train in Toronto and travelling through to Vancouver . . . with nose glued to the window practically every inch of the way . . . are as green as if it all happened yesterday! . . . Well, train travel is coming into its own again . . . with the creation of Via . . . that happy blend of CN and CP Rails . . . Trains are ungraded . . . fare structures have been formulated so that everyone benefits . . . you even book ahead for coach now so you can be sure of a comfortable seat! . . . Believe us, this is the way, par excellence, to really see and appreciate Canada! . . . You can cross the country one way on the southern route via Calgary and Banff and return via Jasper, or vice versa . . . there are dome cars from which to thrill to the wonders of the Rockies . . . Package tours to the Maritimes and Eastern U.S. . . . especially in the fall when nature's colors are so glorious . . . When you go by train you'll probably see more than you've ever seen before! . . . And just to give you an example of some of the fares . . . Vancouver to Toronto costs $113 but if a man is accompanied by his wife, SHE only pays $84 . . . and fares for other people travelling together are correspondingly low . . . Do your booking through Paulin's . . . They can give you all the details about tours, etc. Hurry though . . . there'll be a great demand for train travel this year! . . . Paulin Travel, 532 Broughton St., 382-9168.

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I sing in a chorus. After a long rehearsal I get hoarse. My concern is that I might permanently harm my voice if I try to sing "over" it. What recommendation can you make? — Mr. H.R.E.

DEAR MR. E.:

Many people blessed with a good singing voice too often are careless about the preservation of this gift.

Understandng how the vocal cords work may give you a better sense of value about their delicacy and how they must be gently "catered to" if you are to continue singing.

The vocal cords are two strands of muscular tissue about one inch long. When one speaks the vocal cords come together and vibrate thousands of times a minute. When one breathes, the vocal cords separate to allow the free passage of air from the mouth into the lungs. One cannot breathe and speak at the same time.

Anything that interferes with the vocal cords coming together in an exact, close position will produce huskiness, hoarseness, or even loss of speech (aphonia).

Temporary hoarseness, as in your case, is almost always due to vocal abuse, excess strain on the vocal cords and temporary swelling due to infection or inflammation. Tobacco can be constant source of irritation.

Since the vocal cords are muscles, they can get tired by overuse and straining. Uninterrupted vocalization in rehearsals can cause fatigue of the muscles.

Anyone with the precious gift of a good singing voice deserves to have this done. Sometimes, an evaluation by a singing coach, or by a speech therapist, can pinpoint a mistake in the singing technique.

Singing "over" hoarseness can convert a simple problem into a complicated one.

'GREEN MARKET' PLANTS?

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Don and Marlys West say they feel they have lost a member of the family.

Minneapolis police say they are the victims of a petty theft.

The Wests say police displayed a deep lack of understanding when informed of the disappearance of the Wests' favorite houseplant and its plant companion.

"It was part of the family," Mrs. West said Tuesday. "One year when we couldn't afford a Christmas tree, our three children decorated the plant."

"When I left the house, I used to wish it a good day — we believe in talking to plants," West said.

The plant was described as an appleleaf croton, about five feet tall. It was last seen last Sunday night when Mrs. West put it on the back porch so the rain could wash its leaves.

Around midnight, West said, he heard a dog bark twice "in a strange way." In the morning, the plant and poinsetta plant-friend were gone.

West called police. When they said they couldn't come immediately, he called the mayor's office. Very shortly, Deputy Police Chief Leonard Brucciani took over the case personally.

"I felt that if the plant were going to be fenced, the police should have a description of it in their hands," West said.

Police doubted there was much of a "green market" in stolen plants. The appleleaf croton sells for about $15 in local nurseries, but it's far more than a monetary loss to the Wests.

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle- If you're waiting for an apology, make sure you're not the one to make it.

6-10 Neutral Cycle- Read the want ads carefully. Opportunity may be knocking and you're turning a deaf ear.

11-15 Positive Cycle- Your fingers are itching to do something crafty. It's a good day for repairing or touching up neglected furniture.

Bio-dex should be used as a guideline, not an excuse. There are times when a delay is suggested for some project until the cycle rises, but this is only if that delay is possible. If you've got a deadline, work to it and use Bio-dex as an indication of troubled areas. Just knowing where they are is a big help.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle- Don't wait for the blues to hit — firm up your positive attitude now and keep it that way.

6-10 Neutral Cycle- Cooking is an aggravation to you. Stick to simple recipes, and flambe later.

11-15 Positive Cycle- You've been getting a little cynical lately. Loosen up and start feeling happy again.

Does depression seem to pounce on you unawares? Do you find yourself in the dumps for no apparent reason? Did you know that combining your Bio-dex reading and a little self-awareness can help you stave off the blues before they hit? Watch for a low emotional reading, recognize it, and avoid depression by changing your plans.

No Link With Blindness

HALIFAX (CP) — Glaucoma, an eye disease affecting about two per cent of the Canadian population, must not be equated with blindness, says Dr. Raymond Leblanc of Sherbrooke, Que.

"Very few new cases go on to blindness," he said in an interview here.

"We've done a pretty substantial job in controlling it."

Leblanc, who is head of the ophthalmology department at University of Sherbrooke medical school and a specialist dealing frequently with glaucoma patients, described the condition as "a whole spectrum of diseases . . . generally characterized by high pressure in the eye.

"That pressure dominates the optic nerve and leads to progressive loss of the functioning of that nerve."

CODE CHANGED

TORONTO (CP)— About 400 representatives of Canada's 4,500 physiotherapists have voted to remove from their code of ethics a requirement that they obtain referrals from doctors and dentists before starting treatment.

Antoine Helewa, president of the Canadian Physiotheraphy Association, said lifting the rule might permit physiotherapists to become active in screening school children for posture, foot and muscular-skeletal defects; helping the elderly keep mobile and active at home; directing home treatment for people with respiratory problems and be involved in mass education programs to alleviate back problems and arthritis.

Tip of the Bonnet to Retiring Milliner

elizabeth forbes

There's a hat for every woman. There's not a woman in the world who cannot wear a hat.

Hats are just as important as shoes. And, as with shoes, you've got to like the hat you are going to wear; you've got to feel comfortable wearing it and it must fit.

That's the belief Evelyn Wilson has carried with her through all the years she has been chosing, selling and making hats, and there is no doubt, it has helped to bring her recognition and success.

Tonight, when she closes the door of her shop at 770 Fort Street for a last time, and retires from business, she will have the satisfaction of knowing she leaves hundreds of customers who, season after season, relied on her to help them chose the hats they should wear.

Miss Wilson made her decision to close The Hat Shop, several months ago.

"Actually it was when time came to buy new stock for the fall and winter season," she says.

"It was either buy and stay in business for another year or pass up the buying and close.

"I made my decision . . . to close."

That decision marked the end of many years of buying, selling and making hats.

She started as a young girl with the Misses Herd — Georgina, Annabelle and Minnie — in their store at 750 Yates Street, named The Hat Shop.

Those were days when "women were extremely hat-conscious," Evelyn Wilson remembers.

"They would buy not only one but two and three hats at a time . . . one, perhaps, for everyday wear and the others for dress-up occasions."

Back then "women usually came to town on Saturday afternoons especially to browse in the shops and it was a busy time for us."

She also remembers the gallery workroom in the Misses Herds' store where she learned to make and trim hats — big hats, Empress Eugenies, sailors, cloches "and every other shape you can imagine."

Also the "many, many times in a day" she ran up and down the stairs to that workroom to find flowers, feathers, plumes or ribbons for customers to see with a hat before deciding on some special trim.

Finally she bought The Hat Shop from Minnie Herd and became its sole owner.

She continued in the same location until shortly after the Second World War, when the Bank of Montreal, at the corner of Douglas Street, decided to take over the building and expand its premises.

"I had to go looking for a new location," Evelyn Wilson says, "and that wasn't easy. In fact, I only discovered two vacant stores in all of downtown Victoria, one on lower Yates and the other at 770 Fort, where there had been a coal office."

The Fort Street place was the better choice but already there was a hat store in that block, owned and run by Miss Minnie Beveridge.

"Before I made my final decision I went to see Miss Beveridge, to ask if she thought both of us could survive.

"She was very encouraging; fair and understanding, too. So I moved The Hat Shop to Fort Street, and Miss Beveridge and I became friends."

That was 29 years ago.

Since then Miss Wilson has seen many changes in her line of work. From the era when a woman was not properly dressed for an occasion unless she was wearing hat and gloves, to the last 10 years when bouffant hair styles often ruled out the wearing of a hat.

Through it all The Hat Shop had its regular customers, among them women who came year after year, from the lower mainland and the Seattle area to buy from Evelyn Wilson.

In the past few years the shop has become unique as the only store in Victoria devoted entirely to selling hats.

"I have stocked gloves and scarves on occasions, as accessories to hats," Miss Wilson says, "but never anything else."

It was a little over a month ago that she started her closing-out sale.

"I wanted everything to go. My summer hats, the fixtures . . . everything", she says.

And everything did go! She locks the door tonight on an empty store.

What does Miss Wilson intend to do from now on?

She has no plans, she says. All she wants at the moment is to relax and rest.

However, you can be sure, that any time she appears in public, even if it is only to go to a store for groceries, she will be wearing a hat.

Indeed, she tells you with no little determination, in all her years in the business, she has always worn a hat.

HITTING TRAIL? WHAT TO BUY

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®

...it tells you how

Like so many outdoor sports, backpacking can be expensive or inexpensive — depending on how much you want to spend on equipment. That doesn't mean, however, that inexpensive equipment has to be "cheap" in quality. In the following article, Mother Earth reader John F. Barber tells you what to look for.

FOOTGEAR

A pair of sturdy, rock-resistant hiking boots should be considered essential. Look for medium-weight boots with reinforced heels and toes and protective padding around the ankles.

Carefully check the construction. The fewer the seams, the less chance that water will leak to your feet. Full-grain leather and Norwegian welts are indicators of quality in any boot.

When you shop for footgear, wear the type socks you expect to be wearing while hiking. Also, try boots on late in the day, when your feet are hot and swollen.

As you put the boots on, slide your feet as far forward in them as possible, then see if you can fit one finger down behind your heel. If you can touch the bottom of the boot with one finger, you should have the right length.

Next, lace up the footgear snugly and go climb some stairs or do a few knee bends. There should be very little up-and-down play of the heels as you walk, and when you step down an incline, your toes should not ram into the front of the boots. The ultimate test is to walk up to a wall and kick it. If you don't hurt yourself, you've probably got a good-fitting, solid pair of hiking boots.

BACKPACKS

For short hikes, a frameless pack is best. But for longer treks, you should have a pack that's mounted on a metal frame.

Regardless of what type pack you select, be sure to find out before you buy whether it's comfortable. The best way to do this is to load the carrier with 50 or 60 pounds of gear and put it on.

Hoisting a fully-loaded pack onto your back involves a certain amount of technique. Basically, you first balance the pack on your toe. Then spread your feet for balance, bend your knees, and — grabbing the pack's shoulder straps — heave the pack up onto your raised thigh. Now slip an arm through one of the shoulder straps. Transfer the weight to your back and slip your other arm through the other strap.

Before going any further, secure the waist strap and make adjustments between it and the shoulder straps so a good portion of the pack's centre of gravity is high and foward.

SLEEPING BAGS

The most critical element of any sleeping bag is the filling. Here, you'll have to choose between goose down and one of the new synthetic stuffings.

For light weight, warmth and compactness, goose down has no equal. However, down is expansive, and when it gets wet it offers no insulation or warmth. Synthetics, though, provide good warmth even when they're saturated with water.

When you select a bag, remember that loft (the thickness of the bag after you've fluffed it up) is important — the higher the loft, the more the warmth.

Style and color are matters of personal taste. As long as the outer construction of your sleeping bag is of tightly woven, water-repellent nylon and the filling is spread evenly throughout the bag by a series of baffles, you're all set.

SHELTER

A small tent is the hiker's best protection against the elements. When shopping for one, choose the model that affords the best protection for the least amount of weight (five pounds for a two-person tent is plenty).

SHOPPING TIPS

Despite all the advertisements to do otherwise, remember that you don't have to purchase new gear. Most thrift shops and secondhand stores have some camping equipment, and a lot of it is still very serviceable.

It Could Be You Don't Need Any More Sleep

caveat emptor

We all have trouble with our sleep at one time or another.

Sometimes it's simply hard to get to sleep. At other times it's hard to stay asleep through the night. At still other times we wake up too early in the morning and can't get back to sleep. Sometimes all or some of these difficulties may occur in combination.

Researchers have found that if such disturbances in sleep occur only from time to time, they don't really cause us any physical harm. On the other hand, if sleep disturbances occur frequently and consistently, they can in time end up interfering with life during the day, leaving us tired, depressed and anxious.

But there is no clear dividing line between normal patterns of sleep and the patterns we associate with insomnia. In fact, insomnia is often as much a state of mind as it is a physical condition. Studies indicate that between 30 and 50 per cent of all persons who are convinced they have it actually get as much sleep as people who see themselves as normal sleepers. In this case people think they have insomnia, but physical recording of their sleep in a sleep laboratory shows their sleep patterns are in no way out of the ordinary.

Remember also that sleep requirements normally diminish as we grow older. A newborn baby sleeps 18 hours a day; young adults usually need about eight hours; older people usually need only five or six. But as people get older, they may continue to go to sleep at the same time as they did when younger. As a result, they may lie awake for hours, and blame it on insomnia. Or they may wake up early in the morning and be unable to get back to sleep — because they have slept all they needed.

Another point to keep in mind is that researchers have found that worrying about not having slept enough is often more of a problem than the physical effects of the actual loss of sleep itself. This is especially true if the worry leads you to the habitual use of sleep-aid preparations, whether they are sold over the counter or by prescription. If you take them consistently over a long period of time, these preparations can themselves become a lasting cause of insomnia.

This fact is documented by researchers at a sleep laboratory at Stanford University in California, who found that 40 per cent of patients who complain of insomnia actually lose sleep because they have become dependent on the very drugs — such as barbiturates — that they have been taking to treat their condition. Clearly, here is a case where a supposed cure only makes the condition worse.

When these patients are gradually withdrawn from these drugs (very slowly — with a decrease of one dose every five or six days) they sleep on the average 20 per cent more. And many have no symptoms of any sleep problems once they have completed withdrawal from the drug.

But what happens if you withdraw from these pills too quickly? Researchers have found that most sleeping preparations — in fact most drugs, including alcohol — suppress the sleep that is associated with dreaming. As a result, if you stop taking these pills all at once, you catch up with this level of sleep all at once, too. This catching up takes the form of bad dreams and nightmares. These disturbing symptoms often prompt the patient to return to the pills all over again — often at increased dosages. In this way a vicious cycle is set in motion.

How long should anybody take sleeping pills? Researchers have found that most prescription pills are not effective for more than two weeks of consecutive use. The drugs are often effective in indusing a form of sleep — but not a natural one — for one or two nights. But studies show that if you take them for much longer than two weeks, you're actually likely to have as much (and sometimes more) trouble in sleeping as victims of insomnia who are not taking any medication at all.

There is one message that all the researchers and pharmacists I contacted emphasized over and over again. That message is that it's best to seek a non-chemical solution to the underlying causes of insomnia, rather than trying to treat the symptoms with chemicals.

Cancer Goal 'Impossible'

EDMONTON (CP) — An American food scientist says the public is wasting its time demanding removal of cancer-causing items from the environment.

"It's an incredibly stupid concept — one that doesn't take into account the realities of living," Dr. Fergus Clydesdale, a professor of food and nutrition at the University of Massachusetts, said.

Clydesdale told the annual conference of the Canadian Istitute of Food Science and Technology the public is after an impossible goal — a safety stamp on all consumer items.

"They won't accept the inevitability of their own death," Clydesdale said. "They think you can ban everything."

The nutrition expert said the food industry and government should commit themselves to educating consumers about food. The thrust should include information on the positive ways in which food technology affects nutrition.

"We want everything to be therapeutic. We have to tell the public that food is not therapeutic," Clydesdale said.

Clydesdale said all products on the food market, with the possible exception of health-food peanut butter, are "excellent."

However, the public was duped by the current fad that natural food is better than processed food. Industry was taking unscrupulous advantage of that fad by advertising products as being "natural," without additives.

"We have a whole series of these absurd advertisements coming from the food industry. It's bad for the public and it's unscientific."

Clydesdale told conference delegates that the food industry, scientists and government constantly under-emphasize the consumer's intelligence and over-emphasize their factual knowledge.

Science tended to use simplistic terms such as "nutrition" or "harmful to health" to describe food value. Those terms were essentially meaningless and prevented a deeper level of understanding about food value.

Clydesdale urged the institute to pursue the long-term education of consumers, but warned it could not be done immediately.

DAVID KNAPTON,
B. Sc., M. Sc.

Mr. David Knapton has been appointed to teach physics at St. Michaels University School, Victoria, starting in September. Born and raised in Bella Coola, B.C., Mr. Knapton attended Victoria College, Royal Roads, and the Royal Military College, in Kingston, Ontario, where he took Honours Maths and Science. For three years, as a naval officer, he taught electronics and computer science, before entering Queen's University for post-graduate research leading to an M. Sc. degree. For the past seven years, Mr. Knapton has taught in a community college in London, Ontario. His interests — apart from computers, which he regards as "the ultimate toy" — include judo and rugby. Mr. Knapton is married with two small children. His appointment to St. Michaels University School will add still further strength to a strong science department.

Classics Win Hands Down in Fashion Battle

New York Times

MILAN — The week of Italian fashion shows ended with a flourish as tailored, paired-down clothes for next fall and winter vied for store buyers' attention with mad, fantastic ones. In fashion's version of the traditional battle between classics and romantics, the classics won, hands down. The purpose of the showings is, after all, to sell clothes. it is easier to sell a tailored suit than a whoosh of ruffles.

Much of the fantasy was seen in the furs, especially Fendi's, which are pieced, seamed, puckered and shirred so much you can't tell if they started out as weasel or mink. It's one of their charms. The Fendi furs have a wild, barbaric quality.

Some furs were worked in patterns like mosiacs, some were cut in strips and woven like raffia, some were patches of mink, ocelet and shaggy lamb all together with their different markings and textures.

Rosita and Ottavio (Tai) Missoni, who are to Milan what Valentino is to Rome and Saint Laurent to Paris, rank among the classicists. This time they didn't give a runway show. In honor of their 25th wedding anniversary, they staged a retrospective of their knitted clothes from the early 1960's. Live models sipped wine, munched on sandwiches and visited with the guests as they showed the new styles while static displays presented the old ones. Except for the question of length, there wasn't too much difference.

The new clothes were somewhat closer to the body than those of the past year or two and the colors were clearer, but they will not make anybody's old Missonis obsolete.

The bravos rang the rafters after Giorgio Armani's show. They were his own rafters, in a sumptuous palazzo he acquired recently after pioneering the unconstructed look and the oversized blazer for men and women. It is the tailoring, an Italian tradition that is often as sloppy in this country as any place else, that makes his concepts come off.

His gift for fall is a long jacket suit with military shoulders that suggests doughboys' uniforms of the First World War. The round-crown brimmed hats worn with them reinforce the impression. At a time when mass fashion centres on short battle jackets, it took foresight to come out with the longer jacket. It accompanies pants, skirts or culottes and it sometimes has epaulets.

The look is also 1940's. But don't dwell on it. The style is good. Some of the suits have stand-up collars that are repeated in the blouses worn with them and some have smocking at the yoke. The smocking is one of many softening agents that take the curse off the military look. For boas and a scarf with rows of ruffles at the edge are others. Sometimes they go too far.

The "odd jacket" is a major contribution to the ongoing flow of fashion at Basile, another collection that was warmly received. A distant relation of the tweed sport jacket for men, it turned up in leather over wool dresses, poodle cloth over leather suits and in printed satin over solid-color satin pants and tops for evening, among other incarnations. Always it was done with enough panache to look as if it belonged.

The wildest applause was drawn by the stripped worsted man-tailored pant suits, worn with satin blouses, pork-pie hats, plaid topcoats and carnations pinned to the lapel. They were good crisp versions of this growing genre. The showing was well organized, the clothes well made and the collection clearly one of the season's winners.

While other designers are paring down their shapes, the "big look" lives at Laura Biagiotti. Coats in fabrics that look like burlap are lined in quilted fabrics for bulk, dresses blouse enormously over narrow pants and there are smocked bubble-shaped jackets that exude charm for those who don't mind billowing clothes. Loose white shirts flecked with glitter are belted over narrow pants or very full-tiered skirts for insouciant evening outfits.

But when the fun and games are over, the loopy mohair coats and other three-dimensional knitted styles are the ones to be taken seriously. Toddlers dressed in knitted clothes and carrying big balls of yarn the size of baloons draw mad applause.

SOME OF THE KNITS at Krizia during the week-long Italian fashion showings were worn down the runway by youngsters like these.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I and our four children (ages 7 to 13) were invited to a relative's home for supper recently. She had one large table set for the adults and another one for the children.

My daughter, age 13, came to me and said she wasn't going to sit with the "babies." (Two of her 12-year-old cousins were sitting at that table and they didn't complain.) I told her not to make a fuss and to go sit down and be quiet. Being a very headstrong child, she raised her voice a bit and said she would rather go home.

Well, I wasn't about to take her home, and I couldn't let her walk home alone at night, so in order to avoid a scene I told her to go get her chair and to sit by me, which she did.

I dislike scenes in public and I still think I did the right thing. My husband said I should have told the spoiled little stinker to either sit where she was put or to go into the bedroom and sulk. What is your opinion?

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: With such a smart husband, why are you writing to Dear Abby?

DEAR ABBY: I am one of those who has accepted many invitations but never reciprocates. I, too, have talked of having a party, but it never materialize. Would you like to know why?

I'm frightened to death of having people in because when the conversation lags, I'm tongue-tied. I can never think of anything clever to say. I am not sure that what I cook will be good enough, and I'm not sure I'll serve it right.

In school I was the quiet type who earned the reputation of being "stuck up" because I was so shy. I know I should have people over, and I really want to, but I'm scared. How does one overcome such fears? I am almost 35.

INEPT

DEAR INEPT: Many people don't entertain because they're afraid they won't do it to perfection. Nonsense! Perfection isn't expected of anyone. There are any number of good cookbooks with suggested menus and full instructions in serving.

And get over the idea that everyone in the room is waiting for pearls of wisdom to drop from your mouth. Say anything. If it's audible, kind and honest, you'll get by. The longest march in the world started with one step. Forward — march!

Alternative Fuel Sources Queried

TORONTO (CP) — Producing liquid fuels from garbage and wood is not an economically feasible alternative to the use of petroleum for transportation in Ontario in the near future, says a report released Thursday by the Ontario energy ministry.

The report, titled Liquid Fuels in Ontario's Future, said a barrel of methanol fuel produced from Ontario wood and garbage would cost at least $36 a barrel compared with the current world price for delivered crude oil in Montreal of $15.75.

It also said liquid fuels may meet only six per cent of Ontario's estimated demand for oil by the year 2000.

As a result, the report recommended the Ontario government not undertake a major alternative liquid fuel demonstration project at this time.

The report, released by Ontario Energy Minister Reuben Baetz, was prepared during the last year by the ministry's advisory group on synthetic fuels.

Baetz told a news conference he was disappointed by the report's major findings, but said methanol-type fuels still hold promise for use in the distant future.

"The technology for methanol, ethanol and synthetic gasoline is there and the resource to produce them is there, but the economics, both today and for some years into the future, do not seem to justify the use of wood, municipal garbage, lignite or western coal to augment petroleum as a resource for liquid fuel production," he said.

The report also said liquid fuels produced in Ontario from lignite and western coal would only be competitive with gasoline produced from crude oil when the price of crude oil approaches $30 a barrel.

The advisory group recommended that research, development and demonstration where appropriate be supported by industry and the government to develop substitutes for petroleum-based fuels, wood production from forests and wood-fuel technology.

Baetz, who says he had hoped methanol fuel would prove to be an economically-viable substitute for gasoline, told reporters the government would not close the door on further research.

The minister said he was shocked and discouraged by the obvious gap between the price of synthetic liquid fuels and crude oil.

The high cost of producing methanol fuel is attributed largely to the transportation and labor costs involved in gathering wood and wood residues from forests.

Baetz said the most efficient means of producing energy from wood and garbage is through direct burning and not the production of alternative liquid fuels for transportation.

It would be impossible to have enough production of liquid fuel from renewable resources on stream by the mid-1980s because of the time needed for resource and technology development.

The report said that in the event of an emergency shortage of crude oil, natural gas converted to liquid fuel can be used as a transportation fuel. This would require three or four years notice.

Immigrants Desperate To Get Landed Status

The 34-year-old Lebanese Christian and her five children could be deported to the war-wracked homeland they fled in 1976 because attempts to become landed immigrants here have failed.

She applied for a permanent visa after she arrived here two years ago but immigration officials told her she could not apply for immigrant status while in the country.

Joseph Haddad, her brother-in-law, says the immigration department is trying to get rid of her.

Mrs. Ghossein and her children arrived in Canada with tourist visas obtained in Damascus after fleeting the basement bomb shelter they lived in for six months during the bombardments of their native Zahleh region, 35 kilometeres east of Beirut.

"The only things we could take were the clothes on our backs," she said. "We were just trying to get out of the country. We didn't decide to come to Canada until we reached Damascus."

They came here because they have relatives in Ottawa.

"We had to go through territory held by leftist guerrillas to escape the country," Mrs. Ghossein said. "My husband, George, had to stay behind in Zahleh because the guerrillas would have killed him. They were killing all men who might be soldiers."

Haddad said Ghossein, also refused a visa, wrote his wife from Lebanon and told her to stay in Canada because the situation in their country is so bad. The government here says it is safe to go back and wants her to leave, he said.

Extortion Sentence Passed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gilles Paul Proulx, 33, was sentenced in county court this week to two years less a day in jail for a $200,000 extortion bid.

Crown counsel Don Wilson said the incident began last Dec. 22 when bank manager Bruno Tommasini found a note on his car outside his east Vancouver home. The note told him to take $200,000 from his bank and drive to a certain location or his house would be blown up.

Tommasini alerted RCMP, and as Proulx approached Tommasini at the designated drop-off spot, he was arrested by plainclothes police.

Proulx, charged with extortion and carrying a concealed weapon, was sentenced to two years less a day on both counts. The terms are to run concurrently.

Children Dance for Children

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Waterloo has something unique with its Carousel Children's Performing Group.

It is the only known dance group in Canada which performs expressly for children and includes children performers, explains Paulette Bibeau, one of the 24-member group's teacher-performers.

"There are other dance groups which perform for children, but usually in addition to their regular performances for adults. And their performances for children mainly involve adults dancing."

Half the Carousel members are children, ranging in age from 8 to 13. The other 12 are University of Waterloo students of dance, three of whom, including Miss Bibeau, double as instructors.

In recognition of the group's uniqueness, it has been invited to perform at an international "Dance and the Child" conference in Edmonton in July.

The Carousel Children's Performing Group was formed three years ago, with Ruth Priddle of the university's dance faculty as its artistic director.

Miss Bibeau, a fourth-year dance student from Windsor, Ont., has been involved with the group since its formation. In an interview, she explained how it came about:

"It developed out of the university's Children's Program, which offers dance classes for children. The idea was to give the university students an opportunity to choreograph dances for children and actually use children in the choreography."

Before they can become members of Carousel, the children must attend at least two years of dancing classes under the university program.

"We teach them creative dance mostly and some ballet, and then later on modern dance and jazz. The older kids get two classes a week and the younger ones take one one-hour class each week."

For Carousel members, there is an additional four-hour rehearsal session once a week.

"The main emphasis is on the opportunity it provides to create actual dances, because in the regular classes you don't get that opportunity."

Miss Bibeau said there are two approaches in choreographing dances with the children:

"Some choreographers come in and they have everything in their heads. They know exactly the steps they want the children to do and they simply teach those steps to them.

"Other choreographers like to give the children more freedom. So they will give them a 'feeling' of the sort of thing they want and then let the children go ahead and sort of create their own steps."

The children themselves also are encouraged to choreograph dances.

"One child has come up with the idea that she's a whole basketball game. At one point she's a spectator, at one pont she's the ball and at one point she's the basketball player."

Performances by the group are limited to about two each college term. Most of the group's performances take place on the campus, but the group occasionally performs in public schools in the area.

All 24 members, all of them girls, will be going to Edmonton.

Travolta and Newton-John at 'Grease' premiere

The Great American Hype Machine

By TOM ZITO
The Washington Post

A movie exhibitor, who was unpacking a 12-foot die-cut set of jaws in his office the other day, had a strange dream that night: a mammoth 30-foot-long great white shark leapt from the ocean and devoured John Travolta and Olivia Newton-John. With one chomp.

Of course, this dream has been two years coming, as Universal and Paramount prepared for the simultaneous release of "Jaws 2" and "Grease," the two films most likely to compete for the summer's biggest box-office grosses.

And if the film-goers didn't have enough to choose from with the two movies, fans can also spend the summer chewing on "Jaws 2" gum, hitting the discos in "Grease" jeans, sipping Coca-Cola from "Jaws 2" papercups while lying on "Jaws 2" beach towels, washing hair with "Grease" shampoo, downing "Jaws 2" cocktails and listening to a radio station's "Greasemobile" playing the hits. It's the great American hype machine in full summer swing.

"Jaws 2," the continuation of the fish-bites-man story, opened at 628 theaters around the country; "Grease," the '50s rock 'n' roll muscal starring Travolta and Newton-John, moved into 920 national theatres.

By the time the first projector started flickering, the two studios already had spent nearly $8 million in print and televison ads to lure patrons to the box office. Not to mention marketing tie-ins worth an estimated $15 million.

Universal began with a teaser ad campaign, using the original "Jaws" shark fin logo with a tacked-on message: "Just when you thought it was safe to go back in the water . . . " The ads ran in newspapers and magazines and as a still image on TV. Then a bikini-clad water skier appeared before shark jaws in the print ads, and the 30-second TV spots included live-action footage.

The Paramount approach was somewhat more restrained: Ads proclaiming " 'Grease' is the word" and displaying the slicked-back countenance of "Saturday Night Fever" star Travolta appeared in newspapers.

Then the newspapers brought Travolta and Newton-John together on the senior prom dance floor. Paramount also aired prime-time televison spots, and offered local TV stations a one-hour TV special called "Grease Day U.S.A."

But while Universal waged a full media blitz — including interviews with "special" still-photographer Susan Ford — as part of what "Jaws 2" producer David Brown calls "an open-house policy on the movie," Paramount held its cards decidedly closer to its treasure chest. Some observers of the film industry speculate that the company thinks its great white shark competitor is a great white turkey.

"Just the opposite," says Paramount president Mike Eisner. "We screened the movie in Hawaii and it was a smash. Travolta is the biggest star in America today. If we thought we had a problem, we'd be selling our pants off."

It was the phenomenal success of Peter Benchley's original novel "Jaws" — 9.75 million paperback copies in print — that helped pre-sell the original movie, which Brown estimates has been seen by 200 million viewers. So Universal hired adventure novelist Hank Searles to create a novelization of the "Jaws 2" script and sold the rights to Bantam Books, which published the novel on April 19. There are already 3.65 million copies in print, and the book has become the No. 1 best seller on the mass-market paperbck lists.

For Paramount, the preselling of "Grease" came from its soundtrack album, which produced the No. 1 hit of John Travolta and Olivia Newton-John, "You're the One That I Want." The movie was co-produced by record business mogul Robert Stigwood, who also produced "Saturday Night Fever," the film with the $100-million soundtrack album. It's expected that several other hit singles will come from the "Grease" soundtrack, thus keeping the film in the ear of the potential viewer. The "Jaws 2" soundtrack written by "Jaws"-"Star Wars"-"Close Encounters . . ." composer John Williams, was timed to arrive in stores simultaneously with the pictures's release.

Not to be outdone, Paramount licensed Pocket Books to create a "Grease" novelization. The publishing house hired its own Ron De Christoforo to pen the deed, having been pleased with his novelization of the Henry Winkler film, "The One and Only."

"We were really hot for this one," says Picket Books publicity director Mary Hall. "Ever since 'Star Wars' (a huge success as a paperback), more and more novelizations are being done every day."

In addition to the book, there are "Grease" jeans and jackets from Sedgefield, shampoo from Helene Curtis, a Ford campaign featuring a car called "Greased Lightning" and a Pepsi-Cola promotion that will have 70 percent of the country's Pepsi trucks bearing "Grease" logos. In Baltimore, a radio station is roamed the streets with its own "Greasemobile."

"We've got our merchandising too," says "Jaws 2" publicist Al Ebner. "We've got T-shirts, iron-ons, beach towels, a 'Jaws 2' game, glasses, a Sea & Ski tie-in, a Coco-Cola tie-in on drinking cups, candy, bubble gum. Heublien eyen as a "Jaws 2" drink made with Smirnoff vodka. We figure that we'll spend anywhere from $15-25 million to market this picture. But our biggest concern is getting the word out that this isn't just a rip-off sequel."

Collectors of trivia will want to note that there were 2,650 trailers for "Jaws 2" currently in theatres — the largest order for trailers ever made in Hollywood, according to Universal. And for the first time in its 102-year history, McCall's magazine decided to feature a man alone on its cover: John Travolta.

'Loretta Lynn Is Loretta Lynn;' Manager Doubts She'll Change

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Loretta Lynn's manager doubts that she will change her hard-core country sound despite the trend to more contemporary music by singers like Dolly Parton and Crystal Gayle.

"She makes no pretense. She knows her basic audience," David Skepner said in an interview. "You can give her the most pop-oriented song, and it will still come out country. Loretta Lynn is Loretta Lynn. It's part of her charm."

Skepner, 40, appears an unlikely choice as the man who has guided Miss Lynn's career for the past five years. He does not particularly like country music and says there is only one of Miss Lynn's tapes in his home. And his background is Beverly Hills, Calif., not the Kentucky coal mines where Miss Lynn grew up.

"I get paid a lot of money for having a good time every day," Skepner said in discussing his role in her career. "I'd love to work for a living someday but I wouldn't know what to do.

"I'm basically a mechanic. I'm no great magician. Mostly it takes a lot of things going in the same direction. If you work it right, two and two make five."

Her success can be traced to her unique personality, he said.

"People are attracted to her because of the way she expresses herself and does it in an honest way," he said. "Most people think it's a put-on. To this day, Perry Como thinks so."

GIVE FULL EXCHANGE: McCARTHY

Travel Industry Minister Grace McCarthy has appealed to all B.C. businessess to give tourists fair exchange on their United States dollars.

McCarthy said she has received numerous complaints about businesses not giving the full exchange rate on American bills.

"If the word gets around that some businesses in B.C. are not giving the full exchange there is no question that Americans will turn around and look elsewhere for a vacation destination," she said.

Ghana Scientist Envies Canadians

AUGISTINA GYIMAH

Plant physiologist Augistina Gyimah thinks Canadians are lucky to have so many well equipped scientific research centres.

In Victoria for practical training in seed research at the Pacific Forest Research Centre on Burnside Road, she says she is amazed at the facilities and equipment available to Canadian research workers.

"Here at this centre, you can almost do anything," she said. "It's a joy to work in an institution like this."

When she completes her six months training at the centre, she will return to Ghana where she will set up a similar seed research laboratory for her country's growing forest industry.

Ghana's timber she said is presently all used for furniture and building. It has no pulp and paper industry.

"But in two years we will have a pilot pulp and paper mill," she said.

"We have plenty of timber. The question now is what species should we grow for this new industry."

Ghana doesn't suffer from any lack of species of trees. At present there are 39 species used for commercial purposes.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, July 1
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on relatives, ideas, journeys, calls, messages, decisions made by "nervous" people. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. Forces tend to be scattered. key now is to evaluate, to know difference between legitimate assertion and false promise. You'll understand!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Insist on understanding accounts, bills, payments, tax plans, savings, intricacies of money and how it gets that way. Don't be deterred by "big words," technical terms. Assume responsibility for your own financial destiny.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cycle high; take initiative. Display courage of convictions. Judgment, intuition will be correct — you will be at right place at propitious time. Aries, Libra figure in picture. You gain added recognition. Key is to expand, to spread influence, to show that you're on the way.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You have impetus to go forward — one who attempts to discourage you is filled with "sour grapes." Know it and act accordingly. Means cast aside groundless doubts, fears. You are on precipice of discovery, achievement.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent on sensuality, desire, creativity — friendship could become something more intimate. You have qualms, doubts. Key is to heed inner voice. Popularity soars. You receive offers, professional and personal. If selective, you win.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep goal in mind. Believe in your self to extent that you communicate with superiors. A Gemini, no matter how "high up," will help make room for you. Know it; act accordingly. Element of timing, or luck, is on your side.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Long-range planning, journey, education, spirituality, language and distance — these all crowd into your personal scenario. What had been a block to progress now becomes a steppingstone. You receive apology and encouragement.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Express, create, adhere to your own style. Refuse to be shunted aside, blunted, bullied, blasted by noise. Maintain balance, dignity. You have hidden resources, inner strength and other sense it. Your position is strong. If you hold fast, a change will be made in your favor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec.21): Accent on home life, marital status, making concessions where budget, purchases are concerned. Making a family member happy could be worth almost any cost.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Highlight basics, familiarity with groundwork — know who owns what and which motive dominates. See in light of reality. Avoid self-deception. Health, nutrition, special services and employment command more-than-usual attention.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Creativity, change, affairs of heart — these dominate, and so does the number 8. Relationship is intensified. Business, career, commitment — nothing is halfway. It now is all or nothing, hot or cold. You cannot just test the waters.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stick to familiar ground. Build reinforce safetymeasures, avoid speculating with money or health. Aries is in picture — and so is Gemini. Number 4 could figure prominently. If thorough, you earn more than originally anticipated.

IF JULY 1 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are creative, independent, considered very attractive by the opposite sex. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. Major domestic adjustment is featured in 1978 — September and November should be outstanding months. In July, attend to details, piece together bits of information and you'll come up with complete story.

Sunday, July 2

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on production, ideas, relatives, trips, getting results and being involved. Capricorn, Cancer figure prominently. Older individual is in picture. You can mature emotionally, gain greater financial security and regain sense of direction.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on letting go of losing situation. Means think enough of yourself to be a winner. Message will be clarified. Aries and Libra will figure prominently. Money picture will be brighter — and you will locate lost object.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): New start indicates; you have marvelous opportunity to erase past errors. Leo, Aquarius figure in picture. Accent on personality, appearance, personal magnetism, charisma. Member of opposit sex makes no secret of attraction.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Mystery, intrigue, clandestine conference could be featured. Aquarian, Capricorn and another Cancer are part of your personal scenario. Accent on hidden factors, subtle nuances, a glimpse behind the scenes.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Surprise compliment, love affair could be on agenda. Be optimistic, maintain balance, self-esteem. Pleasant events occur, social life accelerates. Gemini, Sagittarius persons are in picture — and so is the number 3.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You climb to a more elevated position. Confidence builds as you become familiar with basic material and build on a more solid structure. Aquarius, Leo, Taurus persons figure prominently. Adhere to factual data. Be thorough, determined and you'll reap benefits.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be analytical, willing to change course if information received warrants. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius figure prominently. Goo Moon aspect promotes education, travel, ability to put lessons to practical use. Member of opposite sex says "I adore you" and proves it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Luxury, costs, games, sensuality, secret transactions — these figure prominently. Partner or mate wants to be taken into your confidence, especially where money is concerned. You get nothing for nothing. That proverbial silver tray is not part of scenario.

SAGITTARIUS. (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on co-operative efforts, some sacrificing of profit for sake of convenience, partnership and marriage. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. Be discreet, lie low, play cards close to chest. Be a good, attentive listener. Someone tells you someting of value — if you so permit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be practical, push program across, get facts nd figures, determine extent of involvement. Employment, service, dependents crowd into personal scenario. Your position is strong, despite catcalls from the envious, from malcontents and from those who hold childish grudges.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Favorable lunar aspect coincides now with significant decisions, variety, excitement, speculation, affair of heart. You reach for something — and you get brass ring. Yes, there is reason for celebration!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You can remodel, reinforce, make home base a more secure and happier place. Leo, Aquarius are in picture — stress independence, daring, pioneering concepts, originality. Bits, pieces fall into place. You'll view complete plan, picture.

IF JULY 2 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are emotional, psychic, have tendency to brood and to feel it is you against the world. Capricorn and another Cancer could play important roles in your life. You love food, but have digestive problems. You appreciate sports but have to force yourself to exercise. You are "sexy," self-indulgent, attractive but have weight problem. Beginning with October, you'll be more secure financially and in emotional sense.

Monday, July 3

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Short trip may decide direction of relationship. What began as an asset could now be a "drag." Means don't feel you are obligated to continue a losing proposition. Your own ideas are best, not those of someone "in the middle."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Yes, the new deal is better; the money is available and you'll get your share. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. Someone comes into your life who is exciting, self-indulgent, creative. Yes, you are up to the challenge!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): obtain hint from Taurus message. Follow through on hunch. Be direct, confident, make personal appearances, wear bright colors, be conspicuous by your presence. Your timing is all right — member of opposite sex confides a deep interest — in you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Light-hearted approach "works." Don't be dismayed by rumor, gossip. You are in driver's seat. Know it and act as if aware of it. Gemini, Sagittarius figure in scenario — and so does the number 3. A unique proposal deserves consideration — and is at least good for a laugh.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis on breaking through, earning friendship, developing style, gaining allies. Aquarius, Taurus, Scorpio persons figure prominently. You're due for surprise — of pleeant variety. What had been hidden will be revealed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Spotlight on career, business dealings with employer. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. You're asked to sign petition, or participate in civic activities. You get clear outline of possibilities, potential.

LIBRA (Sept-23-Oct. 22): Good Moon aspect now coincides with journey, educatinal project, utilizing print and other media to get message across. Taurus Scorpio persons figure prominently. Family member will make a major concession. Be a gracious winner!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You have choice — one direction leads to work, responsibility, pressure and challenge — and accomplishment. the other is a wink, a promise, an elusive siren, song, flirtation, innuendo, enticement. Pisces, Virgo persons figure in your personal scenario.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Spotlight in public relations, comprehending what the "other fellow" thinks, feels. Co-operative efforts, patience, partnersip, marital status figure prominently. Capricorn, Cancer individuals affect your actions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Low key approach brings desired results. Go slow, avoid sensationalism. Moderation should be your tone and style. Accent on work, health, exchange of ideas with brother, sister or other close relatives.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Dynamic, original, daring, pioneering — these are keywords for you to grasp. Be ready for change, variety, travel, creativity. Make new starts, imprint your own style, rhythm. One you adore returns the compliment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Frivolity should not be discouraged. You need relief from recent tensions. Lively Gemini fills prescription. You will be more secure. Needed materials are "on the way." Follow through on hunch — it could pay dividends.

IF JULY 3 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY — you are sensitive, fond of travel, have tendecy to scatter forces and to eat witout knowledge of what is nutritious or otherwise. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. You are attractive, have good sense of humor, a bit of weight problem — this is a business, achievement year for you: September could be your most significant monh of 1978.

Rim Park Readies Nature Programs

A theatre for educational nature programs will be officially opened in Pacific Rim National Park sometime in July, a Parks Canada spokesman said Thursday.

The almost-completed theatre is adjacent to the park's Long Beach campsite at Greenpoint and has a seating capacity for 240 people.

It was built because of the popularity of the naturalist programs which last year attracted thousands of visitors in the national park.

Eskimos Angry Over Bowhead

LONDON (AP) — An Alaskan Eskimo delegation walked out of the International Whaling Commission's (IWC) meeting here Thursday in a dispute over the number of bowhead whales the Eskimos may kill.

The Alaskan Eskimo Whaling Commission, formed to lobby the IWC for a higher quota of bowheads, had proposed to the commission that they be allowed to take 37 to 45 of the whales in the season beginning this fall.

But an IWC technical committee voted 7 to 6 Wednesday night to recommend a quota of 24 bowheads for the Eskimos. The recommendation would have to be approved by a plenary session of the IWC.

The 17-country body began a five-day meeting meeting here this week to decide how many whales may be slaughtered in the world's oceans in the coming season. The IWC has few enforcement powers and its meetings are always embroiled in controversy and nationalism.

The dozen Alaskan Eskimos lobbying here are fighting to keep alive a 4,000-year-old tradition of bowhead hunting. They represent about 4,000 Eskimos in nine Yupik and Inupiat Eskimo villages on Alaska's Arctic rim who consider whale meat a dietary staple and a cornerstone of their subsistence lifestyle.

In a statement to the IWC circulated here, the Alaskans said they now do not feel bound by the commission's rulings and would take as many bowhead whales next season as they feel necessary to meet their nutritional and cultural needs.

FIRST 114 TANKS

Rain Tests Slated

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal researchers are conducting a four-week experiment in fighting forest fires by inducing rainfall, Environment Minister Len Marchand announced Thursday.

The experiment, started last week in Thunder Bay, Ont., is an attempt to induce rain over forested areas by seeding clouds with silver iodide flares, Marchand's statement said.

"Airborne measurements undertaken in this research program have shown that an induced rainshower can yield between five and 12 million litres of water in a period of 20 minutes."

In a similar experiment last year, rainfall was not induced after four clouds were seeded and monitored, the minister said. The clouds dissipated rapidly before precipitation could develop.

There were 1,646 forest fires last month, the forestry service said earlier this week.

But the number of forest fires for the 1978 spring was well below average due to heavy rainfall, the service said. In May, 1977 there were 3,270 fires.

Marchand said previous experiments in the Northwest Territories have resulted in rain from seven of 16 seeded clouds.

L'Ami 50th

On June 30, 1978, Mr. and Mrs. R. O. L'Ami, of Saskatoon, Sask., and various locations in British Columbia, observed their 50th Wedding Anniversary. Because it was difficult for all members of their immediate family to gather together at one time, a happy observance took place in Oak Bay, Victoria, one week early June 24, 1978. Children and grandchildren met at the home of their son Terry L'Ami, and his wife Dawn. A late afternoon reception was held, followed by dinner at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. The celebration was arranged by their son and daughter, the latter Dolores, now Mrs. James Sawyer of Port Alberni, B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. L'Ami were married in Saskatoon where he was employed with the Star-Phoenix and she, the former Muriel McPherson, taught at Victoria School.

YOUR CITY WATCHDOG REPORT
Number 64 — Congratulations go to John Cooper Chairman of the United Transportation Union Committee for his efforts to improve the Esquimalt Nanaimo Railway service. Many thanks to Mary Ann and the information girl at Butchart Gardens for their assistance during a visit to the gardens. It is hoped that Vicki H. will be more careful, how she opens locks in the future. It was a pleasure meeting Mary, in what appears to be the only downtown grocery. Your city's Watchdog wishes to know how many people would be interested in riding the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Dayliner on a Sunday this summer to Nanaimo, for approximately $10 return. Your City's Watchdog feels that it is not right for those businesses that continue to advertise that the Tall Ships will be visiting Victoria's Inner Harbour. Please continue to phone 383-6259, Your City's Watchdog, C. Joe Richards, if you wish information regarding city matters. Taxpayers should pickup the four-page information pamphlet by the city's comptroller explaining where your 1978 tax dollar goes, at city hall. Postscript: Please enjoy the Dominion Day Holiday. Drive Safely, the life you save may be your own.

AQUARIAN GENTLEMAN, INtelligent, mature, 35, 5'7", 160, Irish-Scotch, vegetarian, nonsmoker, light social drinker, single independent, desire "sincere friendship," interests: health foods, herbal medicines; astrology, solar and bio-cosmic energy, E.S.P., travel boating, flying, plus many more. Wish communications with petite, attractive, intelligent lady, 18-50 (skin color immaterial), financially independent; free to travel and similar interests. Enclose recent color photo, birth date, time, year. All letters confidential. Victoria Press Box 365.

INDEPENDENT YOUNG MIDdle-aged gentleman looking for female companionship. Similar personality interest includes outdoors, travelling, cuisine, quiet socializing, no former ties, permanent relationship possibility, congenial, understanding, kind. Discretion assured. Victoria Press Box 419.

FALSE TEETH SLIPPING? TRY Dentur-Eze for new comfort. No wobbling, no irritated gums. Easy to use. One application lasts weeks. Tasteless, odorless. "Quicktype" also available. At Esquimalt Plaza Pharmacy and other pharmacies.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc. for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday: 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate

309 IN MEMORIAM

BRENNAN — In loving memory of our dear mom, grandma and "Poppa Lottie Letitia Florence, who passed away June 30, 1975. Also our dear dad, grampa and "Poppa Ben"—Benjamin James Jatrick who passed away on July 1, 1974.
Forever in our hearts—Red, Kay and family.

McLENNAN — In memory of Jane McLennan who passed away June 30, 1977.
(Mum) It's just a year since
"Father said"
Come my child and rest.
We were broken hearted,
But He always knows what's best.
All the things you taught us,
Unselfishness and fair play
Shall remain with us always Till we meet again someday.
—Loved always by Dad, Jeanie, Roy, Dorothy, Bill, Donna, Albert and loved ones.

PARK — In loving memory of a beloved husband, father and grandfather, Jim, who passed away on June 30, 1972.
"For the noblest thing is a noble man,
Though he passes he leaves behind
A greater faith, and a greater love
Akin to the Maker's own above
—Ever remembered by his loving wife, Ina.

In loving memory of Donald Punshon accidentally killed in a mining accident, June 30th, 1974, near Princeton, B.C., aged 23 years. Ever remembered by his father, Jack, Mother, Jean, brother John and sisters Shirley and Sheila.
—"Till We Meet Again, Don"

YATES — In treasured memory of our dear mother Jane who died June 30, 1960.
Dear Mother you are not forgotten
Though on earth you are no more,
Still in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
Your loving daughters, Lilian and Edith.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.

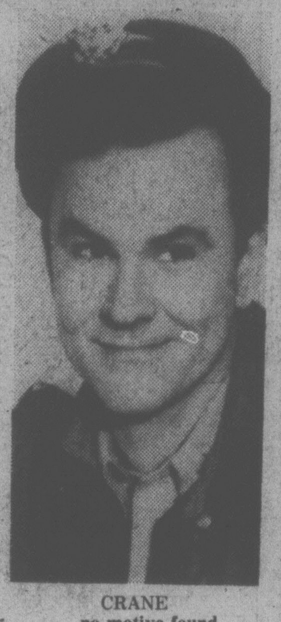
Hogan's Hero Star Slain While Asleep



CRANE
. . .no motive found

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Police said today they have not determined a motive in the murder of Bob Crane, the boyish-looking star of the television series Hogan's Heroes who was beaten to death in his sleep and then tied with an electrical cord.

The body of the 49-year-old Crane, clad in shorts and undershirt, was discovered Thursday afternoon curled beneath a sheet in the bedroom of an apartment he was using while appearing in the play Beginner's Luck at the Windmill Dinner Theatre. Officials said he had been dead for several hours.

"It just looks like somebody walked in on him while he was in bed and smacked him in the head a couple of times," said Eloy Ysasi, investigator for the Maricopa County medical examiner's office. "He was covered up in a sheet, as though you would retire, with his knees drawn up in the position like people sleep."

A piece of electrical cord has been tied around Crane's neck, but "it didn't strangle him," Ysasi said. "It was put on after he was dead, but was put on tight."

"So far no motive has been determined," said Lieut. Ron Dean, heading the police investigation. "Nothing seems to be missing. There was no forced entry."

Crane had been appearing in the play here since June 6. He was killed in an apartment the theatre leases for its headline performers.

Police said Crane was seen about 2 a.m. Thursday in a coffee shop a short distance from the apartment.

Lilly Reder, the night supervisor, told the Arizona Republic that she saw Crane drinking coffee with a woman and a second couple. She said the group seemed "very congenial and there was no indication of anything negative."

Bolt Hits Oil Tank

BAYOU LA BATRE, ALA. (UPI) — A lightning bolt hit an oil storage area Thursday night, touching off a fire that consumed an estimated 60,000 gallons of petroleum, destroyed a marine hardware store and a dock and sank a shrimp boat berthed nearby.

No one was injured, but persons living in about a four-block area around the blaze were ordered to leave until firemen finally brought the fire under control about midnight.

Herbert Johnson, editor of the weekly Mobile County News, had just returned from a fishing trip Thursay evening and saw the lightning hit.

"I saw the streak hit and a great big huge ball of fire came up," Johnson told UPI. "It spread so fast, by the time I got over there it was just a holocaust."

The fire was finally brought under control by pumping chemical foam on it, fire chief M.G. Temme said.

"It was a big ball of fire," said Tensie Johnson, who lives across the picturesque bayou from the Bayou Oil Co. dock where the fire raged.

The fire spread from the tank hit by lightning to five others. An employee at the dock estimated the six tanks held a total of more than 60,000 gallons of petroleum, including diesel fuel, gasoline and lubrication oil.

Temme said about 200 people were involved in fighting the blaze, including fire departments from Mobile and other nearby towns that brought the chemical foam used to snuff the flames. Bayou La Batre is located 15 miles southwest of Mobile.

"The heat was tremendous," Temme said. "We had to keep our distance to keep from getting scorched."

The blaze began about 9:30 p.m. and was under control about three hours later, Temme said.

TAXPAYERS SQUEEZED IN FRISCO?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Members of a group born in the wake of the California property tax revolt are accusing San Francisco officials of imposing hardships on city taxpayers and are trying to oust the mayor and the 11 supervisors.

Among the complaints of Citizens for Total Recall, a three-week-old organization that claims 600 members, is that a medical facility is to be closed while the city considers putting artificial turf in Candlestick Park, the home of the Giants baseball team.

The recall group was formed following approval of Proposition 13, which forced drastic reductions in local property taxes.

Bob Barnes, chairman of the recall group, said Thursday that Mayor George Moscone and the supervisors failed to establish priorities in using $100 million allocated to the city by the legislature as a cushion against Proposition 13.

He said city leaders were afraid to take political risks by imposing higher taxes on large businesses and corporations scheduled to receive $68.3 million in property tax reductions under the proposition.

Barnes said city leaders failed to consult the public on priorities used in making cuts.

"We need $750,000 to keep one health facility, the Alemany Aid Station, open for a year, but it's scheduled to close in July. And they're giving $2.6 million to put new Astroturf in Candlestick baseball park. That's where we think there's a lack of priorities," he said.

Moscone's office declined to comment on either the charges or the recall effort and there was no immediate reaction from the supervisors.

Barnes said that within the next few days, his group will begin collecting the 35,000 signatures necessary to recall Moscone, a Democrat whose first term ends in 1979.

As for recall of the supervisors, he said signatures cannot be collected until July 8. Depending on the district, between 1,100 and 1,700 signatures are needed, he said.

Russians Fail To Win Point

BUCHAREST (AP) — The Soviet Union, at a meeting of the Council of Mutual Economic Assistance (COMECON), apparently failed to push through a proposal to substitute majority rule for the current requirement for unanimity in decision-making.

A communique issued today and reported by the Romanian news agency Agerpress said the 10-member organization of Soviet-bloc countries, which ended its conference Thursday, approved programs of co-operation in the fields of energy, fuel and raw materials, agriculture and the food industry and machine building. The plans extend to 1990, it said.

But the statement made no mention of changes in the decision-making process of COMECON. Before the session, it had been reported that the Soviet Union was expected to press for a change in the statutes making a majority rule binding on all members, including those who oppose a measure up for a vote.

Gabellah Blasts U.S., U.K.

SALISBURY (Reuter) — Elliott Gabellah, Rhodesia's black foreign minister, today launched a bitter attack on the United States and Britain, and said the Soviet Union and Cuba are refreshingly honest in their African policy compared with the two Western powers.

His criticism came in a long address preceding a news conference and was aimed chiefly at President Carter's administration, which he accused of cowardice and weakness.

"The Rhodesian dispute no longer has anything to do with achieving majority rule," said Gabellah, a key figure in the multi-racial transitional government. "In the eyes of the whole continent, the question is simply whether the United States has the guts to stand up for itself and its friends."

Rockets: Quiet Blue Glow?

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The fire and thunder that sends rockets into space may be replaced by a quiet, blue glow when and if a proposed new generation of spacecraft chases comets and reaches for the edges of the solar system.

The ion-drive engine, designed by National Aeronautics and Space Administration engineers, went dramatically public in the movie Star Wars, says Ken Atkins of the Jet Propulsion laboratory here.

The sinister forces of Darth Vader, arch-villain of the movie, threatened Princess Leia and her followers in TIE Fighters. TIE, as Atkins is fond of pointing out, stands for twin ion engined.

Atkins said a more realistic version of ion drive offers our own planet a steerable, energy-efficient rocket powered by a stream of minute particles hurled into space by magnetic fields.

The engine, launched from a space shuttle 200 miles or so above the earth, could push a spacecraft to rendezvous with a comet and tag along for its trip around the sun in the next decade, Atkins said in an interview.

The Jet Propulsion laboratory and the Lewis Research Centre in Cleveland have been developing the ion-propulsion engine for more than 10 years.

A low-thrust ion engine would be hard-pressed to nudge a bowling ball against the gravity and friction on earth. But when carried aloft by a shuttle and thrown by a conventional rocket into the emptiness of space, the system could push 900-kilogram payloads at speeds approaching $25,000 kilometres an hour, Atkins said.

Ion drive, with 10 times the fuel efficiency of current rocket engines, may also bring us closer to the day when "you could sail around the solar system and even go interstellar" for trips to other stars, he said.

Current rockets depend on tons of bulky chemical fuels, which bur explosively to give men and machines the great push needed to escape the earth's gravity.

"All our space shots have been where we hit them with a big kick at the beginning," Atkins said. "We, in effect, throw them out into space and then they just coast to the target. With ion drive we would be running the engines continuously, all the way to the target, so we'd have a steerable spacecraft."

NASA has included an ion-drive rocket in its current five-year plan, under which congress would be asked to fund a project beginning about 1981, Atkins told a science conference in April.

He said NASA hopes in 1985 to launch an ion-drive rocket that woud probe Halley's Comet when it circules the sun in 1985 and then rendezvous with a smaller comet, Tempel 2, in 1988.

NASA also is considering a mission to orbit Saturn in the late 1980s and Atkins said ion drive would be ideally suited for the job.

A-Gs Air Federal Intrusion

EDMONTON (CP) — Provincial attorneys-general attending a conference here Thursday discussed areas in which the provinces feel Ottawa is intruding into provincial jurisdiction, a senior official said.

Alberta Attorney-General Jim Foster, chairman of the meeting, would not disclose details of the discussion. However, the official, who asked not to be identified, said talks centred around dual prosecutorial and court functions shared by the two levels of government.

He cited a proposed federal bill to permit a federal commissioner rather than provincially-appointed coroners' juries to investigate air crashes,

A statement on the discussions is not expected until later today, the final day of the conference.

Thursday, the Quebec government released recommendations that it said would bring federal proposals for changes to legislation covering rape offences in line with the intent of the changes.

Marc-Andre Bedard, Quebec minister of justice, said the federal proposals, announced by Justice Minister Ron Basford in May, should permit a wife to press rape charges against her husband even if she is living with him.

The Quebec paper also said the rape offence sections of the Criminal Code should provide that a rape victim not be required during a trial to disclose certain facts — including details of past and present sexual relations — that have nothing to do with the case being heard.

Jean-Robert Nadeau, an aide to Bedard, said the Quebec government believes the wording of the bill in which the rape proposals are contained does not reflect Ottawa's intentions. "We understand the aim of the law is to preserve the integrity of the person," he said.

The ministers also discussed a paper from Quebec dealing with the de-criminalization of marijuana but Foster said no consensus was reached on the issue.

He would not say which provinces agreed or disagreed with the elimination of simple marijuana possession from the list of criminal activities, but Saskatchewan Attorney-General Roy Romanow said his government was against loosening laws prohibiting the drug.

Romanow said it was not yet known whether marijuana is medically harmless.

Foster said although he sympathized with the idea of placing marijuana possession as a summary conviction under the Food and Drug Act, he had reservations about the medical effects of the drug's use.

A Quebec government spokesman said an individual should not be saddled with a criminal record merely for possessing one or two marijuana cigarettes.

McKinnon Questions Plane Bid Delay

OTTAWA (CP) — Companies battling for the $2.3 billion fighter aircraft contract will get another chance to sweeten their bids, something most of the contenders welcome.

But Thursday's cabinet decision to give these companies another month to improve their proposals may upset the fighter project timetable. Allan McKinnon (Victoria), Progressive Conservative defence critic, said this may create money problems for the government later on.

Defence Minister Barney Danson said after the cabinet meeting the government will likely drop some of the contenders in September and pick a winner late this year or early in 1979. There was an outside chance the cabinet would select the winning aircraft in the fall.

He said the cabinet decided against choosing a short list now because of last-minute proposals from some of the companies.

"The various vendors have been making unsolicited proposals," Danson said in the Commons. "We felt in fairness to all vendors that all should have equal opportunity to do that. So they will be given to Aug. 1 for any supplementary proposals they wish to make."

The industrial benefits the foreign bidders are offering Canadian firms are inadequate, Danson said outside the House. And aircraft numbers are important too.

The government is asking the competing firms to supply 130 to 150 fighters for the $2.3 billion in 1977 dollars. Several of the firms have indicated they might not be able to meet that target.

The contending fighters are the Grumman F-14, the McDonnell-Douglas F-15, the General Dynamics F-16, the McDonnell-Douglas and Northrop versions of the F-18 and the Panavia Tornado. Panavia is a British-German-Italian consortium while the other firms are American.

McKinnon said last week he was told government officials were recommending the three cheapest planes — the F-16 and the two F-18 versions — for the short list.

Danson refused direct comment. But he said "the options for the short list are really based on those aircraft which could give us enough aircraft for our fleet."

Based on the original bids, that seems to leave only the F-16 and the two F-18s..

Grumman officials have said their company can't deliver 130 F-14s because of the aircraft's high price. A McDonnell-Douglas official said his company might not be able to produce enough F-15s for various reasons.

A government group evaluating Panavia's original bid concluded the European company might fall short of the 130 target, a Panavia spokesman said Thursday.

This may change as these companies get another chance to overhaul their bids.

Danson told reporters some of the companies "have suggested some upgrading of their proposals to be more sensitive to our requirements, particularly in numbers and in the industrial benefits area."

He had received several proposals, some less formal than others.

Bidding closed Feb. 1 and under government rules the contenders are not supposed to approach the fighter project group with new proposals. But it is understood one company sent a letter to the government saying it might be able to reduce its price and offer greater benefits for Canadian industry.

Spokesmen for other companies said it was well understood in their original bids they might be able to offer more later. One official said his company did not put its best foot forward in the initial bid, expecting there would be bargaining later.

However, a Northrop spokesman said his company had not planned on changing its bid. But if bidders were being given another opportunity, Northrop might have another look.

The decision to give the bidders another chance was generally welcomed by company spokesmen.

Portfolio Split Bill Introduced

OTTAWA (CP) — The government introduced a bill Thursday to split the fisheries and environment department into separate ministries as promised in the Speech from the Throne last October.

The legislation would make official what has already taken place. Len Marchand was appointed environment minister in the fall while Romeo LeBlanc has headed the fisheries department since 1974.

Spokesmen said the bill is just a housekeeping measure since separate jurisdictions for fisheries and environment have been established for many months.

LeBlanc told the Commons in February the decision to create a separate department was a recognition of the importance of the Canadian fishery.

Fisheries and environment were joined in 1974 but both departments have acquired more responsibility since then.

Spokesmen said Thursday the legislation was not expected to receive approval before the Commons adjourns for the summer today. MPs have approved a number of bills in recent days prior to the three-month recess.

Officials Jailed

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — The mayor and three councillors of a West Bank town and a former member of the Jordanian parliament were sentenced Thursday to prison in Ramallah for attacking policemen on duty.

A military court sentenced Daoud Bishara Daoud, mayor of Beit Jala, to six months in prison. The councillors and Edward Hamis, a former Amman parliamentarian, were sent to prison for three months. They were convicted of attacking plainclothes policemen who sought to detain Hamis' son during an investigation into suspected drug dealing.

Traffic Jams Ferries For the Second Day

The B.C. Ferry service has thrown every available vessel into service this weekend in an attempt to handle the traditional July 1 rush of travellers.

Despite the move, however, vehicles were lined two deep for about a kilometre from the Swartz Bay terminal Thursday evening and traffic was jammed again early this morning.

Traffic snarls were unknotted by mid-morning, but ferry officials were expecting to be under pressure again this evening.

Assistant ferry service traffic manager William Bouchard said that nobody was left behind at any of the terminals Thursday — contrary to some newspaper reports — and he doubted any travellers will be stranded tonight.

Bouchard said waits were longer than normal Thursday because the Queen of Vancouver couldn't be put into service until this morning.

He said the Vancouver was to have started Thursday but the crew wasn't familiarized with the newly-engined vessel in time to meet the first heavy rush of traffic.

Engine trouble on the Queen of Victoria also added to traffic problems. The Victoria was out of service for much of the day.

Beef Pushes Food Costs Up by 4½% In Month

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Soaring beef prices and dwindling year-end stocks of potatoes and apples boosted the cost of food 4.5 per cent over the past month, the Anti-Inflation Board said today.

The AIB's food index, constructed from a survey of prices in 12 major Canadian cities, currently stands at 148 (100 in 1974), an increase of 16.6 per cent in the last year.

Beef went up 10.7 per cent May, but the board said the prices "appeared to have peaked for the moment."

The AIB's fresh fruit index rose 11.4 per cent since mid-May mainly due to a seasonal scarcity of apples which rose in price by 33 per cent over the past four weeks.

In general the price of fresh vegetables increased 20.1 per cent in the last four weeks, attributed by the board to seasonal market conditions. The price of potatoes alone rose 72 per cent over the same period.

But as the summer season progresses prices for fresh vegetables and fruit should decline, the board said.

Among other increases over the past month, fats and oils were up 3.4 per cent, poultry 1.8 per cent and pork 2 per cent.

Meanwhile, the president of Canada Packers Ltd. isn't betting too strongly on it, but he thinks the price of beef will come down to more reasonable levels.

"We hesitate to make predictions because we've been awfully wrong lately, but we expect the price to somewhat decline and next stabilize to some extent," W. F. McLean told the company's annual meeting of shareholders.

"If it stabilizes, and there is some balance between demand and supply, then we will have a period of stability — what the industry needs more than anything else right now."

However, Evans Thorterson of Elfros, Sask., president of a major cattle raisers' association said Thursday price increases were not a response to a short supply of beef.

It is actually an adjustment of the market to where it should have been, he said.

HEATING OIL, GAS HIKE DUE

The price of gasoline and home heating oil in Victoria will reach a new high this fall.

Motorists and homeowners can expect to pay about 3½ cents more a gallon for both items around Sept. 1.

July 1 is the effective date for a $1-a-barrel increase in oil prices as the government steadily pushes domestic prices toward world levels.

Oil companies said it will take about 60 days for these increases paid to producers to reflect in high prices at the pumps because it takes that long for existing inventories to be used up.

"We are also required by the government to wait for 60 days," said one oil company spokesman. "This means prices will go up in Victoria and elsewhere in the province on Sept. 1."

Still to come later in the summer is a round of expected price rises for natural gas, possibly up to 17 cents a thousand cubic feet.

Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie has turned down opposition MPs requests to forego the summer increases, even though federal studies show they will drive up the inflation rate by one full percentage point.

Gillespie told the Commons recently that Canadian industry already has a price advantage for oil and the government will not stop its policy of forcing prices higher.

Currently, domestic oil sells for $11.75 a barrel compared with $15 a barrel it costs for world oil imported to the eastern provinces.

MONEY BILL OVERLOOKED

Lieut.-Governor Henry Bell-Irving did double duty as the legislature wound down Thursday evening.

At the end of each session, the lieutenant-governor enters the legislative chambers to give royal assent to bills passed by the assembly.

Bell-Irving was escorted in and gave royal assent to what everyone thought were all the bills.

But as Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy began the motion to end the current session, she was interrupted by Speaker Harvey Schroeder who said the lieutenant-governor would have to come back.

One bill had been forgotten.

So the ceremony was repeated for the one bill — the Supply Act — without which the government wouldn't be able to spend the bulk of its $4.28 billion budget.

For a look at the session and what the politicians think about it, see Page 24.

Green Light Given 2,4-D

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government's program to combat Eurasian milfoil in the Okanagan lakes system with 2,4-D was given the green light again Thursday in a B.C. Supreme Court decision.

The decision by Mr. Justice A. B. MacFarlane alos lifted an injunction that was issued last Thursday to stop the application of the herbicide in the lake system.

It upheld six permits to apply the herbicide, while rejecting four and noting that another permit expires today.

In ruling the six permits valid, Mr. Justice MacFarlane rejected arguments by lawyers for two members of the South Okanagan Environmental Coalition (SOEC) who contended that protesters did not receive a fair hearing at sessions of the Pesticide Appeal Board's (PBA) June 6-14 in Penticton, B.C.

However, he upheld arguments that the board had overstepped its jurisdiction in extending four permits — which had expired June 15 — to Sept. 30 and declared them void until the PAB can make a valid decision that gives them effect.

In Victoria, Environment Minister Jim Nielsen said the government will go ahead in the next day or two with the herbicide program in the approved areas and try to clear the way for application in the four areas rejected by the court.

Minister Sues Over Cartoon

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm today filed a Supreme Court writ in Victoria seeking damages and costs in connection with a cartoon which appeared June 22 in the Victoria Times.

Phillips Exhausted, Expense Account Too

PHILLIPS

How much fun can you have in Japan on $29,000?

"I came back exhausted," Economic Development Minister Don Phillips admitted.

Lauk noted Phillips' mission to Japan last year cost $29,496.04.

In view of that cost for a two week trip, "did you have a good time?" Lauk asked.

Speaker Harvey Schroeder interjected: "The question suggests its own answer. However, the minister may wish to answer."

After Phillips let it slip that he'd come back exhausted, he added that he went over to work and not to play rugby.

(When Dave Barrett was premier, he timed an economic mission to Japan to coincide with an over-40 rugby game against the Japanese. Barrett scored a try in that game.)

Phillips said his mission to Japan resulted in contacts that in future will prove the money was well-spent.

BCR to Run Despite Red

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia railway will never make a profit, but B.C. taxpayers will continue 100 per cent subsidization of the service anyway, Premier Bill Bennett said Thursday.

Bennett said in a radio interview while the railway is making a profit this year on operating, it cannot service its tremendous debt built up over the past years.

The subsidy will be continued, said Bennett, because the railway will contribute more to the province's economy than any other assistance suggested by his government.

The province's decision to continue supporting B.C. Rail goes counter to a royal commission report, submitted to cabinet last December, which recommended permanent closure of the Fort Nelson extension of the line.

The report said the benefits of keeping the extension open would not justify the anticipated cost of doing so, estimated to be between $60 and $70 million over the next five years.

But Bennett said new factors, specifically the fact that the railway will be better able than trucks to carry 56-inch pipe for the Alcan pipeline, changed the economics of the situation.

Ferry Income Costs Up

The B.C. Ferry Corporation reported net income of $1.67 million for the year ended March 31, after receiving a $43.6 million provincial grant.

The Crown corporation said in its annual report, tabled in the legislature Thursday, that while revenue from operations increased $2.2 million to $61.5 million, expenses jumped $10.6 million to $85.7 million.

The corporation reported a loss of $4 million in fiscal year 1976-77 after receiving a grant of $6.7 million.

About 600,000 more passengers travelled on the government ferry fleet last year than the previous year, the report stated, and vehicle traffic increased by 200,000.

However, the report said revenue from fares was down $450,000 because of a fare reduction June 1, 1977.

The lost revenue was offset by a $1 million increase in revenue from food service and newsstand operations, and by an extra $2.2 million from investment sources.

Salaries, wages and benefits constituted the biggest single expense of the corporation, amounting to $47.6 million in fiscal year 1977-78.

Without the provincial grant, the corporation would have lost $41.9 million last year.

The corporation reported retained earnings of $23.4 million at the end of the year, a total which included net income, balance from the previous year, and about $20 million from a bookkeeping procedure as a result of the fleet becoming a Crown corporation on Jan. 1, 1977.

Ottawa To Ottawa: Pay Up or Else. . .

OTTAWA (CP) — City council has decided to cut off the federal government.

In fact, by an 11-to-1 vote, city council decided if the federal government doesn't at least agree to start paying the $33 million the city says it is owed, all city services to federal installations will be withdrawn.

A Sept. 1 deadline for substantive discussions was set, although as Ald. Trip Kennedy said, the deadline also was open to negotiation as long as the federal government was seriously discussing the matter.

The major problem confronted by city council is that it is trapped with no place to expand — surrounded by satellite municipalities on three sides and by the Ottawa River and the Quebec border on the fourth.

Most of the major buildings in the city are federally-owned, businesses are moving out of the city to the satellite communities where the buyers are and the federal government is moving up to 20,000 employees across the river to Hull, Que., leaving prime leased office space in Ottawa begging.

Controller Pat Nicol was the only dissenting voice at the meeting, saying council should work with regional government and the province before handing down any ultimatums.

And city solicitor Don Hambling raised the matter of legal responsibility when he said that under the provincial Public Utilities Act, the city "is required to provide essential services" such as hydro, police, fire protection, snow plowing and some road paving.

Regional government is responsible for such things as water and sewer services.

Mayor Lorry Greenberg, who didn't vote on the cut-off, said the $33 million represents the assessed amount the federal government owes the city in taxes. The government pays the city a grant in lieu of taxes — with the federal government deciding how much it will pay.

Greenberg said full payment by the government would mean a $150 tax rebate for every Ottawa taxpayer.

"This is not an irrational nor an irresponsible act," Greenberg said. "This is a final act of frustration because we don't have any other course."

He told the special meeting the city had been trying for 10 or 15 years to reach an amicable agreement on taxes with the federal government, adding:

"We have found out meetings with the feds are all a farce. We can't talk with them."

Shrinkage Shattering

Then the tax bite came — $111.40 for income tax, $12 for unemployment insurance and $12.90 for Canada Pension.

Marina owner Bob Wright, who normally pays his staff by cheque, said he decided to pay in one dollar bills to dramatize how government spending is financed just as much by wage earners as by big corporations.

"Most people can only relate to the dollars they get in their pockets, not to the other end," he said.

"It's to remind our people that it isn't just GM that pays or the shipyard or someone else. The man on the street has to pay his share too," he said, adding he thinks government spending in Canada, now hitting 45 per cent of the Gross National Product, makes the country one of the most over-governed and over-taxed in the world.

Said Cathy, leaving behind a stack of bills earmarked for the government: "It's a big chunk. I don't know to what ends it's going or even if they (the government) are justified in taking it away."

Soil Expert Dispute Casualty

A battle over the removal of 16 acres of North Saanich land from the Agricultural Land Reserve (ALR) has claimed its first victim.

Provincial government soil specialist Fred Reid, 26, says he lost his job because he provided information on the matter to The Vancouver Sun.

Reid said that he was given his walking papers Monday, a day after he returned to his Cloverdale office from an out-of-town assignment to find his files had all been removed.

"When I opened the drawer and saw my files gone I wondered if I was in Russia," said Reid.

He said his immediate superior called him to Victoria where he was told he could either be fired on the spot or turn in a resignation and clear out by Wednesday.

Reid said he opted for resignation so that he would have a chance to tie up a few loose ends.

But Hewitt said Thursday that "Mr. Reid resigned. I have a copy of his letter of resignation — he wasn't fired. I can only assume he submitted it because he wanted to resign."

Hewitt added that he did not intend to find out whether Reid had been forced to resign.

The controversial land case at the heart of the issue involves a 16-acre section near Sidney that was twice refused removal from the ALR before its owners, Don and Jaqueline Wilson, 9299 Canora Road, recently succeeded in getting it removed.

Application by the Wilsons to have the land declassified were refused by the government in October, 1976, and March, 1977, before being approved on May 31 this year.

Land commission chairman Gary Runka told the Wilsons in a letter that their land was being released in view of the fact that there had been several exclusions allowed for lands adjacent to their property.

In January about 62 acres adjoining the Wilson property was removed for the ALR. Some 33 acres in that parcel are now proposed for a controversial mobile home park development that's sparked heated debate in Sidney.

Reid said his job problems began when he became concerned about the commission's decision to release the Wilson property.

He said that as a soil specialist he advised the commission that the land could be rated Class Two with high agricultural capacity.

Faculty Club Bid Delayed

The University of Victoria board of directors Thursday deferred a decision on whether to relocate the campus faculty club in University House.

Faculty members have proposed that the former residence of UVic president Dr. Howard Petch on Haro Road get expanded dining and kitchen facilities.

The change would require an increase in dues and additional sources of revenue through opening membership in the club to university staff or members of the public willing to pay an initiation fee.

The governors noted that of the faculty club's membership of about 450, only 85 voted on the proposal and the vote was 46 to 39 in favor.

VOTE ASKED ON BIG EXPENSES

Taxpayer Power Bid

A Socred backbencher proposed Thursday that taxpayers get a vote on major public expenditures including employee pay hikes.

Lyle Kahl, the MLA for Esquimalt, made the suggestion at a ratepayers' meeting as one of several ways to help cut local taxes.

He said ratepayers want more direct say in how their money is spent and more information from their local, regional and provincial officials.

Kahl acknowledged that holding taxpayer referendums might be awkward at the provincial level but said he believes it is a good idea up to and including the regional level, particularly if budgets are presented at election time.

More than 100 persons turned out for the joint meeting of Albert Head and Metchosin ratepayer associations to discuss the escalation of taxes with Kahl and representatives of the regional district, Juan de Fuca recreation, the Sooke School District and the B.C. Assessment Authority.

KAHL
. . . more direct say

Kahl said taxpayers are determined to take some action in time for the preparation of next year's budgets and mill rates.

Suggestions at Thursday's meeting included a proposal to abolish the regional district, which Kahl said received enthusiastic support.

Recommendations endorsed at the meeting will be forwarded to the appropriate authorities.

Some other ideas were: elimination of non-essential programs; a rollback of property tax increases to a maximum 6 per cent; allowing taxpayers to vote in annual fall elections on proposed budget expenditures for the following year; placing all major community projects and salary increases to a vote; rolling back provincial spending to a maximum 6 per cent increase and establishment of a 25-1 student-teacher ratio in schools.

Kahl said there was much interest in school spending as a result of a 10-mill increase in taxes this year and the fact that about 68 per cent of District 62's budget goes to salaries and administration.

Fee Increase For Students

An increase in student fees can be expected for the 1979-80 term, Howard Petch, University of Victoria president, told the board of governors Thursday.

The president, saying no increases are planned this September, noted the Universities Councils has recommended universities increase fees by about seven per cent.

The board approved a #38.9 million operating budget, a 3.4 per cent increase over the 1978 figure of $37.6 million.

Petch said the budget is "incredibly tight."

He reiterated to the board his concerns about the provincial government financing policies which gave UVic only a seven per cent increase in grants this year, not enough to cover additional costs generated by inflation and increasing enrolment in the university's programs.

"For the first time since I have come here I am really worried about next year," he said.

Oak Bay Launches Boat Watch Project

Oak Bay police have launched a Neighborhood Watch program for boaters, the second municipality in the Greater Victoria area to do so.

Beginning Monday, two summer students, under police supervision, will assist boaters in marking their property for identification purposes in the event of theft.

A similar program is already under way in Sidney through the RCMP.

Both programs will continue throughout the summer, ending Aug. 31.

Constable Grant Fowler, Oak Bay police's crime prevention officer, said the students, Lori Peterson, 15, and Bobbi Low, 16, will concentrate on Oak Bay Marina and the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

About 600 boats are moored at the marina, and another 500 at the yacht club.

Fowler hopes at least 75 per cent of the boat owners will participate in the program. The department's goal is 100 per cent.

In addition, Fowler said, the girls will assist owners of trailer boats in marking valuables with the owners' social insurance number.

The marking will be done at the Oak Bay police station on an appointment basis only and is open to anyone in the Greater Victoria area.

Some Love Story!

"Moose Love Us" states an ad being run in B.C. newspapers by the pulp and paper industry of Canada.

The ad says deer and other animals love the resource industry because when the forest is harvested new growth springs up which attracts numerous wild creatures.

That's true enough, and it's also true that "A mature evergreen forest holds little nourishment for wildlife."

But what the ad doesn't say is that the little nourishment mature growth does hold is of vital importance to wintering deer.

Last week Fish and Wildlife branch biologist Daryll Hebert stated publicly that if Vancouver Island's virgin Tsitika watershed is logged according to the current plan 70 to 90 per cent of the blacktail deer will be killed.

Hebert said the logging companies propose to take all the mature stands over a 60-year period — and that will mean eventual winter starvation for almost all the deer in the area.

Hardly sounds like love.

Thanks, but no thanks, is Oak Bay council's response to the Urban Transit Authority bill that would dump bus services gratuitously into the laps of municipalities.

Despite objections to the proposal, Capital Regional District chairman Jim Campbell has started preparing his staff for talks with municipal officials to set out the areas to be served. In a letter to Oak Bay this week he asked for "co-operation in this endeavor."

Mayor Brian Smith asked CRD delegate Ald. Shirley Dowell, "Has anyone (at the regional district) suggested the present is declined?" None whatever, she replied.

It illustrates a point Smith has often made, that the region knows no bounds to expansion and is quite ready to assume any and all responsibilities.

Oak Bay fire department may have a first in offbeat alarms — a frost-free freezer fire that put itself out.

Chief Fred Leeke reported to fire wardens one fire loss last month, a $650 blaze that snuffed itself after charring to a crisp the inside of a refrigerator at 483 St. Patrick, home of John W. MacRae.

The owners were absent for several hours, during which it is suspected an electrical short developed in the defrosting cycle, heated the cubicle until its plastic liner caught fire and burned out when all the oxygen was used up.

Traffic Jams Ferries For the Second Day

The B.C. Ferry service has thrown every available vessel into service this weekend in an attempt to handle the traditional July 1 rush of travellers.

Despite the move, however, vehicles were lined two deep for about a kilometre from the Swartz Bay terminal Thursday evening and traffic was jammed again early this morning.

Traffic snarls were unknotted by mid-morning, but ferry officials were expecting to be under pressure again this evening.

Assistant ferry service traffic manager William Bouchard said that nobody was left behind at any of the terminals Thursday — contrary to some newspaper reports — and he doubted any travellers will be stranded tonight.

Bouchard said waits were longer than normal Thursday because the Queen of Vancouver couldn't be put into service until this morning.

He said the Vancouver was to have started Thursday but the crew wasn't familiarized with the newly-engined vessel in time to meet the first heavy rush of traffic.

Engine trouble on the Queen of Victoria also added to traffic problems. The Victoria was out of service for much of the day.

Beef Pushes Food Costs Up by 4½% In Month

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Soaring beef prices and dwindling year-end stocks of potatoes and apples boosted the cost of food 4.5 per cent over the past month, the Anti-Inflation Board said today.

The AIB's food index, constructed from a survey of prices in 12 major Canadian cities, currently stands at 148 (100 in 1974), an increase of 16.6 per cent in the last year.

Beef went up 10.7 per cent May, but the board said the prices "appeared to have peaked for the moment."

The AIB's fresh fruit index rose 11.4 per cent since mid-May mainly due to a seasonal scarcity of apples which rose in price by 33 per cent over the past four weeks.

In general the price of fresh vegetables increased 20.1 per cent in the last four weeks, attributed by the board to seasonal market conditions. The price of potatoes alone rose 72 per cent over the same period.

But as the summer season progresses prices for fresh vegetables and fruit should decline, the board said.

Among other increases over the past month, fats and oils were up 3.4 per cent, poultry 1.8 per cent and pork 2 per cent.

Meanwhile, the president of Canada Packers Ltd. isn't betting too strongly on it, but he thinks the price of beef will come down to more reasonable levels.

"We hesitate to make predictions because we've been awfully wrong lately, but we expect the price to somewhat decline and next stabilize to some extent," W. F. McLean told the company's annual meeting of shareholders.

"If it stabilizes, and there is some balance between demand and supply, then we will have a period of stability — what the industry needs more than anything else right now."

However, Evans Thorterson of Elfros, Sask., president of a major cattle raisers' association said Thursday price increases were not a response to a short supply of beef.

It is actually an adjustment of the market to where it should have been, he said.

HEATING OIL, GAS HIKE DUE

The price of gasoline and home heating oil in Victoria will reach a new high this fall.

Motorists and homeowners can expect to pay about 3½ cents more a gallon for both items around Sept. 1.

July 1 is the effective date for a $1-a-barrel increase in oil prices as the government steadily pushes domestic prices toward world levels.

Oil companies said it will take about 60 days for these increases paid to producers to reflect in high prices at the pumps because it takes that long for existing inventories to be used up.

"We are also required by the government to wait for 60 days," said one oil company spokesman. "This means prices will go up in Victoria and elsewhere in the province on Sept. 1."

Still to come later in the summer is a round of expected price rises for natural gas, possibly up to 17 cents a thousand cubic feet.

Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie has turned down opposition MPs requests to forego the summer increases, even though federal studies show they will drive up the inflation rate by one full percentage point.

Gillespie told the Commons recently that Canadian industry already has a price advantage for oil and the government will not stop its policy of forcing prices higher.

Currently, domestic oil sells for $11.75 a barrel compared with $15 a barrel it costs for world oil imported to the eastern provinces.

BCR to Run Despite Red

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia railway will never make a profit, but B.C. taxpayers will continue 100 per cent subsidization of the service anyway, Premier Bill Bennett said Thursday.

Bennett said in a radio interview while the railway is making a profit this year on operating, it cannot service its tremendous debt built up over the past years.

The subsidy will be continued, said Bennett, because the railway will contribute more to the province's economy than any other assistance suggested by his government.

The province's decision to continue supporting B.C. Rail goes counter to a royal commission report, submitted to cabinet last December, which recommended permanent closure of the Fort Nelson extension of the line.

The report said the benefits of keeping the extension open would not justify the anticipated cost of doing so, estimated to be between $60 and $70 million over the next five years.

But Bennett said new factors, specifically the fact that the railway will be better able than trucks to carry 56-inch pipe for the Alcan pipeline, changed the economics of the situation.

Ferry Income, Costs Up

The B.C. Ferry Corporation reported net income of $1.67 million for the year ended March 31, after receiving a $43.6 million provincial grant.

The Crown corporation said in its annual report, tabled in the legislature Thursday, that while revenue from operations increased $2.2 million to $61.5 million, expenses jumped $10.6 million to $85.7 million.

The corporation reported a loss of $4 million in fiscal year 1976-77 after receiving a grant of $6.7 million.

About 600,000 more passengers travelled on the government ferry fleet last year than the previous year, the report stated, and vehicle traffic increased by 200,000.

However, the report said revenue from fares was down $450,000 because of a fare reduction June 1, 1977.

The lost revenue was offset by a $1 million increase in revenue from food service and newsstand operations, and by an extra $2.2 million from investment sources.

Salaries, wages and benefits constituted the biggest single expense of the corporation, amounting to $47.6 million in fiscal year 1977-78.

Without the provincial grant, the corporation would have lost $41.9 million last year.

The corporation reported retained earnings of $23.4 million at the end of the year, a total which included net income, balance from the previous year, and about $20 million from a bookkeeping procedure as a result of the fleet becoming a Crown corporation on Jan. 1, 1977.

MONEY BILL OVERLOOKED

Lieut.-Governor Henry Bell-Irving did double duty as the legislature wound down Thursday evening.

At the end of each session, the lieutenant-governor enters the legislative chambers to give royal assent to bills passed by the assembly.

Bell-Irving was escorted in and gave royal assent to what everyone thought were all the bills.

But as Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy began the motion to end the current session, she was interrupted by Speaker Harvey Schroeder who said the lieutenant-governor would have to come back.

One bill had been forgotten.

So the ceremony was repeated for the one bill — the Supply Act — without which the government wouldn't be able to spend the bulk of its $4.28 billion budget.

For a look at the session and what the politicians think about it, see Page 24.

Green Light Given 2,4-D

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government's program to combat Eurasian milfoil in the Okanagan lakes system with 2,4-D was given the green light again Thursday in a B.C. Supreme Court decision.

The decision by Mr. Justice A. B. MacFarlane alos lifted an injunction that was issued last Thursday to stop the application of the herbicide in the lake system.

It upheld six permits to apply the herbicide, while rejecting four and noting that another permit expires today.

In ruling the six permits valid, Mr. Justice MacFarlane rejected arguments by lawyers for two members of the South Okanagan Environmental Coalition (SOEC) who contended that protesters did not receive a fair hearing at sessions of the Pesticide Appeal Board's (PBA) June 6-14 in Penticton, B.C.

However, he upheld arguments that the board had overstepped its jurisdiction in extending four permits — which had expired June 15 — to Sept. 30 and declared them void until the PAB can make a valid decision that gives them effect.

In Victoria, Environment Minister Jim Nielsen said the government will go ahead in the next day or two with the herbicide program in the approved areas and try to clear the way for application in the four areas rejected by the court.

The Times will not publish Saturday because of the Canada Day holiday. Regular Saturday features appear in today's paper. Publication will resume with Monday's editions.

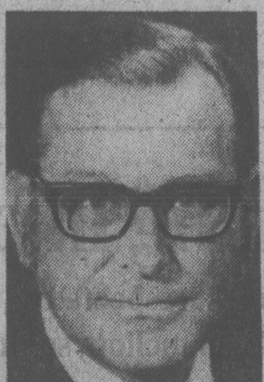
Phillips Exhausted, Expense Account Too



PHILLIPS

How much fun can you have in Japan on $29,000?

"I came back exhausted," Economic Development Minister Don Phillips admitted.

Lauk noted Phillips' mission to Japan last year cost $29,496.04.

In view of that cost for a two week trip, "did you have a good time?" Lauk asked.

Speaker Harvey Schroeder interjected: "The question suggests its own answer. However, the minister may wish to answer."

After Phillips let it slip that he'd come back exhausted, he added that he went over to work and not to play rugby.

(When Dave Barrett was premier, he timed an economic mission to Japan to coincide with an over-40 rugby game against the Japanese. Barrett scored a try in that game.)

Phillips said his mission to Japan resulted in contacts that in future will prove the money was well-spent.

Ottawa To Ottawa: Pay Up or Else. . .

OTTAWA (CP) — City council has decided to cut off the federal government.

In fact, by an 11-to-1 vote, city council decided if the federal government doesn't at least agree to start paying the $33 million the city says it is owed, all city services to federal installations will be withdrawn.

A Sept. 1 deadline for substantive discussions was set, although as Ald. Trip Kennedy said, the deadline also was open to negotiation as long as the federal government was seriously discussing the matter.

The major problem confronted by city council is that it is trapped with no place to expand — surrounded by satellite municipalities on three sides and by the Ottawa River and the Quebec border on the fourth.

Most of the major buildings in the city are federally-owned, businesses are moving out of the city to the satellite communities where the buyers are and the federal government is moving up to 20,000 employees across the river to Hull, Que., leaving prime leased office space in Ottawa begging.

Controller Pat Nicol was the only dissenting voice at the meeting, saying council should work with regional government and the province before handing down any ultimatums.

And city solicitor Don Hambling raised the matter of legal responsibility when he said that under the provincial Public Utilities Act, the city "is required to provide essential services" such as hydro, police, fire protection, snow plowing and some road paving.

Regional government is responsible for such things as water and sewer services.

Mayor Lorry Greenberg, who didn't vote on the cut-off, said the $33 million represents the assessed amount the federal government owes the city in taxes. The government pays the city a grant in lieu of taxes — with the federal government deciding how much it will pay.

Greenberg said full payment by the government would mean a $150 tax rebate for every Ottawa taxpayer.

"This is not an irrational nor an irresponsible act," Greenberg said. "This is a final act of frustration because we don't have any other course."

He told the special meeting the city had been trying for 10 or 15 years to reach an amicable agreement on taxes with the federal government, adding:

"We have found out meetings with the feds are all a farce. We can't talk with them."

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Sharp losses in oil issues sent the Toronto stock market down almost two points in moderate mid-afternoon trading.

Husky Oil Ltd. was down 9 to $39½ a share on the sale of 33,548 shares after recovering from a drop of $35½ following its resumption about 11:30 a.m. Trading starts were co-ordinated on the Toronto Stock Exchange, the Montreal Stock Exchange and the American Stock Exchange at New York.

A halt was issued at Wednesday's opening for news that Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd. has decided to hold the line at its 35-per-cent acquisition. However, AGTL president Robert Blair said the company reserves the right to defend its position as principal holder should another company try to take over the Calgary-based firm.

AGTL Class A shares were unchanged at $14⅝ on the sale of 29,988 shares.

Among other industrials, Campeau Corp. B dropped 1 to $10, Asbestos Corp. ¾ to $44, Pop Shoppes International ½ to $6⅜, Ashland Oil Canada ½ to $22¾ and Livingston Industries ½ to $25½.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market slipped into a sluggish decline in the face of adverse news on interest rates and inflation.

Trading was slow on the eve of what for many Americans will be a four-day Independence Day weekend.

The government reported this morning that the consumer price index climbed at a 10.8-per-cent annual rate in May, setting a two-digit pace for the second consecutive month.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were mixed in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

London

LONDON (CP) — Hopes of relaxed dividend controls sent the London stock market moderately higher near the close of light trading.

The Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 460.8, up 3.5.
